Vinson Says He'll Scrap Little Steel Formula If Rail Pay Is Increased

Will Be Forced to Act In Fairness to Other Workers, OES Chief Warns Congress

By Ben W. Gilbert

Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson yesterday threatened to scrap the Little Steel wage formula if Congress adopts the Truman resolution approving an 8-cent-an-hour wage increase for 1,100,000 nonoperating employes.

Charging that the resolution would break the wage formula, Vinson said:

"If the Congress exempts one group from the application of the Little Steel formula, then the executive department, would in all fairness, be compelled to abandon it for other groups."

However, Senator Truman (Democrat) of Missouri and sponsor of the resolution which is now before a subcommittee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee for hearings, predicted that it would be approved by the subcommittee and the full committee and then passed by an overwhelming Senate vote.

House Passage Also Predicted

A House leader, who asked that his name be withheld, predicted favorable House action would follow Senate approval.

Railroad union sources indicated that an effort would be made to get the resolution to the Senate floor within a week or ten days, with favorable action by the subcommittee expected today or tomorrow.

Confident of a firm majority in Congress, the union chiefs disclosed that they had received support from some legislators who voted for the Connally-Smith Anti-strike Act and now wanted to "square themselves" with organized labor.

Vinson, in a bluntly phrased statement made to the subcommittee, declared:

"The critical question is whether, for some strange reason, the law applicable to others is not applicable to the nonoperating railway employes and their employers. We would be in an indefensible position, indeed, if privileged groups were exempted from the wage controls to which others must adhere. That would be the same as providing that one butcher must sell his limited number of steaks at OPA ceiling prices while another butcher is free to charge whatever he can obtain."

Should Apply to All

"If Congress desires some change in the standards of wage stabilization," Vinson said, "it should, in my view, write a formula applicable to all."

To justify his firm stand, Vinson said that the Government was not attempting to put all prices and wages "in precise balance."

"The Government by a general freeze of wage rates has assured that the inequities present while we are engaged in war are no greater than we had in peacetime," Vinson said, adding that "a few exceptions have been made in the attempt to obtain greater over-all fairness."

Up to now, Administration officials have generally avoided ad-

Fortas Leaves Ickes for Navy

Abe Fortas, Undersecretary of the Interior, abruptly resigned yesterday and left the Capital to begin active duty as an apprentice seaman in the Navy.

Fortas' departure had been held up by Secretary Ickes so the Undersecretary could head an oil survey mission in the Middle East. Delay in departure of the mission, however, caused Fortas to grow impatient and he left for his Navy service late in the day.

Ickes Asks Operators to Sign Contract as Coal Price Lever

Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes yesterday suggested to representatives of the Nation's coal operators that they sign a contract with the United Mine Workers promptly and use it to secure a greater coal price boost from the Office of Price Administration, informed sources revealed.

At a meeting with members of his Bituminous Coal Advisory Committee composed of 29 soft coal operators, Ickes renewed his plea of the day before that the operators make a pact with the UMW, permitting him to relinquish control of the mines.

Conditional on Boost

When operators protested that they did not dare sign a new wage agreement until they knew where they stood on prices, Ickes suggested that the agreement be made conditional on the granting of a "satisfactory" price boost, thereby forcing OPA to yield to insure coal peace, it was reported.

Operators from Illinois, Indiana, Central Pennsylvania and the Pittsburgh, Pa., area agreed to meet with UMW President John L. Lewis today if a meeting could be arranged, but other operators remained silent, indicating that the wage controversy had once again split their ranks.

OPA has proposed to Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson that soft coal prices be boosted an average of 15 cents a ton—ranging from nothing in some areas up to 25 cents, but Ickes has protested that a boost averaging 25 cents a ton, ranging up to 35 cents is required. Operators contend that even more is needed to pay the increased costs occasioned by the wage agreement Ickes signed with Lewis, for the duration of Government operation only.

A statement blasting "government confusion" and warning that "production cannot be increased or even maintained, unless the controlling governmental policies make that course possible," was presented to Ickes by the operators, it was learned.

"We are as anxious as you can possibly be to bring about an equitable solution of this problem," the operators said, "but there are factors in this situation for which the Government and Government policy are alone responsible, and which are beyond any control by the operators."

The agreement which Ickes signed with Lewis "has from a practical standpoint established a basic, rigid formula that has made impossible any general elasticity in approach or the usual give and take in wage negotiations," the operators said.

"Without adequate price adjustment, many operations will doubtless be unable to provide indefinitely the losses incidental to Federal control and policy, and may be compelled to close down unless the Government provides current funds or otherwise assumes current pecuniary responsibility," the owners said.

Possible Suits Hinted

Hinting at possible suits for damages incurred during Government operation, the statement went on:

"The operators are in unanimous agreement that the responsibility for adequate price adjustment rests with the Government, and that differences of opinion

Compromise Sought

Price Spiral Will Follow Ban On Subsidies, Bowles Warns

By Christine Sadler

As the House prepared for another bitter floor fight, beginning tomorrow, over legislation to ban Government subsidies to hold down food prices, Price Administrator Chester Bowles last night warned that if the legislation is enacted "we are going to be in trouble as far as the cost of living is concerned—there's no doubt about it."

He broadcast his warning while Administration Democrats worked at high speed on a three-point compromise proposal designed to help cost of living stabilization through the first nine months of 1944.

Representative Monroney (Democrat) of Oklahoma, author of the plan, said it would be offered as a substitute for the ban on food subsidies coming up tomorrow in the bill extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation. The House Rules Committee cleared the way yesterday for consideration of the measure.

Bowles declared that if subsidies are ended milk will rise a cent a quart in price, cheese 3 cents a pound, butter 4½ cents, and meat 2 to 6 cents a pound. He declared that one and one-half billion dollars should be spent on subsidies. Calling the present 800 million dollars outlay for this purpose "a businessman's bargain," he estimated subsidies had saved the people and the Government 15 billion dollars which would otherwise have been added to their food costs.

Bowles predicted that if prices are permitted to go up the War Labor Board will be unable to hold the line against wage increases.

Monroney said his compromise subsidy plan would contain the following features:

1. A 900-million-dollar limit on the amount that might be paid out in subsidies to hold down the cost of living.

2. A time limit under which authority for hold-the-line payments would expire next September 30.

3. A provision ending the subsidies in case wage levels moved up an additional 5 or 10 per cent, thereby scrapping completely the "Little Steel" wage formula.

Subsidies already in operation are costing an estimated 800 million dollars this year and another

$200 Gifts Cease With Donor Only 11 Cents in Pocket

Toronto, Nov. 16 (AP).—Harry F. McLean, of Merrickville, Ont., visited Toronto's Christie Street Military Hospital today for the second time this month and distributed a number of $100 and $200 bills, probably totaling more than $5000, to bed-ridden patients.

Entering the institution quietly with two friends, the wealthy philanthropist handed patients either a $100 or $200 note.

Just before leaving he said: "Well, that's all boys; I've got only 11 cents left."

The last time the cigar-smoking philanthropist visited the hospital he handed out more than $4000.

'Emergency' Action

Senate Votes $10,000 to Speed Investigation of Liquor Trade

The Senate yesterday unanimously voted a Senate Judiciary subcommittee $10,000 to investigate "all phases" of the current hard-liquor shortage, from liquor hoarding and "cutting" to price-lifting and black markets.

Acting Senate Minority Leader Wallace H. White, jr., waived the usual Republican requirement that all bills lie over a day when Judiciary Committee Chairman Frederick Van Nuys assured him there was an "emergency."

Van Nuys, chairman of the special five-man investigating committee, said he wanted to put researchers immediately to work gathering all available liquor facts and figures to get investigation under way next week.

Representative Donald O'Toole (Democrat) of Brooklyn, N. Y., meanwhile wired Gov. Thomas E. Dewey that unless corrective measures were taken in New York officials would be confronted with "bootlegging, lawlessness and the return of prohibition."

"All the old mobsters are drifting back into town," O'Toole wired. "They think their old days are coming back. The next thing will be gang wars and shootings. Hijackings have already started."

Van Nuys told newsmen he believed big "liquor monopolies" were responsible for the scarcity; "They are not only forcing people to seek bootleg liquor in black markets, but evading the taxes they would have to pay on liquor withdrawn from Government warehouses."

But the Indiana Democrat said he would not hesitate to call bootleg "big shots" of the prohibition era if he should find they were

Father Draft Delay Plan Is Approved

Conferees Break 2-Month Deadlock; Final Vote May Come This Week

By Robert C. Albright

Two months of legislative shadow-boxing on the controversial fathers' draft issue ended yesterday in a conference agreement to write into law the "nonfathers first" principle, without banning father inductions.

Leaders said the conference bill will not materially slow down drafting of dads before January, but should ease father calls somewhat next year.

The agreement broke a two-weeks' conference deadlock and sped back to both houses for a final vote the congressional "last word" on inductions.

Boards Behind Schedule

Information that local-board quotas were falling behind schedule because of congressional inaction helped break the impasse. Final passage of the bill, probably later this week, was expected to check draft confusion by removing the last doubts in the minds of local officials as to congressional intent.

As approved by the House and Senate conference group, the bill includes the Kilday plan of placing fathers at the bottom of the draft list. Single men and married men without children would be called on a national as well as a State basis theoretically before fathers were touched.

But an ample cushion was written into the measure to allow Selective Service to do substantially what it is now doing. Selective Service contends it will never be able to completely exhaust the list of non-fathers because of youths turning 18 every month, many draft appeals and periodic replacements in deferred jobs.

Conditions Set Forth

So the bill applied the "non-fathers first" rule only "under such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe, on the basis of the best inventory information available to him at the time of allocating calls, without affecting the usual regular and orderly flow of the Nation's manpower into the armed forces for service therein."

Other provisions in the bill designed to relieve the pressure on fathers, but which will not have an appreciable immediate effect:

Direct the President to appoint a five-man medical commission to review armed service physical, mental and moral requirements, with the idea of cutting down on the number of 4-F's.

Require local boards to submit occupational deferments of registrants to the Selective Service Appeal Board having jurisdiction over the area in which a man works. The Appeal Board could rescind the deferment, subject only to final action by the President.

The conference upheld the House in removing virtually all draft authority from Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt, but modified the full powers the House vested in Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey.

Authority to President

Nullified were McNutt's work or fight orders (nondeferable lists), by means of which the Manpower chief sought to induce men in non-essential work to shift to war industry. The bill flatly forbade calling up of men by occupations, with the sole exception that medical experts may be requisitioned for the land or naval forces.

In each instance where the House vested final powers in Selective Service Director Hershey, the

Hit Supply Routes

London (Wednesday), Nov. 17 (AP).—Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's Ukrainian army closed in toward the key railway junction of Korosten, now within Soviet artillery range from three directions, and one column surged up from the south to within 14 miles of the city, Moscow announced early today.

The column moving up from captured Zhitomir reached Turchenka while another force coming in from the southeast captured Chepovichi, 15 miles away. A third group reached to Obikhodi, where it was 15 miles from Korosten and but 13 miles from the north-south Odessa-Leningrad Railway, which at Korosten crosses the east-west Kiev-Warsaw line.

Major Routes Now Useless

Both railroads were major German supply routes now virtually useless to the Germans east and north of their junction.

Sixty towns and hamlets were taken in the Korosten area, said the Moscow communique, recorded by the Soviet radio monitor here.

The third group also sought to trap the Germans in Gomel to the north. To the south the Germans hinted at the beginning of a flight from the Dnieper bend.

But the most dramatic advances of the day came in the Korosten area, where the Germans lost considerable materiel.

Nazis Attack on Flanks

The Germans appeared to be relying upon flank counterattacks for the major defense in the Korosten-Zhitomir region and they hammered at the Fastov area and southeast of Zhitomir. Soviet planes were active here, pounding troop concentrations and destroying 20 tanks and 90 trucks.

The Korosten drive was linked with the fighting in the Rechitsa region where the Russians were aiming at Kalinkovichi, the next important railway junction north of Korosten.

The communique said the Red army, which Monday cut the railway leading from Gomel west to Kalinkovichi, captured 10 more German strong-points and the enemy "sustained tremendous losses in manpower and equipment."

No Mention of Zhitomir Area

Although the major Russian gains of the day were made in the Korosten area, there was no Soviet mention of Russians pushing west from nearby Zhitomir toward the pre-1941 Polish border.

The extent of Russian penetration west of Zhitomir remained in doubt. A Moscow dispatch said swift Red army mechanized and motorized columns had driven from Kiev through Zhitomir to Baranovka, thrusting a dangerous salient into the German positions to a depth of 112 miles west of Kiev and 165 miles from the Polish border of 1941.

This would place the head of the salient some 40 miles west of Zhitomir and about 35 miles east of the prewar Polish-Russian fron-

Southwest Pacific Allied Headquarters (Wednesday), Nov. 17 (AP). Gen. Douglas MacArthur's spokesman said today "the Southwest Pacific has something less than 5 per cent of American military resources and it is now receiving something under 10 per cent of what America is shipping overseas."

He added that, during current war operations in the area, everything possible was being done with what equipment was available.

The spokesman, Col. Lagrande Diller, made the statement when asked by newsmen for comment on dispatches printed here quoting Admiral William Brent Young as saying "American supplies are reaching the Southwest Pacific in quantities sufficient for large-scale operations against the Japanese."

In the latest strikes, reported in today's communique, the credit was shared by a United States Navy Catalina Flying Boat and Australian-flown Beaufort bombers.

During the early morning hours Monday, the Catalina sighted the 9000-ton ship, escorted by two corvettes, at the north end of St. George Channel which separates New Ireland and New Britain. Land Disputes To Be Settled After War-Hull

Says Effort Now Would Entail Stopping Military Operations

By the Associated Press

Europe's tangled territorial disputes will have to await settlement until the end of the war, Secretary of State Hull told his press conference yesterday.

Only recently returned from the Moscow meeting, Hull said these problems had been shoved aside temporarily and that unless someone wanted to stop the whole war and settle 30 or 40 such controversies now they would not be dealt with finally until the fighting is over.

Hull thus left unanswered such questions as the ultimate status of the Baltic states of Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania—as well as Finland.

The first three countries were incorporated into the Soviet Union before the Germans occupied them, but they are still recognized diplomatically by the United States.

Finland, though at war with Russia and Britain, is not at war with the United States, and Russia has incorporated as a a socialist republic the region known as Finnish Karelia.

Other Boundaries Involved

Similarly, Russia's boundaries with Poland and Rumania might appear to be involved.

Hull said that putting off settlement of such disputes until after the war is in accordance with British and American declarations during the past two years.

He indicated that it would be impossible to determine boundaries of liberated areas until it becomes clear just what the liberated areas are.

Meanwhile, he said, application of the Moscow formula for the independence of Italy under a democratic regime—which was intended to serve as a model for other liberated areas as they appeared—cannot be finally imple-

U. S. Bombers Battle Snow, Raid Norway

Fight Way Across North Sea to Blast Molybdenum Mine

London, Nov. 16 (AP).—Large formations of American heavy bombers fought their way 700 miles across the North Sea through snowstorms today to strike at Germany's essential metal supply, bombing a molybdenum mine at Knaben in southern Norway and a power station at Rjukan, approximately 80 miles west of Oslo.

The Flying Fortress and Liberator attack on the northern side of German's European fortress followed up a United States Fifteenth Air Force raid yesterday on two Nazi air bases near Athens, on the southern flank of Europe.

The Britain-based heavy bombers were unescorted and encountered only slight resistance. They shot down six Nazi planes with a loss of two bombers—one more than on the Norway raid July 24 when the Trondheim naval base and Heroya aluminum works were attacked.

The heavy bombers also hit important chemical plants, producing hydrogen, nitrogen and oxygen, essential components of high explosives, during the attack on the Rjukan area. An electrolytic-hydrogen plant there was said to be the world's largest of its type.

Molybdenum, used in hardening steel, is vital in the manufacture of munitions. The Knaben Mine, located 50 miles northwest of Kristiansund, was attacked last

Too Many Piggies Go to Market

Hog Price Below Support Line; Big Crop, Labor Lack Blamed

War Food Administration officials yesterday found themselves in a predicament they never anticipated—due to what they termed an 'extraordinary" hog marketing situation that in many places has run the price of hogs down below the support price of $13.75 per hundredweight promised by the agency through September, 1944.

So sure were they that prices would remain up to the $14.75 ceiling set by OPA on live animals, that machinery for getting the guaranteed price to the farmer was not provided nor was the support translated into dollars and cents for any market other than Chicago.

A complete formula for "taking care of the situation" was promised within the next 24 hours, however, and farmers throughout the country were being urged to have a definite price promise for hogs before sending them to market.

Meantime, WFA, somewhat frantically, was pleading with the War Manpower Commission to do something about the labor shortage in the Nation's packing houses—a shortage that makes it impossible for them to handle all the hogs coming to market from the country's record crop.

When hogs are kept on the lots overnight even "they are an expensive proposition," a WFA official said. They have to be fed and watered, some of them get trampled to death, and some of them get badly bruised—so the price goes down."

He said many thousands of packing house workers and members of killing gangs were needed. County agents have been busy rounding up hired hands from farms to take the jobs, but the situation calls for "bigger action" and possibly the use of Italian war prisoner labor, it was declared.

No estimate on the number of hogs being sold at less than the support price has been made, but complaints have come in from markets scattered from Ohio to Omaha, WFA admitted.

Manpower will not solve the entire situation, it was agreed. The Nation's food storage facilites are crowded to capacity and the market for pork is limited by rationing.

"Strong" Survivor

Red Beard Saves Naval Officer After 43 Days Behind Jap Lines

San Francisco, Nov. 16 (AP).—Lieut. Hugh Barr Miller, 33, a survivor of the sunken destroyer Strong, related today how he spent 43 days inside Japanese lines and was "saved by my red beard."

The lieutenant, from Tuscaloosa, Ala., was aboard the Strong which was sunk near the central Solomons last July 4. He and 22 others found temporary safety on a floating net. Six of them finally reached a beach on Japanese-held Arundel Island where three died. Lieutenant Miller, wounded, ordered the remaining two to leave him.

The Alabaman, quarterback on Alabama's Rose Bowl team of 1931, lay in the jungle alone for four days—until July 18.

"On the eighteenth I started up to a spring we had passed," he said in an interview. "A Japanese Zero sprayed me as I was crossing an open flat. I was hit in the wrist and neck.

"For the next seven days, until July 26, I was kept busy dodging Japs. I made a camp on the 26th. It was so well hidden the Army couldn't find it for a time later. I had fresh water and coconuts.

"The night of August 2, a PT boat shot up a Jap barge 250 yards from me. I tried to get to the PT boat but they were shooting at everything in the woods, too. I could hear the Japs screaming for miles. They do not react favorably to surprise. I never heard such screaming.

"Next morning a Jap body came ashore. I got his shoes, socks, bayonets and two hand grenades. I knew there were patrols on the island. I watched one of them jabber about the Jap's gear being gone. They knew someone was

Germans Retake Strategic Points North of Venafro In Bitter Fighting

By Noland Norgaard

Algiers, Nov. 16 (AP).—German troops, counterattacking from their powerful rock-hewn winter line, have knocked American forces back from hard-won heights north of Venafro, the Allied command acknowledged today, and direct word from the cold, rainy Italian front made plain that bitter fighting awaits the Allies on the road to Rome.

"Neither Tunisia nor Sicily presented the difficulties which the Allied troops must overcome before they drive the enemy into northern Italy, and it is becoming obvious that neither of those campaigns cost the blood this drive will cost," wrote Don Whitehead, of the Associated Press, from the Fifth Army front.

For the time being, both the Allies and Germans were digging into the mud for shelter from the inclement weather and from shellfire, and comparatively small forces were battling for a few yards of rocky hilltops, valuable only because they overlook a further goal.

Eighth Wins New Ground

The Nazis counterattacked twice Monday with fresh troops to shove Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American infantry off positions they had won on Monte Santa Croce, north of Venafro. This key peak dominates the entrance to a plain northwest of Magnano, which in turn gives access to the startegic city of Cassino on the main inland highway to Rome.

The British Eighth Army, defying the weather and consequent absonce of air support, won some new high ground north of Atessa, 14 miles in from the Adriatic, and its patrols ranged across the Sangro River to feel out the enemy's strength. German resistance was stiff along the length of the front.

The relatively static position of the front for the past week is giving the Germans ample time to strengthen their mountain fortifications in depth. Even a breakthrough of the present Nazi line would leave the Allies only in position to continue the hard foot-by-foot fighting. In his dispatch, Whitehead drew a dreary picture:

"The roads to the front are slimy brown strips of mud. Rains have turned the countryside into muddy bogs. Day by day it is growing colder in the towering, cloud-swathed mountains.

Enemy Fares Better

"It is true the weather is the same on the enemy side of the line and their troops are uncomfortable, too, but their communications are not hampered by demolitions. Their troops are in well-prepared positions which give them shelter from the elements. Some of their outposts have been found even to have rugs on the floors and large stocks of water, food and small luxuries.

"Since they are attacking, the Allied troops cannot prepare shelters to protect them from the rain, cold and exposure they are enduring in the open slit trenches and in rock crannies in the mountain. In many places the Germans have dugouts similar to the old First World War type, opening onto systems of trenches."

The weather, Whitehead pointed out, is of distinct advantage to the Nazis in that it frees them from the constant blasting from the Allied air force that cost them so heavily in the summer and autumn.

An indication of the effects of these attacks was given in a summary by the Allied tactical air force, showing that its planes in the first two months of the Italian campaign put out of action 448 locomotives and railway cars, destroyed 1277 enemy vehicles and damaged an additional 900 vehicles.

Tito Forced Back By Heavy Assaults

War Sidelights

Torpedoed Ships Saved By Air Device

London, Nov. 16 (AP).—A simple antitorpedo "secret defense weapon" for tankers was disclosed today by the Ministry of Shipping, which said it had saved thousands of gallons of gasoline and oil supplies.

Compressed air is the basis of the new system. An airline is fitted the full length of the tanker, and is connected at both ends to a compressor pump. If the ship is torpedoed, air is pumped into the damaged compartments at the desired pressure, and the inrush of water is checked and forced out.

Through the use of the compressor pump, one tanker hauling 12,000 tons of benzine and kerosene was brought 900 miles to port after being torpedoed near the bow. The tanker then returned 11,000 miles to the United States for Stockings in Germany!

Stockholm, Nov. 16 (AP).—The German press has announced that German women now may buy a pair of stockings each. Clothing ration cards for adults for all types of apparel have been useless for months until the announcement, effective yesterday, on stockings.

Children as Hostages

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Germans have seized children as hostages in Poland, the Polish Telegraph Agency reported from London today. The agency said 50 children had been taken in recent raids in Warsaw. The population of Warsaw, the agency said, has been reduced from 1,500,000 to 950,000, as a result of executions and imprisonments.

Possible Peace Feeler

New York, Nov. 16 (INS).—A London broadcast quoted the Hungarian radio tonight as saying that "the Rumanian Princess Bibescu, accompanied by the Spanish Minister at Bucharest, has arrived in Ankara."

"She is to ascertain the possibilities of peace for Rumania," said the broadcast heard by CBS, adding that "the Hungarian radio report is not confirmed."

Allies Crack Nazi Line That Divided Defenders on Leros

By William Smith White

London, Nov. 16 (AP).—Gen. Josip Broz's (Tito) Partisans were falling back slowly in Yugoslavia tonight before the weight of heavy German assaults, but to the east, in the battle for the Balkans, the Allies strengthened their toehold on the bitterly contested Aegan island of Leros.

Allied air squadrons, based in the Middle East, were striking hard in support of the ground forces in a campaign which is increasing in fury as winter sets in along Hitler's Balkan flank.

Aside from heavy attacks on German positions on Leros—where Allied forces also are under violent Nazi air assault—Allied airmen ranged the Aegean against enemy shipping. United States bombers disabled a German destroyer while British Spitfires and Hurricanes raked the islands of Rhodes and Crete. None of these planes was lost. American bombers from Italy also smashed at two airdromes near Athens.

Gains Cost Foe Heavily

Tito, whose Yugoslave Army of Liberation for weeks has been confronting Hitler with an ever-sharpening menace, acknowledged in a communique today that his Partisan forces had to withdraw from positions on the Peljesac Peninsula on the lower Dalmatian coast and in Dalmatia his forces generally were fighting a defensive struggle.

The Germans, in an effort to secure their Balkan battle lines for the winter, were reported to have hurled thousands of first-rate troops into the struggle with the Yugoslav Partisan forces and were said to be paying heavily in men and material for their gains.

A Middle East communique from Cairo said that British troops in fierce hand-to-hand fighting with the Germans "continue to hold" on the island of Leros despite "heavy and incessant bombing attacks" by Nazi planes.

German Line Broken

The communique said that the British had broken the German line across the narrow neck of the island and reestablished north-south communication.

Refugees arriving at Bodrum, Turkey, said fierce Greek Andarts, who were put ashore from a destroyer last Friday, had saved the situation just as the Nazi assault was about to succeed.

The Greeks were said to have attacked the Germans from the rear and gained control of the landing beaches. When the Andarts arrived strong German forces were said to have pinned the British defenders in a narrow sector of the island. Some 500 German parachutists and 600 infantry troops were flung back from the beaches by the Andarts. Reports reaching Bodrum said the Germans had lost 2000 killed but were still holding one of their beachheads.

The Andarts are members of a Greek political and military organization, groups of which have been waging guerilla war against the Germans on the mainland.

The announcement gave no other details of the accident.

Better U. S. Planes Soon Predicted By Gen. Echols

By the Associated Press

The appearance of superior new American combat planes within the next few months was forecast yesterday by Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, assistant chief of air staff.

Echols, who is responsible for all air forces material, maintenance, and distribution of equipment and supplies, returned recently from an inspection trip on which he studied supply problems in every combat zone except Britain.

Standard American war planes, both fighters and bombers, have been "highly satisfactory" in every theater, the general said, and "although I don't like to be complacent, there is no question of their merits in the minds of any of our commanders."

there. They sent a patrol for me that night.

"They came through a clearing toward my camp. I threw a hand grenade, then beat it into the woods after finding no one left to bayonet. I buried them the next day, taking their gear.

Touch and Go Every Day

"There was a machine-gun nest 100 yards from me at night. The nests were put ashore to protect their barges. From August 10 to 15 I slipped a hand grenade into three of them in trying to capture a gun. I don't know how many Japanese were killed. I never got a usable gun. It was touch and go every day. One night a patrol came within 20 yards of me.

"I had gotten so I could identify planes and boats just by their sounds. On August 16 I heard a TBF (Grumman torpedo bomber) coming. I got onto the flat and waved a Jap towel. He (the pilot) turned low to let me have it. He told me later he saw my red beard. It saved me from getting shot.

"The pilot was Lieut. James R. Turner of Tyler, Tex. He reported back to Munda. Maj. Vernon A. Peterson of Minneapolis said he'd fly a plane to get me. He got two volunteers (Maj. Goodwin Luck of Minneapolis and Sergt. John Happer of Kansas City, Mo.).

"They had to circle close to Vila plantation to land in front of me on the water; it would be impossible to explain how dangerous that was. The Japs never dreamed they'd be fool enough. The AA fire from Vila I knew was terrific.

Wanted to Get Five Skulls

"The major (Peterson) saw I was weak and called to me that he'd send a rubber boat. I beat it to camp to get my gear. It was put on the boat and taken to the plane. It was valuable to me and to naval intelligence.

"I wanted to go back again and get five skulls but it was suggested that 'we get out of this place,' so we flew to Munda in time for lunch—and that was something."

Lieutenant Miller who wears the Purple Heart and Navy Cross for his heroism, is on leave and plans to leave for the East Friday. He said he had been recommended as a machine-gun instructor but did not know what new duties would be assigned to him.

Supplies Meager, MacArthur Says

ing great transportation obstacles had been overcome.

(On Saturday, Associated Press War Correspondent Murlin Spencer, returning to General MacArthur's headquarters after a visit in the United States, wrote:

("Only a few short talks with key men and common soldiers were needed to learn that the constant pleas for more men and more supplies, voiced for more than a year, haven't changed the situation materially.")

Colonel Diller said today "I am reluctant to discuss such a subject" as Admiral Young's statement.

After giving the percentage figures on equipment reaching the Southwest Pacific, he added:

"There is much more than formerly. The percentage for air resources is somewhat lower. Without complaint, the area is doing everything it can with what it has."

Admiral Young visited the Southwest Pacific area recently.

U. S. Bombers Raid Mine in Norway

February 3 by RAF Mosquitos. At that time it was estimated that the raid cut off three-quarters of Germany's supply of molybdenum, and a Swedish newspaper said the mine's production was stopped for months.

The raid continued a series of major American blows at the Germans' metal supply.

The aerial campaign against German war facilities across the English Channel was continued during the day, meanwhile, by swift R.A.F formations of light bombers and fighters which attacked a seaplane base near Brest, an alcohol plant near St. Nazaire and shipping and communications throughout northern France.

There also were indications tonight that the Allied attacks were continuing. The Vichy radio's five-station network went off the air early this evening for a long period.

The air war over northern Europe flared up anew with a German raid for the first time in several months in southwester England where Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, United States European commander, yesterday disclosed American troops were training for an invasion of Europe.

The Germans said their main target was the much-bombed port of Plymouth and the British acknowledged that a "southwest coastal town" was showered with both explosives and incendiaries, killing at least eight persons and trapping 15 to 20 others. The heaviest damage was reported caused in residential areas, with fires started in the industrial section. Three other districts also wer hit by the night raiders.

RAF Mosquitoes swept over western Germany in their almost nightly attacks to "keep the sirens going" between major raids by heavy bombers.

Significant Shift in Raids

The significant shift of the weight of Allied air attacks from the heart of Germany to the perimeter of her battle lines followed last week's intensive assault from the north and south on rail lines used to reinforce German forces in Italy and Saturday's Fortress raid on the North Sea port of Bremen.

The raid on the Athens air fields yesterday by both Liberators and medium bombers, only a day after the medium bombers' attack on railroad yards at Sofia, was another step toward clinching air and subsequent ground control of the Balkans.

Allied headquarters in Algiers revealed that the reorganized Yugoslavia air force participated with the Fifteenth U. S. Air Force in the raid on the Elevsis Airfield near Athens. U. S. medium bombers from Italian bases raided the Kalamaki Airfield in the Athens area at the same time.

The Yugoslavs, who were trained as heavy-bomber crews in the United States, flew Liberator heavy bombers given them by the U. S. under lend-lease. They operate as a Yugoslav air force under their own command.

penetrated by a 1000-pound bomb, which exploded inside.

The Beauforts, just before midnight Sunday, swept down to mast height on enemy shipping at Rabaul, sinking the 8000-ton vessel and damaging another. The Beauforts encountered heavy enemy interception.

On northeastern New Guinea, Japanese planes raided Allied airfields in the Ramu Valley and 20 were shot down.

General MacArthur's headquarters said Avenger torpedo planes had attacked Japanese positions in support of the Americans holding Empress Augusta Bay on Bougainville.

(From the South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey came advices that the Americans scored brief advances Saturday but ran into opposition and called on the air support which was given with success the following day.)

In the Madang sector of New Guinea, Liberators have attacked Alexishafen with 76 tons of bombs. That is in the same sector which recently was hit by more than 200 tons of explosives. The area is one from which the Japanese air force attempts to harass Australians moving up the Ramu Valley against Madang.

The Japanese air attacks on New Guinea were directed against airfields at Nadzab and Gusap. The 24 raiding bombers and 30 fighters achieved some damage before being intercepted by an outnumbered formation of P-40s. In addition to the 20 enemy planes downed, six others probably were destroyed.

tier. Large-scale maps show a town named Baranovka at that point. However, maps also show a town of the same name some 50 miles northeast of Zhitomir. Soviet sources here were without definite information as to which Baranovka had been taken and a recheck from Moscow was not immediately available.

The Soviet communique made no mention of the Crimea fighting, where the Russians were slowly increasing their hold on the marshy Kerch Peninsula. A British broadcast, quoting Moscow dispatches, said heavy storms hampered the Russian advance.

Federal Reserve Asks Fast Ending Of War Contracts

Prompt and final settlement of terminated war contracts by agreement between the contractor and the original contracting agency is essential, the Federal Reserve Board declared last night, if Government and business are to meet the "stupendous" postwar task of converting to a peace economy.

The board made public a resolution adopted by its advisory council and concurred in by the board, which asserted that such settlements should not be subject to review by any other agency except for fraud, adding:

"Any amounts that might conceivably be saved the Government through a post audit will fade into insignificance in comparison with grants for relief that will be necessitated by resulting delay, uncertainty and unemployment."

The resolution recommended legislation to provide "more adequate means of interim financing" in cases where there is "unavoidable" delay in final payment for canceled contracts and to relieve contracting officers who negotiate settlements from personal liability except for fraud.

Japs Seen Considering Withdrawal From Base At Rabaul as Result of Recent Heavy Losses

By John G. Norris

Japan must be giving serious consideration to the abandoment of its great Southwest Pacific base at Rabaul as the result of their recent heavy warship and planes losses, a Navy spokesman said yesterday.

Admiral Halsey's forces have run up a "fantastic" aerial box score within the past six days of 102 Jap planes shot down to but 15 United States aircraft lost in the area, he disclosed.

This seven-to-one ratio appeared to be so "unbelievable," the spokesman said, that many high Government officials hesitated to accept the figures until definitely verified. Until recently the ratio has been running 4 or 5 to 1 in our favor.

So far, he said, the Tokyo war lords have poured air reinforcements into the Rabaul area to replace their plane losses and also have continued to send down warships to fill the gaps left by our heavy blows against their naval forces.

These successful recent attacks, he added, must be forcing them seriously to consider giving up Rabaul as "too hot to handle."

The spokesman cited the "Armistice Day Message" our bombers delivered to the Japs in which 1 enemy light cruiser and 2 destroyers were sunk and 2 heavy cruisers, light cruiser and 8 destroyers were damaged. This blow followed closely even more damaging attacks.

Also cited was the destruction of 88 enemy planes in an abortive attack on an American aircraft carrier task force. Twenty-four of the Nip planes were destroyed in air combat and 64 were knocked down by antiaircraft barrage. These actions were those mentioned last Friday by Secretary of the Navy Knox in which the enemy air forces failed to make "even a dent" in the air defenses of our carrier force.

Abandonment of Rabaul would mean the first great break in the Japanese "outer perimeter" of defense—the chain of island bases which bar attacks at present on her inner defenses.

Allied possession of Rabaul, with its good harbor and airfields, would put us only 814 miles south of Truk—often called "Japan's Pearl Harbor." Enemy bases in the Gilbert and Marshall Islands, furthermore, would be outflanked and subject to attack from two directions—south and east. The southern Philippines would be then about 2000 miles from our advanced bases.

The Navy spokesman said that it is difficult to explain to the public the air combat box scores. New model American Navy planes, with greater armament, speed, protection, maneuverability and rate of climb, the great amount of operational training which our pilots and air crews receive before entering combat are responsible for the top-heavy scores, he said.

"No country," he declared, "has ever sent better trained, more thoroughly 'readied' pilots into combat than the United States."

The Navy also made public yesterday a compilation of the greatly exaggerated Japanese claims of sinking Allied vessels. Taking the "extreme claims of official communiques, Imperial Headquarters statements and of the government-controlled Domei," the Japs claim 349 United Nations warships sunk and 144 damaged.

These fantastic claims, the spokesman declared, probably are "just an all-around case of jitters."

The breakdown of the Jap claims by categories included:

Battleships—U. S., 11 sunk and 10 damaged; British and Dutch, 2 sunk and 2 damaged; unidentified, 13 sunk.

Carriers—U. S., 13 sunk and 6 damaged: British and Dutch, 1 sunk.

Cruisers—U. S., 40 sunk and 19 damaged: British and Dutch, 40 sunk; unidentified, 18 damaged.

Destroyers—U. S., 33 sunk and 19 damaged; British and Dutch, 12 sunk; unidentified 37 sunk and 12 damaged.

Submarines, U. S. 60 sunk; British and Dutch, 29 sunk; unidentified, 58 sunk and 58 damaged.

In contrast are the official Navy statistics of American warship losses—one battleship, 4 aircraft carriers, 9 cruisers, 39 destroyers and 14 submarines. Secretary Knox said Friday that all of our naval losses have been announced.

50th Mission By Fortress Sets Record

United States Bomber Station in England, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Flying Fortress "Knockout Dropper," successfully completing a raid on Norway today, became the first B-17 to complete 50 missions with the British-based Eighth Air Force in the war's toughest aerial theater.

The big bomber was piloted on its fiftieth mission by Lieut. John P. Manning, Minneapolis, Minn. It won an unofficial race with "Hell's Angels," which had been out 47 times on raids against Germany and occupied territory, and "S for Sugar," which made its 46th today.

The champion Fortress in her long ordeal over enemy territory put in a total of 300 combat hours, dropped 225,000 pounds of bombs, compared with 275 combat hours and about the same weight of bombs for "Hell's Angels."

Seventeen pilots guided the "Knockout Dropper" through her long list of missions, the toughest of which were two on Schweinfurt, two on Emden and one each on Stuttgart, Hamburg, Bremen and Hanover.

The fiftieth mission of the bomber was its second trip to Norway. The ship participated in the July 24 attack on Heroya.

The top three were among the earliest Fortresses to reach England.

During more than a year of combat, "Knockout Dropper" had her tail blown off once, her radio equipment destroyed and wings, windshields and elevators shot up, but a valiant ground crew always was able to get her back in shape to resume missions within a short time. In the process the ground crew installed 10 new engines, 40 oil coolers, 2000 spark plugs and numerous other parts.

"Hell's Angels," one of the most remarkable Fortresses in the theater, never has been in a hangar for battle damage, and never has had a crew member injured.

Jap General Dies

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Tokyo radio announced today in a domestic broadcast that Lieut. Gen. Nobumasa Tominaga, commander of a Japanese army corps on the "Southern Front," had died November 9 of illness contracted in the field.

Blood Flows as Unrest Mounts; Prisoners Slain

Bern, Nov. 16 (AP).—Bloody clashes between resistance groups and German forces in Lyon, France, and near Domodossola, Italy, were recounted today in Swiss press dispatches, while reports of Axis origin attributed part of the mounting tension in Rumania to the mysterious shooting of 10 German officers and soldiers.

The Germans used both planes and artillery against Italian Partisans and then carried out mass executions of prisoners, dispatches from Brigue to the newspaper La Suisse said.

La Suisse said the Italian Partisans attacked Novembe 15 and attempted to storm armories to secure munitions and guns. They also called on workers to leave their jobs. German and Fascist troops opened fire and the battle was on.

120 Casualties Reported

Three German planes were said to have bombed the Partisans for 40 minutes yesterday, and frontier reports fixed Partisan casualties at 120 killed and wounded and 200 captured. Fighting on both sides was said to have involved at least 2000 men.

Partisan wounded were removed from hospitals and with the prisoners were taken to a neighboring village and shot, La Suisse said. The bulk of Italians were said in the dispatches to have escaped to the north Italian hills.

Other Swiss dispatches told of an hour-long fight last night in the main square of Lyon in which nine French civilians were killed and more than 50 wounded, while German casualties amounted to one killed and dozens wounded.

Set Off By Bomb Blast

The clash started when the Germans emerged from a theater and two delayed action bombs exploded.

According to advices of Axis origin, the shooting of 10 Germans 10 days ago in Bucharest was followed by the German execution of two suspected "Jews" and the ordering of other executions.

It was reported the German representations made to Marshal Ion Antonescu, Rumanian chief of state, provided the real reason for tenseness in Bucharest, along with concern over the Russian advances.

Roosevelt, Jr., Is Awarded Silver Star and Purple Heart

Algiers, Nov. 16 (AP).—Lieut. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., third son of the President, received the Silver Star for gallantry and Purple Heart for wounds from Vice Admiral H. Kent Hewitt today during the presentation of 24 awards to 22 officers and men of the destroyer Mayrant.

Five other Silver Stars, two of the Legion of Merit, and 15 Purple Hearts were awarded as the outcome of repeated enemy aerial attacks on their ship during the Sicilian campaign.

The 29-year-old Roosevelt received the Silver Star for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity of action" in a raid on Palermo, August 1.

The citation said:

"Bombs struck a trainload of ammunition and other nearby storages of gasoline and explosives. When bomb fragments and flying shrapnel from exploding ammunition wounded two men on the bridge of the ship, partially amputating the leg of one of the men, Lieutenant Roosevelt quickly, effectively and with disregard for his own safety administered first aid and then during the heaviest part of the attack carried the more critically injured man down the ladders from the bridge to the nearest battle dressing station. This prompt and courageous action in the face of great danger to himself in all probability saved the life of the wounded man."

His purple heart was for a minor flesh wound on the shoulder from a flying piece of shrapnel.

In a separate ceremony Admiral Hewitt bestowed seven other Legion of Merit Medals to naval officers for their services in the African, Sicilian and Italian campaigns.

Recipients of Legion of Merit awards were Rear Admiral John L. Hall, jr., of Alexandria, Va., (second medal); Rear Admiral Specer S. Lewis of Calvert, Tex. (second medal) Commodore William A. Sullivan of New York City; Capt. Stephan R. Edson of Chevy Chase, Md.; Comdr. Julian M. Boit of Newport, R. I.; Comdr. Richard C. Steere of Chicago, Ill., and Chief Pay Clerk Hugh B. Hughes of Eastport, Md.

[Read Admiral John Lesslie Hall, jr., whose wife, Mrs. Beall Daingerfield Hall, lives at Hunting Terrace Apartments, Alexandria, Va., received his latest Legion of Merit for leading the task force at the Salerno landing in Italy. He received his first two months ago for "meritorious service as commander of a task force in the invasion of Sicily." He also holds the Distinguished Service Medal for outstanding work in the North African invasion.

[Captain Edson was promoted to captain in February of this year. His wife and six children, Stephen, James, Peter, Charles, Mary, and Alice, live at 6132 Western ave., Chevy Chase.—Editor's note.]

Royal Family Hears Irving Berlin Lead Songfest

London, Nov. 16 (AP).—With the King and Queen of England and the royal princesses in today's audience, Irving Berlin turned his all-soldier musical show, "This Is the Army," into an informal songfest.

The royal family, accompanied by Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, U.S. commander in the European war theater, was greeted by cheers from the audience, composed largely of American soldiers.

The show, which has been running a week, went off according to schedule until Berlin himself appeared and sang "Oh How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," his hit song from the first World War.

Berlin invited the audience to sing "My British Buddy" with him and before turning the show back to the cast he led in singing such of his hits as "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "White Christmas."

RAF Smashes Hard at Burma Rail Junction

New Delhi, Nov. 16 (AP).—RAF heavy and medium bombers teamed up for a strong smash at the Japanese railway junction at Pegu 46 miles northeast of Rangoon, in Burma last night, a communique said today, while more sharp patrol actions were reported on land in the Chin Hills area.

(A Reuters dispatch from Calcutta said an official announcement termed the blow on Pegu "the heaviest and most concentrated on Burma since the war in the East began."

(Successes in China were announced by the Chinese High Command, which declared that Chinese troops had broken through Japanese lines at many points south of the Yangtze River, and to the north had cut to the outskirts of Ichang and Tangyang, some 30 miles northeast of Ichang. Severe fighting continues near both towns, a war bulletin said.

(Hokow was retaken by the Chinese after fierce fighting, it continued, but Japanese forces broke into the town of Shihmen. In southern Hunan Province, the Chinese opening an attack on the rail city of Sinyang, about 200 miles north of Hankow, captured several strong points.)

Describing the raid on Pegu, an India joint war communique said bombs burst on the railway yards and started large fires. Fighter planes raided oil field installations at Nyaunghala on the Irrawaddy River yesterday and shot up 26 river craft, while fighter-bombers hit enemy positions in the Kalemyo area. No planes were lost.

The sense of an impending flare-up in Burma heightened with a declaration today by Brig. Gen. W. E. R. Covell that the China-Burma-India theater was one of the most important of the war, and might become the most important soon. He arrived to command the U. S. Army supply services in this theater.

German Internee Escapes

The escape of Karl Heinz Alfred Fengler, 27, a German alien, from an internment camp at Casselton, N. Dak., October 31, was disclosed yesterday by Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). He described Fengler as a "smooth talker who uses excellent English."

Giraud's Terms Held Too Stiff For De Gaulle

Algiers, Nov. 16 (AP).—The De Gaullist-controlled French Committee of National Liberation will not accept the conditions of Gen. Henri Giraud for remaining as commander in chief of French armed forces, a committee spokesman predicted today, adding that the elderly general had submitted his resignation six times in the last week.

"What would be the use of having a war minister?" the spokesman said, commenting on the general's conditions, which would give Giraud a free hand in running the French army and directing its military operations.

Giraud Sees Personal Rebuff

The spokesman said both American Minister Robert Murphy and British Representative Harold MacMillan had been urging Giraud to stay on despite last week's committee reshuffle which saw the ousting of the general and three of his appointees from the National Committee, leaving Gen. Charles de Gaulle as sole president.

Giraud was said to consider the shifts as a personal rebuff.

Giraud's conditions for remaining as commander in chief were not known exactly, but previously some De Gaullists had said these demands were accepted:

A formal statement of confidence in Giraud by the committee.

A free hand in French military operations for the commander in chief.

Agreement not to "purge" Army officers without Giraud's consent.

No appointment of new French generals without Giraud's consent.

The committee spokesman said he believed these conditions would render useless the war commissioner's post, now held by the De Gaullist Andre Letrocquer, a one-armed veteran of World War 1. The creation of such a post, filled by a civilian, had long been one of De Gaulle's principal objectives.

With Letrocquer as war commissioner, the De Gaullists expect to be able to reach officers whom they accuse of Vichy leanings and say Giraud is "protecting."

Murphy saw Giraud last night, and this morning members of Giraud's staff appeared confident that the conditions would be accepted, permitting the general to remain. The committee adopted a resolution of confidence during Saturday's session to fulfill the first condition.

District Woman Christens Ship

The Baltimore Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard launched its 243d Liberty ship, the S. S. James Carroll, yesterday with Mrs. G. S. H. Carroll of 2814 Rhode Island ave. ne. as sponsor.

Mrs. Carroll is the daughter-in-law of the man for whom the ship was named. He went to Cuba as a member of the yellow fever commission and allowed himself to be bitten in an experiment to establish the method of transmission of the fever.

Carroll, born in England in 1854, enlisted in the U. S. Army in 1874 as a hospital attendant. At one time he was assistant to the curator of the Army Medical Museum at Walter Reed Hospital. He died in 1907.

The vessel, tenth Liberty ship completed at the yard this month, required 28 days to build.

WAR PLANTS
Making Containers for Overseas Shipping have been forced to cut Production Schedules for lack of WASTE PAPER
Without your waste paper, mills cannot make enough overseas shipping containers. Without containers, the supply lines carrying food, medical supplies, and military equipment to the fighting fronts will fail to deliver on schedule. Today, the shortage of waste paper is so acute that many war plants making containers and other weapons of war have been unable to operate on full schedules. Some have had to cut down to 2 and 3 days operation per week. It is everyone's patriotic duty to relieve this shortage that affects every phase of the war effort!
Mills need an additional million tons this year. Save every scrap of waste paper to help win the scrap. Help America "deliver the goods" to the fighting fronts!

to hold down the cost of bread is in the offing. Monroney's plan would not permit the extension administrative leaders have signified they have in mind but, it is believed, would allow for a continuation of those already on the books—although some of these, particularly the dairy subsidy, may cost more than was anticipated.

Antisubsidy Congressmen won a victory yesterday when the House Rules Committee denied pleas for special procedure that would have opened the CCC legislation to any and all amendments. Representative Monroney admitted last night his proposal tying subsidies to the wage formula might run into a snag for that reason, but said he had hopes it would be admitted as germane.

Representative Steagall (Democrat) of Alabama, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, which reported out the CCC bill with the subsidy ban provision, declared before the Rules Committee yesterday "not a particle of politics" was involved in the measure.

"I think it is possible for Republicans to be right once in a while," he observed.

This was in reply to charges by Representative Patman (Democrat) of Texas that efforts to block the use of subsidies are "a Republican conspiracy."

Sharp Exchange on Floor

Patman touched off a sharp exchange on the floor later when he sought to put into the Congressional Record a radio speech he made charging the antisubsidy fight "is a diabolical Republican plot" and blamed it on House Minority Leader Joe Martin of Massachusetts. Representative Hoffman (Republican) of Michigan declared the Texan was trying to "divert attention from the mess into which the New Deal has plunged us."

Democratic leaders friendly to the subsidy expressed belief several Republicans would be on their side at voting time, placing some of their confidence on a compromise almost put through the Banking and Currency Committee by Representative Kunkel (Republican) of Pennsylvania to sanction use of subsidies for one more year.

Two days of debate will be permitted on the CCC bill, with the vote probably coming on Monday—as no meeting of the House is planned for Saturday.

The Senate Agriculture Committee meantime continued its hearings against the subsidies, its chairman Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina declaring the Administration's rollback of prices probably would bring a "political rolling back" in 1944.

Star subsidy foe before the group yesterday was Louis Bromfield, Pulitzer-prize author who turned "chicken farmer" in Ohio on his return to this country as war was beginning, after many years abroad. He said he viewed the controversy over Federal subsidies as a manifestation of a revolt against the "Germanic theory" that the citizen is the servant of the state.

"This theory conflicts with the principle of government which we inherited from England and France—that the state shall be the servant of the people. The revolt we are witnessing is a typically American revolt, cutting across political party lines," he declared.

Father Draft Bill To Delay Calls

conference measure gave the authority to the President, but the President was authorized to delegate this authority "to the Director of Selective Service only."

Subject to flexible conditions, the bill permits registrants whose draft is imminent to take a pre-induction physical examination upon request, when ordered by their local board "in accordance with schedules authorized by the Secretary of War, Secretary of Navy and Director of Selective Service."

Senator Majority Whip Lister Hill told newsmen the bill probably will not substantially cut down the 446,000 quota of fathers Selective Service originally set as their goal by January 1.

Only for Replacement

But as the program moves into next year, Hill predicted various provisions of the legislation will shake loose enough nonfather and 4-F timber to ease up on father inductions. He pointed out that the Army next year will be calling only enough men for replacement purposes.

House Military Chairman Andrew J. May predicted: "If carried out in the spirit and intent of Congress, the bill will simplify induction of military personnel and greatly relieve the necessity for inducting pre-Pearl Harbor fathers."

Van Nuys says he had received telephone calls proffering cooperation from several local retail dealers caught in the liquor price "squeeze" and might invite some to testify.

Nazi Youth Poses Postwar Problem, Hurban Says

The problem of the German youth is the most important facing the postwar world, Ambassador Vladimir Hurban of Czechoslovaki, yesterday told members of the Civitan Club at the Mayflower Hotel.

To reeducate the youth, Hurban suggested that every German must be convinced that his nation was decidedly and completely defeated and he must be shown why.

Nazi leaders and their assistants, Hurban declared, must be mercilessly exterminated, and without exception.

Vinson Warns Congress Against Raising Railroad Wages

mitting that wages are "frozen."

Vinson's statement drew a prompt retort from Donald Richberg, counsel for the railroad unions, who accused the stabilization director of making "unwarranted assertions."

Richberg stated that the nonoperating workers "are not seeking any special privilege, are not urging a breakdown of the Little Steel formula or any part of the stabilization act, but are asking that the Congress make clear the mandatory duty imposed upon the President and his appointees under the Stabilization Act to provide for, and not to prevent, the making of a wage adjustment necessary to correct gross inequities and to aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

Replies to Congress' Arguments

Vinson explained that he had approved an adjustment of 10 cents an hour for rail workers receiving 46 cents an hour, tapered to 4 cents for workers receiving 97 cents an hour or more—to eliminate substandard wage conditions and to adjust rates paid "interrelated job classifications," and thus "settled" the rail wage controversy.

"The question is whether Congress will unsettle it," he said.

He attempted to meet headon two congressional arguments for the resolution: (1) that the 8-cent proposal was incorporated in a collective bargaining agreement which was signed by both railroad management and labor and hence should not be upset, and (2) that refusal to accept the agreement does violence to the Railway Labor Act.

The stabilizer pointed out that the vast majority of requests for wage boosts are made by employers alone; that a smaller number are made by employers and unions jointly, and that a small minority represent disputes between labor and management.

He denied that the Railway Labor Act "has been suspended or altered," saying: "All that has happened is that the wage dispute procedure of the Railway Labor Act has been supplemented with the stabilization standards applicable to all."

"Congress has made no exceptions," he added.

"War is no time for each of us to devote his principal energies to improving his lot any more than war is the time for the Government to undertake a program directed toward obtaining a perfect relationship between all wages," Vinson said.

"OF COURSE, I go for this story. Its whole conception is entirely American. It has the flavor of those romantic days when the lumberjacks carved America from virgin forests . . . yet it is up-to-date as the problems young Jack Meade meets as he steps back into the out-dated town he'd left eight years before. Chaplain Tells of Crewmen's Spiritual Lift After Battle

By Robert Tate Allan

The spiritual reactions of the American destroyer Borie's crew after its victorious battle with a Nazi U-boat in the North Atlantic were related yesterday by Navy Chaplain Sheridan Watson Bell of the task force Carrier Card.

BELL

The chaplain, who aided the rescued crewmen when they were brought on the Card from the force destroyers Barry and Goff, said that one seaman was much concerned about losing his St. Christopher's medal, while another had held his rosary close to his breast while struggling in the icy waters.

Chaplain Bell, son-in-law of Representative Robert F. Rich of Pennsylvania, slept through the entire epic battle and was informed about it the following morning.

In an interview yesterday at the offices of the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains, he recalled that he had stood on the flight deck on a "foggy, rainy morning" and watched planes from his carrier sink the damaged hull of the Borie—with bombs.

The rescued officers and men of the Borie were "deeply touched" when the Borie finally disappeared from sight, he said, for "they had been a very close crew, most of them having been together for two years." The Borie and other ships of the task force have received a presidential unit citation for having sunk "more submarines than any team in naval history."

Because they feel he is a "member of the crew," the chaplain has been dubbed "Salty" by his "congregation" of three faiths on the Card.

The Carrier Card has been the first and only chaplaincy assignment of the 34-year-old former Columbus (Ohio) Methodist minister, who deems it a "distinct privilege" to serve on shipboard.

Life aboard ship, he says, "is so different from civilian life, because we are together 24 hours a day, and see each other in all moods."

One of his most moving experiences was the memorial services for the 27 lost Borie men on the Sunday after the sea battle. He conducted the services; Capt. Arnold J. Isbell of Washington, commander of the force, lauded the men's heroism; eight sailors fired three volleys and a bugler sounded taps.

and theory as between the various Government agencies, acting in the matter cannot relieve the Government either of responsibility or of pecuniary liability for the increased cost resulting from Government directives not reimbursed by current price adjustment."

The operators also asked Ickes to clarify provision of the contract with Lewis, which Ickes promised to do.

One operator pointed out that a new operator-miner wage agreement would relieve Ickes and the Government of liability growing out of the agreement he signed and permit the return of the mines to their owners.

The owners' statement was prepared for release to the press prior to the meeting with Ickes yesterday, but was not released after the meeting—possibly at Ickes' request.

mented until boundaries become clear and definite.

He made it plain, meanwhile, that determining such boundaries will not be dealt with by the signers of the Moscow agreement until the war is won and the fighting ended.

Lend-Lease Report

Meanwhile the Foreign Economic Administration announced yesterday that shipments of lend-lease goods to Soviet Russia amounted to $3,287,047,000 to the end of September.

Leo T. Crowley, FEA Administrator, reported $1,853,656,000 represented military items, $884,369,000 industrial materials, and $549,022,000 foodstuffs and agricultural products.

Noting that shipments were constantly increasing, Crowley said more than half the total aid to Russia was shipped during the first nine months of 1943.

Military items already shipped include 6,500 planes, 3,000 tanks, 125,000 submachine guns, 145,000 trucks, 25,000 jeeps, 200,000 field telephones, and 700,000 miles of field telephone wire.

Industrial shipments include 1,000,000 tons of steel, 300,000 tons of nonferrous metal, 300,000 tons of chemicals and explosives, 500,000 tons of petroleum products, and more than 17,000 machine tools.

Food shipments consisted largely of wheat, flour, meat, fats and oils, plus more than 10,000 tons of crop seed.

Big Decision Expected

London, Nov. 16 (AP).—Military and political decisions—surpassing those of the Moscow agreements—for a final victory drive in Europe in 1944, and to secure American-Russian-British postwar partnership for peace, are expected unofficially in London.

The expectation of historic new steps was heightened by reports from Washington and Vichy of a future conference of President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

Such a conference is expected to put fully in motion plans for a coordinated offensive to finish off Hitler in 1944, and place the final seal of approval on cooperation after the war for European settlements and to secure future peace.

Concert Scheduled

The United States Marine Band Symphony Orchestra will present a program next Wednesday at the Marine Barracks under the leadership of Capt. William F. Santelman, which will include classic selections from Rossini, Gershwin, Strauss and Wagner, it was announced yesterday.

Eire's Gratitude To US Emphasized

Dublin, Nov. 16 (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera told the Dail today that Eire never had forgotten the generosity of the United States, but that it was too much to ask her to show her gratitude "in the blood of her people."

He denounced James Dillon (Independent), who told the Dail last week that Eire should have helped the United Nations as Portugal did by offering the use of her bases.

Postwar Program For Rivers Approved

By the Associated Press

A 358 million dollar program of rivers and harbors improvements in the postwar period went over its first legislative hurdle yesterday.

Nearly 300 navigation and hydroelectric power projects were approved by the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, with the understanding that none would be constructed during the war, save a dozen or so recommended by the Army or Navy.

Tilly the Trolley and Billy the Bus travel dozens upon dozens of routes throughout the City and beyond into Maryland. Tilly and Billy with their 2,000 brothers and sisters cover more than 140,000 miles each weekday in order to carry one million and a half passengers. The high points are the two "rush" periods, morning and evening—our daily double.

Each Car or Bus trip requires a Time Schedule which takes into consideration transfer points, change of operators, variable spacing of vehicles with the rise and fall of the traffic tide, etc. The progress of Cars and Buses is recorded frequently at checking points, for it's just as bad to be ahead of schedule as behind. Unless they keep on a reasonable schedule, the timing of many patrons, other Buses and Cars may be upset. So when you help the Operator to get started without delay, you're helping yourself and neighbors all along the line on dozens of vehicles.

Having your fare ready when you board—dropping your dime or token in the box yourself (or showing weekly pass so Operator can see it) makes a difference. So does moving to the rear of a vehicle so that others may board more easily. Or when presenting a coin say, "Three tokens, please"—or "Six tokens, please"—or "Cash, please" . . . saves the Operator asking, "Cash or Tokens and how many?" A partly-filled Street Car or Bus today is like a partly-filled War Stamp Album or a partly-equipped Soldier. The least we can do on the home front is to help each do a FULL-time job.

Easing of Tension In Lebanon Awaited

London Sees Catroux's Arrival at Beirut Bringing Conciliatory Moves by French

By Richard G. Massock

London, Nov. 16 (AP).—Immediate French action to ease tension in the Middle East over the Lebanon tempest was predicted in London tonight after Gen. Georges Catroux, commissioner of state for the De Gaulle committee, reached Beirut with powers to settle the disturbances.

Catroux took charge of the situation following representations by the United States, as well as Britpresident, prime minister and legisain, over the arrest of the Lebanese lators who demanded immediate independence.

(Secretary Hull said in Washington the U. S. had taken up the situation with the French Committee for National Liberation. He declined to confirm reports that a strong protest had been lodged. Egypt and several other Near East governments appealed to the U. S. to act.)

Passing Incident

In Algiers, Gen. Charles de Gaulle told the French consultative assembly that events in the Syria area were "only a passing incident" which should not be allowed to disturb friendly relations with the Arab world or disrupt French unity with the Allies, especially Britain.

French quarters in London expected that remedial measures, urgently advised by the British, would be taken within 24 hours, starting probably with the release of arrested officials.

The recall of Jean Helleu, French high commissioner, was anticipated, particularly in view of his reported statement that the French committee ordered the action he took. His assertion contradicted the committee's statement—reiterated today by a De Gaulle representative—that he acted without knowledge of the committee in making the arrests and calling out troops.

To Repudiate Regime

The formation of a provisional Lebanese government under Emilie Edde likewise was expected to be repudiated by General Catroux since the De Gaullists disclaimed any official French indorsement.

Whether the French would reinstate the government and parliament which Helleu deposed were unanswered questions. Some French in a position to know said Catroux was prepared to offer the Lebanese liberal terms for the achievement of sovereignty by negotiation. They attempted to gain independence by unilateral modification of the Republic's constitution, and this action brought about the crisis.

Cairo dispatches said Lebanon was quiet but tense. A French communique said the situation was "returning to normal" with "no troubles in Lebanon."

Greater excitement was reported outside Lebanon in neighboring Arab countries. Student demonstrators thronged streets outside the main French headquarters in Cairo. The Iraq Senate was said to have wired Wendell Willkie asking his support "in the interests of democracy."

Bioff Made Himself a 'Partner,' Witness Says

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—William (Willie) Bioff, convicted labor racketeer, became a "partner" in the Rialto Theater in Chicago in 1935 simply by declaring himself one and subsequently collected $13,650, Nathaniel (Jack) Barger, operator of the theater, testified in Federal Court today.

Barger said the collecting was done by Frank Maritote, alias Frank Diamond, one of eight men on trial charged with conspiring to collect more than one million dollars from motion picture producers. The Government has described Maritote as a former member of the Al Capone gang.

Barger, a Government witness, told the jury this story:

Shortly after the Rialto opened in 1935 Bioff, then personal representative of George Browne, former head of the AFL International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, demanded $25,000 from Barger.

"I told him I did not have that much money and objected strenuously. I finally offered some kind of payment arrangement. Nothing came of it.

"Bioff said he would like to have one-half of me any time. He said I had money and did not have to cry poverty."

Several weeks later Bioff went to the Rialto and greeted Barger with:

"How's business, partner?"

"We discussed means of collecting some money, and I argued again and protested against the partnership he talked of and asked if I could pay his demands off monthly. He said that was impossible. I protested as strong as I could, to the extent that I would close the theater. He said that would do me no good, as I would not be able to operate anywhere."

Supply Purchase Policy Changed

To promote supply and reduce costs of food procurements for District institutions, new policy will be followed, Purchasing Officer Roland M. Brennan announced yesterday.

Under the plan bids for subsistence supplies will be solicited every two weeks instead of once a month, awards will be made on an aggregate basis for each group, deliveries will be restricted to two a week, and contractors will not have to enter into a formal contract with bond.

Brennan addressed representatives of local institutions who met to discuss conservation of food.

Official Soviet Paper Praises Hull Highly

Moscow, Nov. 16 (AP).—Izvestia, the official Soviet government newspaper, paid a striking tribute to U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull in a front-page editorial today and declared that the Russian people "highly appreciate" the aid given them by the United States and Britain in the war against Germany.

The newspaper, stressing the importance of decisions reached at the recent Moscow conference, said Hull had played "a particularly big role in the collaboration between the USSR and the USA." The editorial marked the tenth anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

"Soviet-American relations have had to pass through many experiences," the article continued, "but now it has become obvious that they have become more solidified and have become not only more significant for both countries, but for all the peoples of the world as well

The recent Moscow conference proved that cooperation between the United States, England and the USSR, which was consolidated in the course of war, has all the possibilities of becoming stronger as the basis of rapid achievement in the struggle against Hitlerite Germany and her satellites and as the basis for postwar cooperation of all large and small nations."

At only one point did the Izvestia editorial make what might be construed as a reference to an Allied "Second Front" in Europe, when it said: "The terms of victory will depend upon how soon and how completely this superiority (of the United Nations) is exerted upon the common enemy on the battlefield."

The editorial declared that American public opinion realizes very well the invaluable investment made by the Soviet Union and the Red army toward defeating the common enemy, and added that "the Soviet people highly appreciate the aid offered by our Allies, the United States and Great Britain, to the Red army in the struggle against Hitlerite Germany.'"

"Cooperation in battle," it said "has already brought about a tremendous advantage to the peoples of the two nations and to all the United Nations."

Hull Wires Molotov

(Secretary Hull, in a telegram to Russia's Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov on the tenth anniversary of American diplomatic recognition of the Soviet Union, said:

("I am happy to recall that 10 years ago a new period in the relations between the Soviet Union and the United States was inaugurated which has led to increased understanding and frier 'liness between our peoples and has provided the basis for today's collaboration and cooperation between our two countries.

("I am confident that in the coming months and years our recent conference at Moscow will be regarded as an historic step forward in Soviet-American relations and as the beginning of an era of closer collaboration among all free nations devoted to the principles of liberty and peace.")

Public Warned To Buy Wood by Cord, Coal by Ton

Citizens were warned yesterday to buy coal by weight and wood by the cord or fraction thereof to protect themselves against profiteering by small dealers who are selling in violation of the law.

G. T. Kennedy, superintendent of weights and measures and markets, said many small dealers are selling coal by the bushel, although this is illegal.

They are selling at prices ranging from 55 to 75 cents a bushel, he said, and are thus averaging as high as $23 for a ton of coal.

Wood is being sold in small bundles at high prices, according to Kennedy, so that dealers average as much as $52 a cord, although the top celling price on wood is $21 a full cord.

Julia says—
You Can Still Serve Salads
CRISP November days call for crisp and tasty salads! And they're so easy to make—just a few fresh vegetables and a bit of ingenuity, and you have a salad that perks up the whole meal and makes it rich in vitamins. For example:
Raw Vegetable Symphony
Mix together 1 cup each ground, shredded or chopped raw cauliflower, celery and carrots with 1 cup ground nut meats. Salt to taste. Mold by packing firmly in an individual custard cup. Turn out immediately on crisp lettuce leaves. Garnish with your favorite salad dressing to which 2 tbsps. lemon juice have been added and with ground nut meats or stuffed green olives. Serves 6-8.
Stuffed Cabbage Crown
For a buffet supper, hollow firm cabbage head with sharp pointed knife. Cut so edge is pointed. Fill cabbage shell with mixture of 1½ cups each of shredded cabbage, carrots, unpeeled red apples and a few raisins. Season to taste with salt and mix with your favorite salad dressing.
Mock Crab Salad
Pare and shred 2 cups raw parsnips. Add 2 tbsps. lemon juice and enough salad dressing to coat, immediately, so parsnips won't discolor. Add 1 cup diced celery, 1 onion finely minced and ¼ cup sliced stuffed or ripe olives. Salt to taste. Mix with dressing. Serve on lettuce cup with sliced hard-cooked egg garnish.
Wilted Lettuce
To bowl of torn lettuce or thinly sliced cabbage and grated carrots, gradually add hot mixture of the drippings of and 4 slices finely cut and fried bacon (or 2 tbsps. drippings alone), ¼ cup mild or diluted vinegar, 1 tsp. sugar, ½ tsp. dry mustard and salt and pepper to taste.
Waldorf Salad
Mix 1 cup each sliced celery and diced tart apples. Add few broken nut meats and raisins. Mix with mayonnaise. Blend thoroughly. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves. Serves 4.

U. S., Britain to Donate 80% of World Relief

By Philip G. Reed

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 16 (INS).—The United States and the British Empire are expected to contribute more than four-fifths of the two and a half billion dollar fund to be used for world relief and rehabilitation.

A fairly complete breakdown of the allocations which may be voted for the various United Nations was obtained tonight for the first time.

The United States, which is counted on to contribute one and a half billion dollars, or more than one-half of the total, probably will start the UNRRA treasury rolling with an original appropriation of not more than a third of that amount.

President Roosevelt is expected to ask Congress for about 500 million dollars, as a starter, shortly after the current council session adjourns.

UNRRA will not concern itself with permanent reconstruction of Europe or Asia. The money will be used for emergency food supplies, seeds, agricultural machinery and temporary housing simply to get the people started on the road back to normalcy.

Following is the tabulation of contribution (in millions) which the nations may be asked for:

Great Britain	320
Canada	90
Australia	40
South Africa	12
India	35
Latin America and Egypt	495

Exact contributions expected from each of the 19 participating countries of South and Central America and Egypt were still undetermined.

Brazil has spearheaded a sentiment among many South American nations that it is impossible to determine the national income of their country, upon which the tentative table is based. Prevailing Anglo-American opinion is that the assessments should be made on the basis of 1 per cent of the national income.

Brazil and some other nations without complete statistical services insist that the contributions should be determined on the basis of foreign trade with the nations to be aided. This formula is said to be doomed to a pigeon-hole in the face of Anglo-American opposition.

The allocations revealed tonight are based on the national income of each country for the fiscal year 1942-43 ending June 30, 1943.

The exact year to be used as a base has not yet been officially fixed.

United States income in 1942-43 fell considerably short of one hundred and fifty billion dollars. This would mean that the United States' share would actually be somewhere between one billion and one and a half billion.

But differences of opinion over the formula to be used has added weight to an authoritative theory that the actual amounts of money needed should be fixed first. After that each nation can attempt to reconcile its assessment on any pet formula it has in mind. The official UNRRA formula, however, will be built around the national income.

Blame Is Placed For Rabies Spread In 3 Counties

Itinerant laborers coming into Maryland and bringing their dogs with them was attributed as the cause of the recent increase in rabid dogs by Dr. Mark Welsh, former Maryland State veternian, yesterday.

Dr. Welsh's opinion was expressed through Dr. Charles H. Halliday, head of the department of communicable diseases of the State Department of Health, in a report that 200 persons in Montgomery, Prince Georges and Anne Arundel Counties had received Pasteur treatment for rabies.

Declaring that the condition was serious, but not out of hand, Dr. Halliday said that 64 cases of rabies had been reported in the three counties.

Dr. Halliday said that in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties, many owners of pets took the treatment as a preventive measure since they felt that their animals may have come in contact with stray dogs known to be rabid.

Cases of rabies also had been reported earlier in Baltimore, Kent and Cecil Counties, but the health department official said that they have now been "cleared up."

Appointment Approved

The Senate Banking Committee voted unanimously yesterday to recommend confirmation of the appointment of Robert K. McConnaughy to the Securities Exchange Commission. He will succeed Edmund Burke, who retired several months ago.

Soldier Knife Racket Bared; Relatives Victimized

"Back alley" machine shops are grinding sheath knives out of second-hand steel and selling them to relatives of soldiers in a black market at prices of $10 to $15, the War Production Board said yesterday.

The notion that knives make appropriate gifts for men in the armed forces has resulted in many small machinists making knives from old automobile bumpers, tire irons and other scrap steel, it was said.

Kinfolk of servicemen were advised meanwhile by the consumer durable goods division of WPB that soldiers don't need the knives anyway, because as soon as they reach a combat zone soldiers are issued a special knife by the Army designed and tested for fighting. The black market knives, WPB said, may have a bright polish outside but the steel used may have flaws all through it.

The idea that servicemen are in need of knives, a WPB spokesman said, originated more than a year ago when the Marines first landed in the Solomons. There was a temporary shortage of combat knives in the corps which was quickly remedied, the spokesman said.

An American serviceman who needs a knife today for some use other than combat, can purchase one at his Post Exchange, the WPB said, for a fraction of the amount being charged for inferior knives made illegally in this country.

Legitimate manufacturers of sheath-type knives which formerly sold for $2 or $3 long have been prohibited from making them except for the Army and Navy.

Charles A. Birch Renamed Head of Auxiliary Police

Charles A. Birch was reelected president of the Arlington County Auxiliary Police Force at its second annual birthday party held Monday night at the Ballston firemen's hall.

Other officers elected are W. W. Milan, vice president; Sam Floyd, secretary; Sol Cohen, treasurer, and H. W. Smith, sergeant at arms.

F. Freeland Chief, chief air-raid warden, commended the men on the manner in which they performed their duties during test air raids. He also extended birthday greetings. Other speakers were Clifton G. Stoneburner, civilian defense coordinator, who also commended members of the force for the manner in which they carried out their duties at all times.

Boy Who Sought To Derail Trains Is Committed

Elkridge, Md., Nov. 13 (AP).—One of two young Howard County brothers accused by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of attempting to derail trains was committed to St. Mary's Industrial School today while the other was placed on probation.

The FBI said the boys placed obstructions on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks between Elkridge and Hanover on several occasions.

Magistrate J. Lewis Thompson ordered the older boy, who is 13, committeed to St. Mary's. The other brother is 11 years old. Both lads were charged with being minors without proper care or guardianship.

Earlier, at a hearing before U.S. Commissioner James K. Cullen, the parents testified they were war-workers employed on the same shift, but that an 18-year-old daughter had been left in charge of the home. Cullen ordered the boys turned over to juvenile authorities.

Japs Warn Freed U. S. Internees Against Loose Talk on Home Soil

By Raymond P. Cronin

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 16 (AP).—There is great fear among the repatriates aboard the exchange ship Gripsholm that some irresponsible party might say something that would get back to Japan by radio and cause the Japanese military police to visit reprisals upon the heads of thousands of internees we left behind in China, the Philippines, Japan and elsewhere.

These fears are based on definite warnings given by Japanese officials as we left the camps for embarkation. One warning was given to me personally by A. Kodaki, Philippine chief of the Japanese External Affairs Department, and S. Kuroda, commander of the Santo Tomas camp at Manila where I was a prisoner more than 20 months. As chief censor of the camp, I was in close touch with Japanese administrative heads, talked to them frequently and even argued with them on certain points of the current war.

Kodaki is a career diplomat who served many years in England and India and headed missions to Washington. He had a sympathetic understanding of the problems of the internees, aiding them as much as possible, but hampered by certain conditions. Kuroda, a major Japanese businessman and head of a Nippon retail steel business before the war, also was sympathetic and helpful and trying his level best to improve the lot of the internees.

Cites War Shortages

Their helpfulness was limited by war demands. Kodaki and Kuroda, in a communication with me shortly before I left camp, paid a high compliment to the Associated Press. They said they would not try to tell me what I could write when I gained freedom because they knew that the Associated Press stuck to the truth and they could not ask more of me than the truth. I told them that irrespective of anything I intended to deal only with what I knew personally or had heard from reliable sources.

Kuroda then called attention to the possibility of reprisals against other internees in the event any repatriate sensationalized isolated incidents which Japanese authorities felt were exaggerated or untrue. Kodaki admitted that the Japanese made many mistakes in handling internees, but said they had tried to rectify them.

On the same day two Domei newsmen, two reporters for individual Japanese newspapers, a cameraman and two other men entered the camp to interview me in the presence of Kuroda. Since I was a bit hot under the collar at the time because of certain developments in the repatriation situation, I did not make good material for Japanese propagandists.

Repatriation System Assailed

For a time I thought my answers to their questions had blasted my chances of repatriation, but subsequent developments proved otherwise. Asked what I thought about the repatriation, I replied frankly that the Manila repatriate list had a certain odor. Kuroda intervened, asking what I meant, and I replied that certain deserving cases were ignored when substitutions were made for those who refused repatriation. The best Kuroda could do was to call my attention to one substitution—a man who requires a delicate operation to save his eyesight.

The Domei man then asked what mistakes the United States made in the Philippines. I replied we gave the Filipinos better health and sanitation, developed the highway system and mining properties, raised standards of living generally and intended to give them complete independence in 1946. The Japs changed the subject quickly and asked about camp life. I told them food was getting shorter every day, necessary medicines were lacking and the general mental state was deteriorating under long confinement of a people who enjoyed great freedom before the war. I deplored the internment of mothers, young babies, the aged and the infirm. The interview, apparently unsatisfactory, ended abruptly and the Japanese departed, wishing me a good journey homeward.

On the night of last September 24 Kodaki appeared before the internees and made a speech. He spoke of the lucky ones going home and the less lucky remaining and hoped that the former would not forget those staying behind. He told the latter, "Be patient; wait your turn." He hoped the day would soon come when all could say farewell to the camp. He said that the camp life was not nearly so pleaasnt as peacetime life, but insisted that it was best possible in the Manila region under existing circumstances. He said the whole world was suffering a shortage of daily necessities and that many were suffering more painfully from the calamities of war.

Thanks Internees

Expressing sincere thanks for the cooperation of internees with his staff, he added, "I can assure you our authorities concerned with your custody are always sincere in their desire to make your life as comfortable as possible. Indeed they must often struggle to overcome difficulties for your sake under circumstances that are beyond their control. Fundamentally, the treatment of internees is a matter of reciprocity and swings as good news or bad news concerning the treatment of our people in your own countries reaches our high authorities."

Referring to the substitutions he made on the repatriation list, Kadoaki said he selected the sick, aged and others who had rendered effective services to better mutual understanding between Japanese camp officials and internees. He asserted that prior to the war he had little understanding of American ways and had not accepted a diplomatic post in the United States because of our Exclusion Act.

He declared he had learned much about us in camp, was not now reluctant to take up a post in the United States and hoped to see us all again sometime.

Carnival Set Friday

Plant Counsel Contends Actress Adopted Boy

New London, Conn., Nov. 16 (AP). Documents which counsel for the estate of the late Commodore Morton Plant, steamship magnate, declared would show that Peter Bennett Plant was the adopted son of Movie Actress Constance Bennett and, not as she claimed, the natural son of the commodore's stepson, Philip M. Plant, were introduced in Superior Court today.

These included a separation agreement between Miss Bennett and Plant, in which, Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn asserted, Miss Bennett had stated there was no issue from their marriage; a divorce decree granted at Nice, France, in December, 1929; a petition for adoption filed by Miss Bennett in California in January, 1932; and an adoption decree granted Miss Bennett that month.

The boy's guardian ad litem, Attorney Francis F. McGuire, objected to the introduction of depositions taken in London on the grounds the U. S. vice consul in the British capital did not certify the reason for taking them.

He argued before Judge James E. Murphy that Connecticut statutes required stating of reason at the time the depositions are given, and therefore were not admissible as evidence.

He said he would also object that the 14-year-old principal in the case was not represented during the taking of the depositions.

McGuire declared he would prove Peter was entitled to share in distribution of a trust fund of between $500,000 and $600,000 established by the commodore for Philip.

The action is an appeal from Probate Judge Arthur P. Anderson's ruling in September, 1942, that the boy was adopted by Miss Bennett and was therefore not an heir and could not share in the estate.

Earlier Alcorn said he would show Peter was born in England, January 21, 1929, out of wedlock to one Sabina Armstrong and that he was later adopted by Miss Bennett.

Miss Bennett was unable to testify at today's hearing due to illness, but counsel said tonight she would attend tomorrow's session.

Red Cross Worker Quits

October War Spending Put at $7,105,000,000

Revised figures of the War Production Board yesterday fixed United States Government expenditures for war purposes during October at $7,105,000,000.

This is a decrease of 107 million dollars, or 1½ per cent, from September outlays. The figures cover war costs of every nature, even Army pay.

Helping a Widow to Carry On

The first months of widowhood are difficult enough without the added burden of having to settle an estate.

An Executor's duties require constant attention to many tasks about which most women know little or nothing. In many of those tasks inexperience may result in costly penalties and loss.

If the Second National serves as executor, the widow's confidence in our experienced management of the estate should make it much easier for her to adjust herself to new conditions.

"I haven't as much to sell... but more than ever to give!"

● When you're operating a service station these days, the accent is sure on SERVICE....to make cars last for the duration.

Of course, my station has always given bang-up service. But today, I don't have as much to sell.

But I still have plenty of service to give . . . and people drive in to get it. I work long hours, Gulflexing cars, changing oil, servicing spark plugs, tires, batteries, radiators, and air filters.

And the young fellow who used to help me isn't here any more.

Then I have a lot of paper work to do—like reporting my gasoline stocks, keeping close check of gas coupons, pasting them on gummed sheets.

Sometimes I get discouraged, I'll admit. But along comes a truck loaded with war supplies, and I get to thinking how important it is to keep the Home Front moving. And then I realize that the thousands of service station operators like me are the men America depends on to help keep the wheels rolling here at home.

So I'm staying here, giving the kind of service I've always been proud of . . . keeping cars in my neighborhood running.

That's my contribution to victory.

House 'Freshmen' Invite Landon to Speak

Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican nominee for President, was booked yesterday by House Republican "freshmen" to address them November 30.

The 60 first-term Republicans, organized into the "78 Club" (this being the Seventy-eighth Congress), heard Wendell Willkie at a dinner several weeks ago.

Some of the Republicans said Herbert Hoover may be invited to a later meeting and that other speakers may include all the party's potential standard bearers for 1944.

Meanwhile the Office of War Information was urged by Senator Lucas (Democrat) of Illinois, co-author of the servicemen's vote bill, to keep its short-wave sendings to troops in the foreign battle zones clear of political discussion until after next year's elections.

"I hope the OWI stays completely out of the campaign," Lucas said, in discussing Republican objections to some features of legislation to authorize absentee balloting by members of the armed forces.

Some Republicans expressed fear that if President Roosevelt seeks a fourth term his views as Commander in Chief would be more likely to reach the troops in the field than those of the opposition candidate.

Said Lucas:

"Of course, if there is a message of military value from the Commander in Chief to the troops, it should be carried, but I hope OWI will refrain from carrying anything at all that smacks of politics."

The bill, approved by the Elections Committee, would set up a bipartisan commission of four members appointed by the President to supervise balloting by the armed forces, the Merchant Marine, civilians attached to the armed forces and Government employes in foreign countries.

If the commission failed to agree on some point the Chief Justice would appoint an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court to settle the issue.

Los Angeles, Nov. 16 (AP).—John D. M. Hamilton, Philadelphia attorney and former Republican National Committee chairman, quoted Wendell Willkie in appraising GOP presidential prospects.

"Anyone who reads the polls knows that no man up to this time has captured the public imagination to the extent of as much as one-third of the vote," Hamilton said in an interview.

"In view of this, it may not be out of place to note that the public agrees with Mr. Willkie's often-repeated phrase of the last campaign—'There is no one indispensable man.'"

Asked to give his opinion on candidates, Hamilton said such an expression would be premature, but added:

"The Republican Party has the finest group of Governors it has ever had. Irrespective of their personal ambitions, they should all be considered upon their merits."

Wheeler Sees 3d Party Fighting Foreign Policy

Senator Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana predicted yesterday the creation of "a strong third party" in the event of a Republican-Democrat agreement on a foreign policy plank in next year's presidential campaign.

Commenting on a statement by Secretary of State Hull that he had been working to get the Nation's political leaders in agreement on foreign policy, Wheeler told reporters:

"It would undoubtedly mean a strong third party, one that is not only interested in preserving free enterprise in this country but wants to prevent this country's interests from being subordinated to the interests of any European and Asiatic power."

Agreeing with this view, Senator Reynolds (Democrat) of North Carolina declared that an agreement on less than an "America First" foreign policy would "foster a third party."

U. S. Must Have Postwar Policies to Spur Industry as in War, Dewey Says

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said tonight that the Government's postwar policies must create conditions under which private enterprise, spurred on by the profit motive, would undertake peacetime production with the same energy it devoted to war.

"Most of us are agreed that there must be a halt to the concentration of power in the National Government," he said in an address prepared for the New York Herald-Tribune forum at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. "That means we must stop leaning wholly upon the National Government.

"In the period ahead the States will be strong. They alone will have survived the war without overburdening debt. They express the vitality and resurgence of a free people. They are unafraid of the future. They are untrammeled by the weariness and defeatism that comes from the repeated fumbling of overcentralized Government which believed that this country was built to saturation in 1932."

Dewey said the Nation would be faced with a debt of 250 to 300 billion dollars, but declared that "130 million people can produce enormously and can consume enormously, provided the channels of production and consumption are kept free."

"One of the things we have learned in recent years is that magic formulas solve no problems," the Governor said. "A living standard is not created by laws, by honeyed words or by anything except the goods and services that are produced by the people of a Nation working in harmony and in productive peace."

A similar view that private enterprise alone could solve the problem of postwar employment was expressed by Lewis H. Brown, president of Johns-Manville Corp., who said that no amount of public works could provide the needed jobs.

"We need a new approach," Brown said, "to the problem of employment in the postwar world—a new philosophy of hope and courage—new methods to keep the economic machine operating at high levels of production and new men in high places who will bring cooperation instead of conflict to the solution of these problems that are so vital to the welfare of all people."

James Forrestal, Undersecretary of the Navy, suggested at the afternoon session that permanent management staffs be created for all major Government departments, possibly headed by a permanent undersecretary.

"It is my experience that in the Navy Department some kind of permanent civil servant, whether you call him a permanent undersecretary or not," he said, "would be of great value to that establishment, as well as to Congress and the Nation as a whole in affording continuity of knowledge which would be readily available to succeeding secretaries of the Navy."

Robert E. Sherwood, overseas director of the Office of War Information, said that the great question facing the country after the war was whether the spirit that was mobilized for victory would "remain mobilized for the tremendous tasks of peace."

"Or will we lapse," he asked, "into a state of plush-lined inertia and wait for other Hitlers or other Tojos to compel us at the point of a gun into heroic actions of which we now know we are capable?"

Mrs. Ogden Reid, vice president of the Herald Tribune, presided.

Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corp., and Chairman of the Committee for Economic Development, said the goal for the postwar period was between 55 and 58 million jobs, nine to 12 million more than in 1940.

"Only by producing more can we have more to divide," he said. "So to reach our goal of jobs we must increase our gross National output of goods and services approximately one-third above that of 1940. In that year the gross output was $98,000,000,000. Measured in the same kind of dollars our postwar objective is approximately 130 billion dollars.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who spoke on her trip to the South Pacific, said that the younger generation had been considered soft, but added "We are not going to find coming home to us a soft group of men."

She said that the postwar rehabilitation would "take planning and a world point of view" and declared that if the United States "makes the same mistakes we made before, we'll have another war in 10, 15, 20 years, just as surely as we sit here this afternoon."

Manuel Quezon, President of the Philippines, said in a paper read by an aide that "the security of both the United States and the Philippines, and perhaps the future peace of the Pacific" would depend on a close postwar relationship between the United States and his country.

When He Comes Back

by Carole Landis

I AM a woman waiting for the day he comes back. There are millions like me. We buy a hat . . . and wonder how he'll like it. We cook something he loves for dinner and sit alone eating it with a throat so tight we can hardly swallow. We have friends in and as we bid them good-bye at the door, we miss his strong arm around our shoulders.

For him . . . to bring him back . . . we buy bonds, do a war job. But one of the biggest jobs we can possibly do to bring him back a lot of us are falling down on! The government desperately needs our used cooking fats with which to make the glycerine essential for gunpowder, shells, bullets . . . as well as life-saving medicines.

The sulfa drugs that help him heal; the vaccines that protect him . . . these are made with glycerine. And one of the most important sources of glycerine now left to us is the American kitchen, where millions of pounds of fats are still being poured down the drain. Stop throwing away lives!

Start saving every drop of fat. No fat has been used too much or is too black to produce crystal-clear glycerine. One tablespoonful a day will help to bring him back sooner! Save your fats in any sort of tin can, not glass, and rush them to your meat dealer promptly! Start doing it today, won't you?

Industry is helping win the war... industry must help build a peacetime world

The will of our soldiers assures an unconditional surrender... The will of our people can assure a just and durable peace

Today the United Nations are joined in their determination to win a decisive victory. On every battle front and on every farm and in every production centre a singleness of purpose is speeding "unconditional surrender."

Tomorrow millions of soldiers and workers can have steady employment if they also unite with determination to bring about "a just and durable peace."

Prosperity can be realized only through the will of an informed and a united people. With their courage and their determination, the people's will to accomplish a righteous peace is irresistible.

People here, in common with people of other lands, can prosper materially and spiritually after the war ends—but only if now the peoples of the United Nations make loud their demands for "a just and durable peace."

Thousands of Volunteers Sought for Home Front Crisis

Efforts to relieve some of Washington's most pressing civilian problems—care of children of working mothers, fuller utilization of transportation facilities, recruitment of workers for war vital jobs and other home front needs—await the immediate enrollment of 10,000 to 12,000 volunteers for Civilian War Services.

"The crisis at home is deepening and we must guarantee there will be no breakdown during the crucial year to come," according to John J. Hasley, chairman of the board.

The end of this month is the deadline for volunteers who will operate under the "block" organization—one block leader to every 15 families.

The information booth in the main lobby of the Washington Gas Light Co. has been set up to make full information available to would-be volunteers. Full details also may be obtained at Executive 5440 or Civilian Service headquarters at F and 24th sts. nw.

Dupont Unit Honored

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, United States Army, chief of the protection branch, National Office of Civilian Defense, presented efficiency certificates yesterday afternoon at the Dupont Circle Building to the first fire guard unit that has completed training in this country.

The 12 volunteers, who received 20 hours of training at the OCD headquarters, will form a fire prevention and protective group at Dupont Circle. Maj. Gen. Grant commended them for their faithful interest as the first fire guard unit in training and expressed appreciation "for what you have done for the war effort and your country in time of need."

The graduates were sworn in as full-fledged fire guards by George E. Cox, deputy warden of the Dupont Circle area of the District OCD. Joseph W. Marshall instructed the first class and Boyde Harte, chief of the Dupont Circle fire guard, is teaching the second class, made up of 18 other employes.

Fire guards who received certificates include David L. Knox, James N. Kilb, Dr. Elwyn Mauck, Arthur Glover, C. F. James, John Wilson, Eugene Honegger, John J. Heimburger, Stafford R. Grady and Robert F. Howard.

Home Front Graduation

House Votes Rise in Funds For Veterans

By the Associated Press

Without a dissenting vote, the House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday legislation increasing monthly compensation of disabled war veterans and monthly payments to widows and children of veterans. The roll-call vote was 341 to 0.

The legislation provides for a flat increase of 15 per cent over present variable rates for service-incurred disabilities to veterans of the present war and the First World War.

It also increases by stated amounts, averaging about 20 per cent, the monthly rates of death compensation payable to widows and children of World War I veterans who die of disability not due to service but who have a service-connected disability at the time of their death. Rates for dependents of World War I veterans who died of service-connected disabilities were recently increased. Under the new bill these increases will also apply to dependents of veterans of the present war.

The House Veterans Committee recommended the bill as necessary to meet higher living costs. Chairman Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, estimated the additional cost at $24,773,000.

Urging its enactment, Rankin told the House the legislation would convince fighting men on all fronts that "they are not going to have to seek shelter in jails and poorhouses."

Maritime Legion Post

The first maritime post of the American Legion will enter the public scene tonight when officers of newly chartered United States Maritime Post No. 47 will be installed at the Department of Commerce auditorium at 8 p. m. today.

Speakers will include Senator Barbour (Republican) of New Jersey, Rear Admirals Emory S. Land and H. L. Vickery, chairman and vice chairman of the Maritime Commission, and Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs.

District Department Commander C. Francis McCarthy will install the post officers, headed by B. Eugene Gilbert, who will deliver the address of welcome.

6 Warworkers Killed, 20 Hurt In Va. Mine Depot Explosion

Yorktown, Va., Nov. 16 (AP).—High explosives scattered by a crushing blast which killed at least six civilian workers and injured 20 more at the Naval Mine Depot here early today posed a perilous problem for officials seeking to recover bodies and remove threats of additional explosions.

Thundering off in an explosives warehouse at 12:25 a. m., the detonation was felt over a wide area, roughly shaking from sleep thousands of Norfolk and Portsmouth residents 30 miles distant, and thousands more in communities of the Virginia peninsula.

Spawned by the blast, several fires raged for 90 minutes before they were extinguished by depot personnel. Belief that damage was extensive was voiced by Capt. R. D. Kirkpatrick, USN (retired), commanding officer, but he said no estimates could be made immediately.

Victims Are Listed

Presumed dead, officers said, were a white leading man laborer, J. F. Remine of Yorktown, and five Negro laborers, Robert A. Taliferro, Malachi Taliaferro, Leonard C. Brown and Charles Lucas, all of Lee Hall, and Harold Washington of Yorktown.

Possible additional explosions were prevented by Lieut. (J. G.) Kenneth Huff, USNR, 23, of Chicago, who disregarded injuries to his face and legs and raced inside a damaged explosive-filled warehouse to turn off steam pressure.

Pfc. Edward Thomas Kammerer, 20-year-old Marine guard of Jamaica, N. Y., who was standing some 200 yards from the warehouse where the explosion occurred, said the blast—"the loudest thing I ever heard"—was preceded by a reddish yellow flash which leaped from the warehouse "at least 200 feet in the air" and lighted up a wide area.

Kammerer said the explosion tossed him 10 feet into the air and tore the gloves off his hands. He escaped with an injured ear drum and "ran like hell" to turn in the first alarm. About 35 civilian workers, some bleeding from shrapnel wounds, ran toward him, the Marine related and he ordered them to lie flat on the ground "until we got a truck and sent them to the sick bay." Kammerer also helped move explosives from a loading platform to a truck and send them to a safer place.

The Marine told of seeing another warehouse—only 2 feet from him—split open on the sides from the concussion, and part of one wall topple outward, exposing the explosives stored within.

Army Seeks 1000 Women Dieticians

A goal of 1000 women dieticians to be appointed in the medical department of the Army Service Forces was announced yesterday by the War Department in an effort to meet the critical need in Army hospitals overseas and in this country for direction of the nutritional needs of the sick and wounded.

Requirements for dieticians, who will be given a relative rank of second lieutenant and the pay and privileges of Army officers, include a degree from an approved college with a major in foods and nutrition or institutional management.

Scorn Overweight Motor Oil this Winter of War

"The Lighter the oil the better"... Discover how very light, by changing to Winter OIL-PLATING

Have you ever been a new papa? Have you ever had to enlarge the hole in the nipple of baby's bottle? The hot milk, just about as fluid as anything, barely comes through. Far "skinnier" than small holes in nipples are many of the oil spaces in your car's engine. That's still true after it is middle-aged or beyond. Any oil...any oil...has a hard enough time coming through and spreading all around. Overweight oil—easily thickened by cold—is far worse. The lightest oil your engine can use this season is rightest. And you can know that light oil will more than stand the gaff when it includes the ability to give your engine internal OIL-PLATING.

Because a Winter change to Conoco Nth motor oil adds OIL-PLATING to engine parts, you can go your car's limit on lightness. Any good plating is a protective surface, and so is OIL-PLATING—attached all over your engine's insides, as if strongly "magnetized" there by a synthetic that's part of patented Conoco Nth. Now every moving part enveloped in its close-fastened OIL-PLATING must slide upon the rupture-resistant fluid film of Conoco Nth. Safety is multiplied!—though your economical Conoco Nth is so light that your battery, too, has every chance to outlive the Winter, and the War. OIL-PLATE at Your Conoco Mileage Merchant's—today. Continental Oil Co.

Dread Engine Acid Fought by OIL-PLATING

Normal combustion always leaves acids inside of your engine when it stops.

Formerly it seldom stood idle long. Soon mileage and speed heated your engine enough to oust acids.

But nowadays rationing may force long rests, while corrosive acids gnaw. To combat corrosion, metals are plated. You combat acid corrosion with your engine OIL-PLATED.

WILL THEY EARN THEIR SALT In Peacetime?

Machinery and machine tools have led a hard life during the past few years. They've been worked day and night, with little time for rest or preventive maintenance. War production has truly taken the best years of their lives.

How many of them can measure up, when we start analyzing their production in terms of unit cost, instead of in time? With new products, processes and materials which peacetime will bring, can the old machines continue to earn their salt?

That's something which every alert postwar planner must take into consideration, when he looks at his plant through the eyes of the future. To maintain present standards of wages and living, mechanical equipment must produce more per dollar of first cost, or we'll not be able to meet the keen competition of shrewd manufacturers, at home or abroad.

So, we suggest a detailed checkup of your present equipment, to ascertain what must be replaced as soon as new tools become available. Especially, we recommend an analysis of your lathes, which quite likely have been worked harder than most other tools.

If such a review indicates that new lathes will be needed, Monarch engineers can help you now to decide what you will need in the future. And you can be sure that then, as always, Monarch lathes will help you produce more goods for more people, at lower cost.

Optimist Club Hears Formula For Ending War

A justice of the United States Court of Appeals and a former professional baseball player collaborated yesterday to give the Optimist Club, at its weekly luncheon in the Mayflower, a formula for preventing recurrence of wars.

Justin Miller of the United States Court of Appeals for the District was the jurist, and the ballplayer, Bill Werber, who, according to fans, did a good third-base job for the Cincinnati Nationals in 1942, before he retired to go into the insurance business in Washington.

Justice Miller's contribution to the formula and the principal one, too, as he was the luncheon speaker, consisted of tolerance, understanding and leadership. Werber added his ingredient: Team work.

Half of October Donors Already Gave Their Blood

Almost half of the District Red Cross blood donors in October had already given at least a pint previously, the October report of the D. C. chapter released yesterday disclosed.

During the month there were 13,064 donors and 48.3 per cent had made previous contributions. Since May, 250 donors have received the red ribbon signifying eight donations per individual.

The total of relief expenditures was given as $10,268, and it was announced larger quarters and additional workers were urgently needed.

Production of garments reported was 10,922 items planned and cut and 12,497 knitted garments and sewed items were made by chapter volunteers.

WAC, Soldier Who Met Here Wed in England

The culmination of a romance which began in Washington more than two years ago occurred "somewhere in England" yesterday with the marriage of Warrant Officer Donald J. Fournier of Highland Park, Mich., and First Sergt. Dorothy Fields of the WAC's, according to word received here.

The couple were said to have met here in 1941 when Fournier was a combat engineer and stationed at Fort Belvoir and Miss Fields was a civilian working for the War Department here.

Gripsholm on Last Leg

Lieut. Col. Hero Dies; Served In Sicily

Lieut. Col. Andrew Hero 3d, 32, a graduate of West Point in the Class of 1932, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital.

Colonel Hero was the son of Maj. Gen. Andrew Hero 2d and the grandson of Gen. Andrew Hero, jr., both graduates of West Point. He had served with the American forces throughout the Sicilian campaign and had returned to this country August 10 to be attached to the General Staff here.

Colonel Hero was married to Miss Gertrude Faust, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. de Courcy Faust, in 1936. Besides his wife he is survived by two sons, Andrew Williams and Peter de Courcy, of 4647 Kenmore dr. nw., and two sisters, Mrs. T. G. Murrell of Arlington, Va., and Mrs. H. W. Bremmer of Durham, N. C.

Edwin King Slye

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. for Edwin King Slye, 51, who died in his home at 1616 W st. se., yesterday following a brief illness.

Born and raised in Washington, Slye was employed at the Navy Yard for several years, making his home with his widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Roberts Slye, and a sister, Miss Genevieve Alice Slye, an employe of the Bureau of Engraving nad Printing.

Services will be conducted at the V. L. Speare funeral home, 1009 H st. nw., whose directors, Harry L. and Freeman D. Slye, are related to the deceased man.

World Freedom Is Single Cause, McCarthy Says

Special Dispatch to The Post

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Leighton McCarthy, Canadian Ambassador to the United States, declared here today that Pan-Americanism will not be fully effective as an agency of peace unless it can cooperate effectively with whatever international agency is created to preserve peace.

Likewise, he declared, "no universal league for peace, whether on the Geneva model or otherwise," can hope to succeed "if it disregards, or is forced to disregard, regional associations or unions."

Speaking to the Canadian and Rotary Clubs here, the newly elevated Ambassador said:

"We have all come to see that no nation is sufficient unto itself, no continent and no hemisphere great enough in its own strength to maintain its freedom. We have all come to see that the cause of freedom in the world is a single cause; that neutrality has become a snare and isolation a delusion."

Chevy Chase Flier 1 of 8 Bailing Out Of Damaged Plane

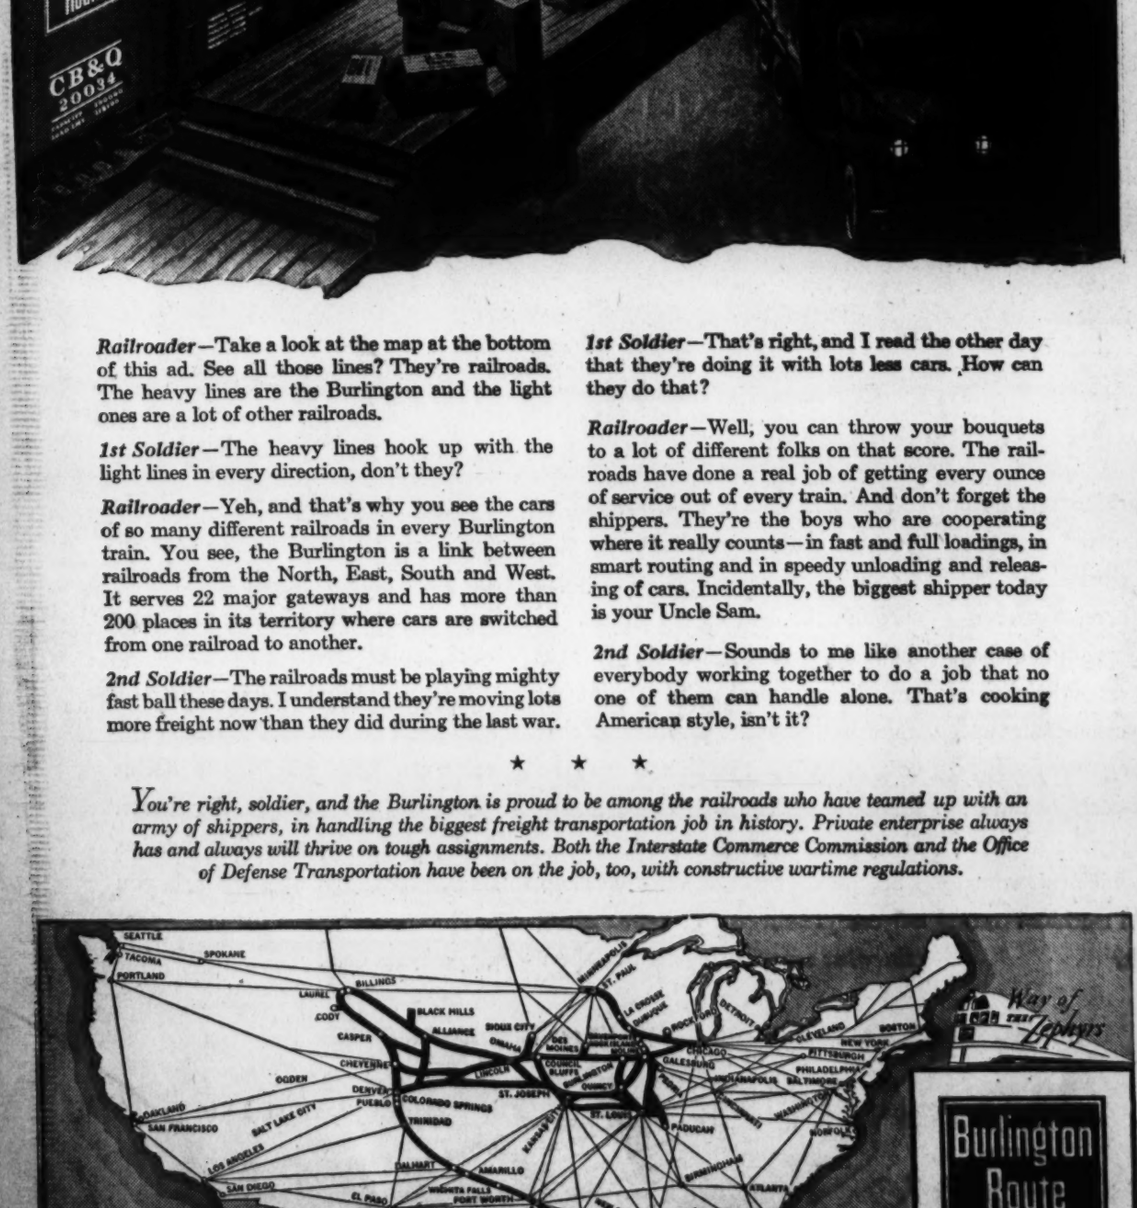
Staff Sergt. William J. Schultz, 410 Taylor st., Chevy Chase, Md., engineer of a Flying Fortress shot out of control by flak and enemy fighter fire, was one of eight crew members who bailed out as the plane returned from an attack on an Italian target.

The War Department said yesterday that the pilot and copilot made emergency repairs that held the ship aloft while Schultz and the others took to their parachutes. Despite the diving and bucking of the plane, the two officers, Lieuts. Charles R. Wardwell of Sackets, N. Y., and Ralph K. Campbell of Copper Hill, Tenn., were able to land safely at 160 miles an hour.

Sergeant Schultz, 23, a native of Montgomery County, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schultz of the Taylor st. address. Overseas since January 13, he was recently wounded in action and has received the Purple Heart decoration. Before entering the Army he was employed by the OPA.

WHAT WE WANT TO KNOW IS THIS . . . HOW DID ALL THESE CARS FROM DIFFERENT RAILROADS GET TOGETHER IN THIS ONE BURLINGTON TRAIN?

IN A GENERAL WAY, THE ANSWER IS COOPERATION... BUT TO BE MORE SPECIFIC...



Railroader—Take a look at the map at the bottom of this ad. See all those lines? They're railroads. The heavy lines are the Burlington and the light ones are a lot of other railroads.

1st Soldier—The heavy lines hook up with the light lines in every direction, don't they?

Railroader—Yeh, and that's why you see the cars of so many different railroads in every Burlington train. You see, the Burlington is a link between railroads from the North, East, South and West. It serves 22 major gateways and has more than 200 places in its territory where cars are switched from one railroad to another.

2nd Soldier—The railroads must be playing mighty fast ball these days. I understand they're moving lots more freight now than they did during the last war.

1st Soldier—That's right, and I read the other day that they're doing it with lots less cars. How can they do that?

Railroader—Well, you can throw your bouquets to a lot of different folks on that score. The railroads have done a real job of getting every ounce of service out of every train. And don't forget the shippers. They're the boys who are cooperating where it really counts—in fast and full loadings, in smart routing and in speedy unloading and releasing of cars. Incidentally, the biggest shipper today is your Uncle Sam.

2nd Soldier—Sounds to me like another case of everybody working together to do a job that no one of them can handle alone. That's cooking American style, isn't it?

You're right, soldier, and the Burlington is proud to be among the railroads who have teamed up with an army of shippers, in handling the biggest freight transportation job in history. Private enterprise always has and always will thrive on tough assignments. Both the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Office of Defense Transportation have been on the job, too, with constructive wartime regulations.

OWI Reports Chance of Wounded to Live Doubled in This War

By Walter Wood

More men are killed outright in the present war than in the last because of the greater destructive power of modern weapons, but the wounded man of World War II has about twice as much chance of coming out of battle alive as the casualty of World War I.

This was reported yesterday by the Office of War Information in the first comprehensive survey of the care of war wounded.

Treated Within an Hour

The Army has estimated that between 80 and 90 per cent of the wounded get first-aid treatment within an hour of being wounded. A member of the surgeon general's staff said, in the report.

"In the last war we brought the wounded to the hospital; in this war we are bringing the hospitals to the wounded."

Figures indicate the ratio of killed in action to battle casualties is twice as high in World War II as it was in 1917-18, but that the mortality rate among the wounded is only half that of the first world war.

Shock and infection, the great killers of the wounded in the AEF are being beaten today by blood plasma transfusions and the use of sulfa drugs, both the Army and Navy reported.

Main reasons for saving wounded today were given as:

1. Use of blood plasma to combat shock and hemorrhage.
2. Use of sulfa drugs to combat infection.
3. Mobility of medical services which insure prompt treatment.

Faster treatments and improved Army-Navy methods for attending the wounded are playing a major role in reducing the number of deaths from wounds, OWI said.

Army figures show that in the last war 13,691 of the 224,089 wounded died through 1919, or 6 per cent. In the present war, 1032 of the 29,219 reported wounded died, or 3.5 per cent.

Navy records show that 65 of 884 wounded died by the end of 1918, or 7.35 per cent, while in the present war 247 of the 7810 wounded had died up to August 31, 1943, or 3.16 per cent.

In the Marine Corps in the last war 1007 of the 7714 died by the end of 1918, or 12 per cent. In this war, 175 of the 5551 wounded had died up to August 31, 1943, or 3.15 per cent.

One soldier was killed by 1918 guns for every six wounded. The deadly power of weapons in this global war is indicated in records showing one soldier killed for every three wounded.

Navy records show a ratio of one killed to one-plus wounded (6076 killed and 7810 wounded from Pearl Harbor to August 31, 1943), which is twice the rate of World War I days.

Mental Cases Increase

World War II, a "longer and much tougher" war than the last, OWI reported, has resulted in an increase of about 20 per cent in the number of mental cases.

In the last war the rate of admission for mental cases in Army hospitals in the United States averaged about 30 per 1000 per year and slightly less than 20 per 1000 in the AEF.

In the present conflict, with men constantly on the offensive and fighting in the open, sometimes with only a foxhole or tree or mound for protection, the admissions rate for neuropsychiaric cases is about 50 per 1000 men in the United States and slightly higher in some overseas theaters.

On foreign fighting fronts hospital admissions for mental disorders among combat troops have been as high as 20 to 25 per cent of all casualties.

Causes of Breakdown

Fatigue, lack of food, fear, noise and the sight of wounded and dying comrades were given as common causes of breakdown in combat. Another factor contributing to nervous ailments, it was said, is that troops are kept in action for longer periods without relief.

Treatment of cases at the front, instead of removing them from combat zones, has been found more effective in curing metal ills, it was said, than the methods used to treat shell shock 25 years ago.

"The further the mentally disturbed soldier is removed from the combat area, the less likely are his chances for recovery and restoration to service," the report said.

From 50 to 70 per cent of the men given treatment at the front will recovery in five days, it was said.

Vandegrift in U. S.; Japs Report Him Killed in Action

San Francisco, Nov. 16 (AP).—There was new reason today to question the accuracy of the Tokyo radio.

Yesterday Lieut. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, in customary robust health and in fine spirits, told a press conference here he was "just in from the Solomons," and that "things are going very well on Bougainville," where he attacked the Japanese November 1.

Today Government radio monitors picked up this Tokyo broadcast, beamed to Canton and the South Seas:

"According to a New York international report it seemed as if in the Solomon zones, Vandegrift, commander of the U. S. Marines, was killed in action . . ."

Last Friday war correspondents accompanied Admiral William F. Halsey, South Pacifice fleet commander, on an inspection of Bougainville.

Of him the Tokyo broadcast today continued: ". . . and the commander, U. S. Navy, in South Pacific area, also is missing."

Soldier Killed, 3 Hurt In Auto Collision

Henderson, N. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—Pfc. Joe E. Chancey, 27, of Camp Mackall was killed and three other persons were injured, one critically, in an automobile collision on U. S. Highway No. 1 6 miles south of here early today.

In the car with Chancey were Pfc. James E. Wonders and his wife of Johnstown, Pa., who suffered only minor injuries. Wonders said he and his wife were picked up by Chancey in Washington last night. He said he was on his way back to Camp Davis.

In the other car were Galen Fox and his cousin, D. Ray Fox, both of Harrisonburg, Va. D. Ray Fox suffered a fractured skull and was reported in critical condition. Galen Fox suffered injuries to both knees.

NEARLY everyone has to give some consideration to dollars and cents.

THAT'S why we constantly mention, in our advertising, the fact that our service is very modestly priced, and is within the reach of ALL.

Charles E. Wilson

Not many of our wartime administrators have measured up to the assignments to which they have been called. But there will be no question about Charles E. Wilson, deputy chairman of the War Production Board, whose resignation is announced. If a poll were taken of the men who had done the best job in Washington, Mr. Wilson would be very high on the list. He had an unfortunate start. Solicited several times to come to Washington, he refused, thinking that he could do his duty in wartime better at home, which to Mr. Wilson is the presidency of the General Electric Company. At last the call came from the President himself. Still Mr. Wilson dallied, not for any lack of patriotism, but for want of a clear definition of his responsibilities. He thought he had obtained this definition, as so many administrators have, when he arrived in Washington. But he found only that he had been launched on a sea of troubles. The WPB was rent in interminable schisms arising out of a lack of internal organization; it was also buffeted by the continued assumption of superior powers over procurement and production by the procurement agencies of the armed services. Accordingly the welkin rang with conflict as Mr. Wilson sought to create the niche in the war effort in which he was supposed to fit.

A lesser man would have quit in disgust. But Mr. Wilson, unwilling to be a dollar a year man, had already severed his connections with the General Electric Company, and had enrolled as a salaried and conscientious employe of Uncle Sam. He intended to see it through even if he added to the ruckus. There was no doubt as to the outcome of any struggle over principle and organization in which the uncompromising General Electric head threw himself, no matter what pressure was brought to bear against him. Merely by opposing his troubles, he ended them. His position in the WPB was defined without question. He became Executive Vice Chairman of the WPB, or No. 2 to Mr. Nelson, who left him unmolested in running the organization. But Mr. Wilson came to Washington to be more than an office manager. As one of America's outstanding industrial expediters, he wanted a particular production problem to handle. He got two: escort vessels and aircraft. The former program, which had been in the Navy's hands, was belated in its inception and bedeviled by the acceptance of a number of types. Mr. Wilson in large part has been responsible for a miracle performance in both items, and he can go back to business life knowing that he has done more than his bit in our mighty struggle for survival. That knowledge to a man of Mr. Wilson's stamp is worth much more than acclaim.

Government And Press

From time to time on this page we have called attention to the virtual monopoly of news sources which the Government has obtained as the result of a total war. We have had something to say about the evident disposition of high Government officials to allow access to important news to certain favored journalists who, in return for such benefactions, can be counted upon to "slant" their news or commentaries in a way favorable to Government policies. We have noted the increasing tendency to test out popular reaction to certain contemplated measures or policies by the device of ballons d'essai launched through compliant correspondents or columnists. Meantime, we have observed with some apprehension how the concept of "psychological warfare" has led to the creation of vast bureaus of official propaganda directed and staffed by professionals.

It has been comforting to know that our apprehensions have been shared by other editors. Clearly the press in general is alive to the dangers implicit in this state of affairs. The evidence is that a special committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors has been at work on this problem and has just made public the text of the resolution it will present to the annual conference of the society when it meets here next January. The resolution, as drafted by Messrs. William Allen White, Wilbur Forrest and Erwin D. Canham, says that > . . . this society pledges such support as is within its power to further the principle of world-wide freedom of communications and of the press, and . . . we condemn the practice in any government of regarding the press as an instrument of government which thereby renders it a menace to enlightenment and future peace.

In our opinion this resolution would have been improved if its language were somewhat less generalized and if the committee had pointed it a little more toward the specific methods whereby the press may be converted into "an instrument of government." However, this is a weakness which we dare say will be corrected by revision of the document after it has been submitted to discussion. The principle contained in the resolution is certainly sound—and it is a principle which is of vital importance to preservation of freedom, as Americans have always understood that term.

Sick Industry

Secretary Ickes has now presented his bill for settling the coal controversy. He expects it to be paid out of the pockets of the public in the form of increased cost for every ton of anthracite burned in American homes this winter and every ton of bituminous coal consumed in American war plants. Mr. Ickes, it is reported, is not satisfied with the coal price increases proposed by OPA and has urged that they be enlarged in order to meet the increased costs occasioned by the agreement he signed with John L. Lewis.

This is by no means the first time that Mr. Ickes, once the great friend of the consumer, has besought price increases for industry. Not long ago he tried to raise the price of oil by 35 cents a barrel—only to be turned down by the resolution of Prentiss Brown and Fred Vinson. Mr. Ickes exhibits a commendable consistency of purpose. He is vitally interested in advancing the prosecution of the war and therefore is getting oil and coal produced. The trouble is that he does not seem to care how much he—or the public—pays to achieve these ends. To get coal mined he scrapped the principle that the Government should not bargain with men on strike against it. He appears to be no less willing to scrap the price stabilization policy.

In one way or another the Nation will have to pay for the additional labor costs which Mr. Ickes has imposed on the coal industry. If we do not pay for them through the higher price for coal he now seeks, then undoubtedly we shall have to pay for them through some sort of subsidy to the marginal mines. The latter alternative is certainly preferable. It is the method we pursue to encourage marginal production of copper. And the indisputable fact is that, under the system of computing travel time decreed by Mr. Ickes, a considerable number of coal mines will be unable to operate profitably.

Between them John Lewis and Harold Ickes have transformed coal production into a pretty sick industry. The miners remain aggrieved. The operators face the prospect of being forced to sign a contract wholly unsatisfactory to them—for Mr. Ickes has highhandedly told them, in apparent disregard of the Smith-Connally act and the President's directive, that he will not return their mines until they reach an agreement with John Lewis. And, to cap all this, it now looks as though the increased production of coal under the extended work week will amount to only 40 million tons a year—half the amount assumed by the WLB when it approved the new arrangement. That 40 million tons will not quite equal the quantity of coal lost through the summer and fall as a result of slowdowns and work stoppages. It looks as if Mr. Ickes's bargain may benefit nobody.

Subsidizing Babies

There is hardly any dispute that one of the most formidable problems of the United States throughout the remainder of the century will be that of population. Already the war and the manpower crises have served to emphasize some of the consequences of the declining birth rate of the 1920s and 1930s. To be sure, this decline seems lately to have been arrested and even reversed, as the result of the numerous war marriages. But there is not much doubt that it will presently be resumed. A mere comparison of the tendency in the United States with tendencies in Japan or in various other Asiatic countries shows at what a disadvantage we may be 20 years from now in this matter of manpower, especially in the age groups liable to military service.

The diminishing American birth rate is the result of a vast complex of factors, both economic and psychological. But one of them appears to be the vast increase in the cost of rearing children. This in turn is aggravated by the insistence of society on higher and higher living and educational standards. The net effect is to lengthen the period in which the child is wholly or largely supported by his parents and to delay the age of marriage beyond the years of maximum fertility. Other factors which have been enormously emphasized since the war have been the migrations from rural and semirural areas to great urban centers and the consequent inadequacy of housing, the entry of married women into full-time jobs in business, industry or Government service and, of course, ever-mounting costs of living and ever-increasing burdens of taxation.

In an article in the current number of the Atlantic Monthly Mr. F. Emerson Andrews of the Russell Sage Foundation proposes a remedy for these difficulties. He would have the state subsidize the rearing of children by regular payments from the general tax funds. The proposal in its general outline follows a similar proposal in the Beveridge Report. The allowances would continue until the sixteenth or eighteenth year, but would vary in amount according to the age of the child and also according to prevalent wage rates and living costs. The allowance would be paid to the mother, thereby, it seems, removing from the father any temptation to use it for beer or to stake it on a daily double. The allowance would not equal the cost of rearing the child, since Mr. Andrews is anxious that parents should not make it "a profitable business."

Mr. Andrews' proposal, however, raises a number of points which he leaves unanswered. The first is why previous efforts to encourage procreation by some form of state benefit or subsidy have in some cases failed, as in France, and in other cases, as in Italy, have apparently been successful. Another question is: How much control would the state demand over the subsequent lives of those whose rearing it has subsidized? Finally, there is the question whether the whole scheme would not tend to weaken rather than strengthen family life already weakened by numerous ideological, sociological and economic forces. Would not the state, after taking over the role of breadprovider, find it more efficient and economical to have the children reared and educated en masse in government creches, kindergartens or boarding schools, thereby reducing the role of the parents to that of mere breeding?

Disinherited Workers

All our discussions of wages are bedeviled by averages. An average is a figure most of the components of which lie above or below it. It tells us little or nothing about the individual case. To the individual, wages are personal. And he is likely to find cold comfort in the knowledge that a boost in the earnings of a number of other fellows has produced an increase in average wages—by which his own pocketbook happens to remain quite unaffected. We have heard so much of late about average pay gains among workers that we are inclined to forget the plight of the average worker who has not shared in these gains.

The fact is that there are a great many such workers. They include teachers and librarians and clerks and State, county and municipal employes of all sorts—in fact, the whole gamut of wage-earners who are euphemistically called white-collar workers and who enjoy some sort of professional or semiprofessional status. It is estimated that there are close to 15 million heads of families in these categories whose weekly earnings have not kept pace with the "average" increase—or for that matter with the rising cost of living. They are the prime victims of inflation.

They do not appear before the War Labor Board demanding pay raises because they are unorganized. They are unable to take advantage of the "little steel" formula to bring their incomes into parity with heightened living costs. Their pay envelopes are augmented only if their employers choose to augment them. The WLB cannot hear them because, as Chairman William H. Davis put it at a press conference the other day, "there are just too many individuals and not enough War Labor Board." Yet in numbers they exceed those organized workers in the manufacturing industries virtually all of whom have received wage increases amounting to 15 per cent to compensate for the rise in the cost of living above the level of January, 1941.

The situation of these white-collar workers illustrates how raggedly and unevenly the line against inflation has been held. It illustrates, too, how fatuous it is to counter increased living costs by increased wage rates. For every wage increase heightens the cost of living. The only equitable road to inflation control is to roll back living costs. This is the sole solution which can meet the problem of that great mass of forgotten wage earners who have been left behind in the scramble for illusory benefits. For them a vigorous counterattack on the cost of living is imperative.

Attack On Leros

Although only a very minor front in comparison with those in Italy and Russia, the fighting now going on in the Dodecanese is not without its importance. Certainly it would have been most useful to the Allies, particularly in view of the possibility of an invasion of the Balkans, had we been able to wrest those islands from the German grasp. Instead of that happening, however, the Allies have been forced to give up Cos and are now under pressure at Leros, where the stake is an important airfield and an even more valuable naval anchorage.

The dispatches from Cairo speak ominously of the British garrison on Leros being outnumbered by the enemy. The Germans landed a force on the island some time ago and have since been extending their control. Already they claim they have captured the island. If this is not yet true, it may very well become true before long. Loss of Leros would constitute only a minor victory for the Germans, of course, and only a minor defeat for the Allies. But the struggle in the Dodecanese does show that the Germans still have considerable fight left—that where they can and when they can they will fight back. It also proves once again the decisive importance of air power. The great handicap the Allies are under at Leros is that the Germans are within fighter range of that island and we are not.

THE HARVEST IS DEATH

Yesterday
I longed for spring with suppliant words and the willow obliged with green buds and the song of birds
. . . a prelude to April.

Today
the willow is withered and dry and the last nightingale has faded into the southern sky
. . . the harvest is death.

Tomorrow
the winds shall come then the gulls and I shall be happy for the winter's cold river where the white albatross lulls
. . . omen of gentle sleep.

But the April!
what became of April?
and tell me, was there ever a summer?

Poll-Tax Bill

By Mark Sullivan

Fundamental Issue

THE PRESENT status in the Senate of the proposal to outlaw the poll tax as a qualification for voting is this: The bill to abolish it by act of Congress was reported this week by the Senate Judiciary Committee to the Senate floor and can be called up at any time. Proponents of the measure say they will call it up soon. When called up it will lead to earnest debate. The issue affects the American structure of government more profoundly than any other proposal before this or any recent Congress. There is no call upon the American public more urgent than that this issue be understood, at a time when action upon it is imminent.

The poll tax, as a qualification for voting, is an exercise of the functions of State governments. So is every other qualification for voting, everywhere. Qualifications requiring that the voter must have lived in the State a certain length of time, that he must be a citizen, that if of alien birth he must have been naturalized a certain length of time, that he must be able to read and write—all these and every other one of the various qualifications in different States—all are prescribed by State governments. None are prescribed by the Federal Government at Washington. Fixing qualifications for voting is an exclusive function of the States. It is the most fundamental of their functions—for it is an attribute of their very existence as units of government.

THE PRESENT proposal would take part of this function away from the States. It would forbid any State to require payment of a poll tax as a requirement for voting in any election to choose Federal officials (President, Vice President, members of Congress).

If Congress should take this step, if it should enact the poll-tax bill, it would by that act establish a principle and a precedent. The principle and precedent would be that Congress has a right to determine voting qualifications, that Congress can override qualifications fixed by States. By that principle and precedent, if now established, Congress could change any voting qualification in any State. It could forbid any of the familiar qualifications now widely practiced, having to do with length of residence and the like. It would go further than merely forbid qualifications set up by the States—it could set up and enforce new qualifications of its own.

The proposal soon to be debated by the Senate is of concern not merely to the small number of States, eight, which still have the poll-tax requirement. It is of concern to every State, to every citizen. It is of the deepest possible concern to persons who have at heart the preservation of the American structure of government.

This proposal to take from the States part of a function now exercised exclusively by them, comes at a time when there is already serious anxiety about the extent to which the Federal Government, during the past few years, has intruded upon functions of the States. The extent of the Federal absorption of functions of government can be suggested by two figures. In the State of Ohio, all the functions of government exercised by the State are carried on by 22,000 State employes. But in the same State the number of Federal employes—exercising Federal functions of government and deriving their authority from Washington—is 90,000.

THE ISSUE here set [illegible] is so fundamental that no other aspect of the poll-tax measure is comparable. That the poll tax is undesirable is now generally conceded. Formerly practiced in many States, it is being gradually wiped out by the States themselves. It was wiped out by Florida in 1937, by Pennsylvania in 1933, by Louisiana in 1932, by Massachusetts in 1892. In two of the States still retaining it, Tennessee and Arkansas, active movements to repeal it are under way.

To help eliminate rancor from the coming debate, one point should be understood. Because there are large Negro populations in the eight States, all Southern, which still have the poll tax, it is frequently charged that the poll tax discriminates against Negroes. This impression is widespread and has been cultivated. The impression is utterly wrong. The poll tax applies to whites exactly the same as to Negroes. There are in some Southern States devices, especially as respects primary elections, which do discriminate against Negroes. But the poll tax makes no such discrimination. Argument against it can fairly be based on many grounds—but not on the grounds of discrimination between whites and Negroes. In the coming debate, there is no more occasion to use the word Negro than to use the word Swede, or Italian or Greek.

Conflicting Reports

In one column on the front page of today's Washington Post appears Secretary Knox's declaration that the Allies have gained air domination in all the active theaters of war in the Pacific and Europe, including Germany and Russia.

In the next column appears a statement signed by Gen. George V. Strong, Acting Chief of the Military Intelligence Division, that the Germans are stronger now than in 1939 and that the fight against the Japanese is only just starting.

So apparently the greater the number of those brilliant victories, with accounts of which we are daily favored, the further off we are from winning or ending the war.

Inflation And War

By Paul Schubert

Cost And Payment

"AMERICANS," said a New York editor the other day, "have never learned to dread inflation. They do dread depression. If they could see the connection between the two, Washington would be less tempted up the inflationary spiral."

Inflation today—depression tomorrow.

As sure as death and taxes.

Boost wages—give ground to the powerful union pressure groups—and you take the first step toward guaranteeing the future unemployment of those same workers.

Europeans acquired a healthy fear of war after the World War of 1914-1918, though this fear wasn't strong enough to inhibit another great war only two decades later.

The really powerful dread which survived the 1914-1918 era in Europe was the dread of inflation. Mention of that word sets European eyes to rolling, hands to gesticulating. . . . "God forbid another inflation."

INFLATION SEEMS to promise gain, all along the line.

Why not give pay boosts? After all, any man deserves all the money he can get his hooks on—good pay, that's the American way. And anyway, the more pay, the more taxes we'll collect, and we need taxes, gosh how we need 'em! Anything to help build up the '44 income needed by the Treasury—

Of course, more pay will mean a rise in the cost of this and that, but we'll make out. The public can stand a little boost here and there. There's lot's of money around—

Money . . . rubber money.

The amount of work a man can do in an honest working day is a reasonable constant. It has increased steadily for several generations, thanks to the introduction of machine tools. This increase in the productive capacity of the individual is responsible for the increase in earnings by the average citizen who works with his hands (plus tools). Wage disputes have been prompted by the desire to share increased earnings made possible by more efficient tools.

If uncontrolled, prices adjust themselves in accordance with "supply and demand."

Human nature being what it is, no one has ever completely succeeded in controlling either wages or prices under conditions of acute shortage. The present "black market" in this country is eloquent testimony to the lawlessness created by greed.

SHORTAGES SET inflationary forces at work. Manpower shortage boosts the value of an honest day's production. One of my neighbors who bought a new house, wanted to move 10 tons of coal from his old cellar into the new cellar five miles away. When the coal companies refused the job, he got three factory workers to do it on a Sunday (using a borrowed truck)—but they insisted on being paid their factory wage plus Sunday overtime: $1.50 an hour, per man. Which he paid gladly, since he was on the spot.

Why fear the inflationary spiral?

After all, we can always check the rise.

"That's right, provided things go well—go the way we would like them to.

Inflation becomes tragedy when things go wrong, as they so often do in human life. Then, suddenly, for that day's labor, which remains a constant, pay leaps to $1000 . . . $2000—your life savings of $10,000 isn't enough to hire a painter to give your house a coat of paint.

True, you may be earning $5000 a day yourself. You're "rich" too. The country has merely lost its accumulated wealth—its credit . . . and foreigners with stable exchange come in to buy up your treasures for a song, as we went to France and Germany and Austria in the twenties . . .

It can't happen to us?

Anything can happen, to anybody. And people who have ever seen the workings of inflation at first hand dread it as the most dreadful calamity of all—far worse than depression, which is only one of inflation's offspring.

The Austrian schilling, a coin normally worth 14c in our money, was imprinted with the figure 1000. That stood for 1000 krone—the former value of the crown was 20c. The 14c schilling a tip for a porter, represented $200 of preinflation money, a loss of $199.86 on every coin. That's inflation.

General Strong's Diagnosis

Gen. George V. Strong asserts portentously that the Nazis are stronger than in 1939. This may or may not be true, but, in any case, there is a grim irony in the use of 1939 as a point of reference in diagnosing Germany's current staying power. This analogy constitutes a sad commentary on how far our understanding has had to come to get in step with reality. For in deceptive 1939 we were all thinking of Germany as no match for France and Britain, not to mention the United States. Poland was going to hold out for six months.

However effective it may be in dissipating overconfidence, the 1939 analogy is wholly discredited as a basis for judging Germany's present ability to resist. This yardstick does not take into account the astronomical growth since 1939 of Germany's enemies in strength and number. Germany is not fighting an enemy of 1939 proportions.

The necessity of combating undue public optimism regarding the progress of the war is fully appreciated. General Strong's utterance, however, is apt to engender in some minds an undue pessimism, for, in speaking of Germany's strengths without reference to her counterbalancing weaknesses, he fails to put these dubious strengths in their proper perspective. For the sake of an accurate picture, therefore, certain grave weaknesses passed over by the general should be tallied against those characteristics represented as strengths.

To begin with, the 300 well-trained divisions cited as a powerful force, it should be mentioned, are about all that Hitler has left, and these irreplaceables are being gradually whittled down in Russia. Hitler has scraped the bottom of the manpower barrel. Two of his opponents, on the other hand, the U. S. and Russia, have substantial, untapped reserves of manpower.

The 35,000,000 workers in Germany's essential industry are, admittedly, a large labor force. But the number gives no accurate index to the quantity of material produced, since the productivity of these workers must have been seriously impaired as a result of the fatigue from the long hours on the job, the inadequate housing, inadequate clothing, the loss of sleep through air raids, the improper diet (lack of vitamins, fats and oils), and the "go-slow" policy of the slave labor.

It should also be pointed out that besides fighting an external enemy several times her size, Germany, a country of 80 millions, has the additional strain of holding in subjection a discontented, rebellious slave population of 225 millions.

Another week link in the Nazi war economy is the snarled, overburdened transportation system. Breakdowns are increasingly frequent. The obsolete condition of much of Germany's rolling stock, and her inability to make adequate replacements, are retarding delivery of raw materials to the processing plants and delivery of the finished goods to the front lines.

By almost any criterion Germany's raw material position must be judged precarious, if not indeed critical. The large stocks accumulated prior to 1939 are nearing exhaustion, and the nation has been excluded from access to such necessary things as tin, natural rubber, quinine, platinum, and industrial diamonds.

Consider aluminum, for instance, the one thing in which Germany is thought to be relatively well supplied. This important item is extracted from bauxite, found for the most part on the fringe of Europe, in areas that may be shortly liberated. The light-metals industry is, therefore, highly vulnerable.

The position in steel was described as excellent; yet half of Germany's high-grade, nonphosphoric iron ore comes from Sweden, a wavering neutral who leans increasingly toward the Allied fold. Nor was it indicated that manganese, without which steel cannot be made, is dangerously short, especially so since the loss of the Nikopol supplies. The Boches are now principally dependent on low-grade, limited supplies of domestic manganese. This handicap will ultimately be reflected in a lower quality of munitions produced. Hitler's ferro-alloy position is equally threatened, with supplies originating mainly in the outlying areas. Tungsten comes from Portugal and Spain, nickel from Finland, molybdenum from Norway, and the only good quality chrome from Turkey. Any one or all of these areas may soon be rendered inaccessible.

As to oil, the Reich may have enough at the moment, but in view of the nearness of the Russians to Rumania, the outlook for Jerry is anything but bright. Similarly, it is hard to see how General Strong could view 202,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually as putting Germany in a safe position. This amount seems like precious little with which to meet the combined might of the United Nations, inasmuch as the United States alone consumes three to four times this much.

Contrary to the possible inference from General Strong's statement, namely, that the Nazis are adequately supplied with certain basic materials, Germany is known not to be comfortably situated in anything, her universal shortage being a question of degree rather than of fact.

General Strong's remarks again demonstrate the extremely conservative position taken by the Army as to the probable length of the war.

There are certainly no grounds for complacency. At the same time neither is there any reason for not suspecting that Hitler's machine may crack within the next 6 to 12 months. Even Churchill has admitted this probability.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Thoughts On The Liquor Situation

There is a prospect of a tax of from $8 to $10 a gallon on liquor, meaning something like 12 cents a drink. You may soon be forced to buying highballs on the time-payment plan.

We can imagine this coming over the radio any day: "Do you often say 'My friends all buy a drink occasionally and I can't help asking myself why I, too, can't enjoy the little luxuries of life?' You can. Phone or write the Smiling Finance Company at once! It can arrange things so it will cost you less than a dollar a week to carry a scotch highball."

We can already see a Convivial Soul standing at a bar with a Planter's Punch and saying, "Think of it! Four more payments and I own it outright!"

Liquor is already as expensive as during prohibition days and harder to get. Drinking is getting more and more to constitute an exploit in the higher brackets. Every day you hear people say, "There's one thing about liquor, it's as good as money."

We heard of a statement recently that a man had left a large estate in particularly excellent shape "because he left practically no cash; everything was in bottles."

In time of war when high taxes are a desperate need there is no better place to put them than on liquor, perhaps, but nevertheless we anticipate the early appearance of some political demagogue who will get a lot of political backing by launching a Share-the-Jug Movement.

He might outdo the late Huey Long by denunciation of everybody with enough money to be a Steady Drinker.

Ultimately Washington may take over the saloons on a broad humanitarian program to see that the under-pickled classes get their share of whisky, gin and beer.

We may even see a National Drink Director.

With an F. T. A. A. (Federal Thirst Arbitration Administration).

The Office Punster goes so far as to predict a Federal Sousing Corporation.

It really is no joking matter. Liquor is becoming so valuable it may be necessary to keep it in banks. You may have to go to the First National for a cocktail hour.

"What'll you have?" could become part of our financial language on a par with "What do you think is a good long-term investment?"

Elmer Twitchell, the well-known rye and Scotch fancier, is especially depressed. "It's gonna be awful," he said today, "to be standing with a highball in our hand and have the bartender call for more margin."

Revenge at Last

All-Out Arlene says that what lets the girls in uniform down this time of year is the realization that now the boys back home can send them neckties for Christmas.

We know an author who has a musical show that is so bad five producers want it to make a Broadway killing.

Liquor is getting so scarce that, according to Elmer Twitchell, some places are taking orders for drinks six weeks in advance.

Washington now proposes a tax on horse race betting. It may reflect a conclusion at last that it will take wild horses to pull this country out of debt.

The Garble Sisters aren't sure whether Stalin has broken through Marigny and taken Nassau or whether Sir Harry Kiev has crossed the Lonergon and is now a threat to the whole Bahamas fingerprint area.

The jury which acquitted Marigny voted unanimously for his deportation from the Bahamas. It didn't say whether it favored Hollywood or Fire Island.

It was evidently the idea of the jury that either Marigny or Nassau would have to go.

We understand Marigny has refused to quit the Bahamas until he has seen the movies of the trial.

Foolish Gesture

The public relations section of the War Department and our newspapers must be running short of worth-while material to justify their existence when they seize upon the occasion of an old dying dog and his soldier master to squeeze dry tears out of the public. I am and have been a dog owner for the past 30 years and I admire people who show sympathy for dumb animals, but for the life of me I cannot see any justification for the amount of publicity given Soldier Higgins and his dog.

I know of many wives and mothers of men in the service whose husbands and sons are less than 1500 miles away who would give their eyeteeth for a chance to have their loved ones home on a furlough for three or four days, but no soap. Some of them, I am afraid, will take the cue and start adopting old cats and dogs in the hope that one of them might get sick soon.

Republican Party

By Ernest Lindley

Unwilling To Fight Inflation

TRADITIONALLY THE Republican Party has regarded itself as the party of "sound money." It will present itself to the Nation next year as the party which knows how to manage the domestic economy of the United States.

What does the recent record show? It shows the Republicans in Congress aligning themselves overwhelmingly against effective controls over inflation. It shows them voting in large majority for measures which would force up the cost of living and which hold the danger of a serious, possibly uncontrollable, inflation. It shows them ducking the tax problems while voting to increase the cost of the war and the weight of the National debt.

Not many are likely to be deceived by the efforts of some of them to dramatize "economies." Of course, all unnecessary expenditures should be eliminated. They mean the use of manpower and perhaps of materials which should be employed for more essential purposes. But in the aggregate they amount to practically nothing, relative to the cost of the war. A small increase in the price level would wipe out these trival savings. Some of the Senators and Representatives who occupy themselves with these small matters know they are dodging the main issues. If they don't, they surely cannot be considered competent to manage the national economy in war or in peace.

LINDLEY

THIS IS NOT intended to be a partisan attack. It applies also to some of the Democrats on the Hill. Nor is it intended to excuse the delays, weaknesses and mistakes of the Administration in dealing with inflation and related domestic problems. The Administration's record in this respect has not been good. In many respects, as this column has sought to bring out on numerous occasions, it has been mad. But faulty as it has been, the Administration's program has been more comprehensive and stronger than any other which has been able to muster more than a scattering of political support. The Administration has been willing to make a fight. That fact cannot be obscured by the misdirected Treasury tax recommendations or by the blunders in the handling of the coal dispute.

For a year and a half the large picture has been this: the Administration, on the whole, attempting to control inflation, in the face of strenuous and growing opposition from Congress, and especially from the Republican Party. Both the Administration and Congress have been subjected to heavy inflationary pressures from special interests. The Administration has given ground but, compared to Congress and especially to the Republican Party in Congress, it has been a rock. The Administration has sought to dramatize the issue, to educate the public to the dangers of inflation. The Republican leadership has not. No amount of criticism of the Administration's omissions and weaknesses can obscure this revealing and fundamental fact.

The easy way for the hand-to-mouth politician is to ride with the inflationary pressures. The politician may know enough elementary economics to know that the increase which he helps the farmer or the wage-earner to get will be illusory, and that both of them may be even worse off as a result. But it is easier to be accommodating than to explain to lobbyists why they are chasing will-o'-the-wisps.

IT TAKES courage to try to sit on the lid, to turn down demands and claims on all sides, to ignore political threats. It takes some capacity to look ahead and a sense of responsibility for the welfare of the Nation as a whole. No group of men who lack these qualities can be considered capable of governing well.

This failure in the Republican Party is not confined to Congress. The Republican Governors have stood aside or remained silent. And where does Wendell Willkie stand? Mr. Willkie has accomplished so much in readjusting the thinking of the Republican Party on international questions that it would be unfair to ask him to do more if he were not a candidate for the Republican nomination for President. The silence of the Republican Governors is politically understandable. It is not their fight directly. And yet it is, in the same way that the resolution adopted at Mackinac was their fight. There are too many able and promising men among the Republican Governors to attribute their silence to ignorance of the importance of the inflation problem.

It is hard to see how Wendell Willkie, the Republican Governors, the Republican Senators and Congressmen, can either work for inflation or duck the issue and still claim either the knowledge or the courage necessary to take control of the National Government. The inflation problem won't wait. If the Republican Party has leadership on the domestic side comparable to Willkie's on foreign policy, now is the time for it to show itself.

U.S. Bonds 'Ad' Bill Attacked in Senate As 'Dangerous'

A proposal to spend 25 to 30 million dollars of Federal funds annually for advertising of war bonds was attacked in the Senate yesterday as setting a "dangerous" precedent and as putting a price on patriotism.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat) of Alabama, author of the bill, countered with the argument that it would permit vast improvement over present war bond advertising which he contended amounts in part to Government subsidy of big businesses which advertise bonds heavily in large newspapers and then are able to claim income tax deduction of much of the cost as a business item.

"If we start this there'll be no end to it," Senator Overton (Democrat) of Louisiana declared. He contended that payments for newspaper advertising would lead to demands for similar advertising via radio and other means, and that the bill constituted the first call "for pay for patriotism."

Similar criticism was voiced by Senator Maloney (Democrat) of Connecticut.

Lincoln Citizens Oppose District Suffrage Bill

Opposition to the pending District suffrage bill in Congress and the granting of any more money for public housing in either the District or adjacent territory was Monday by the Lincoln Park Citizens Association.

The association also voted to inquire as to why motion picture houses should still be permitted to use a large quantity of lights and current in outside displays when, they said, a power shortage was impending.

A joint meeting with the other associations in the Northeast and Southeast sections will be held in January after the Lincoln Park group voted to postpone their December session.

The Gallup Poll . . .

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 16.—Impact of the war on public opinion is shown, not only by the change in the public's attitude toward active United States participation in world affairs, but by the readiness today to reverse its former opposition to compulsory military service in peace years and support the proposal of the chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee.

Chairman May of Military Affairs has said that during the present session of Congress, he will urge the enactment of a law providing for a postwar system of compulsory military training.

If such a law could be voted on by all the voters of the country today, it would carry by a very substantial majority, an Institute survey shows.

In making this survey, the Institute asked representative voters in all States of the country this question:

"After this war is over, do you think every young man should be required to serve one year in the Army or Navy?"

Here is the way the American voters would answer such a question today, compared with their answers to a similar question in prewar 1939:

	1939	Today
Approve training ...	37%	63%
Disapprove	58	29
Undecided	5	8

In 1939, the Institute found the average American voter of the belief that the then-prevailing American policy of comparative aloofness from world affairs rendered unnecessary any compulsory military training in peace years. Today, tabulation of comments to interviewers shows that not only does he not indorse a policy of "aloofness" but he believes that this country, along with other democratic countries, should be in a position to defend itself.

Belief that compulsory military training was valuable, physically and mentally, for the trainee is, the survey results show, secondary in the minds of the people. A still smaller percentage advanced the idea that such legislation would help to take up the slack of possible unemployment.

To the 29 per cent who oppose a year's training for all young men, the proposal is "too militaristic" and violates American democratic tradition.

The survey results show that women are almost as much in favor of enforced training as are the men:

	Men	Women
Approve	67%	60%
Oppose	28	30
Undecided	5	10

If War brings a single blessing, it is the hardships which teach people to think less of self, more of their entire community . . . in terms of the good of all.

for the Common Good

Wartime suffering has caused humanity to view its behaviour in sharper perspective—to realize that, in the long run, he benefits most who serves.

World War I was followed by a period of social selfishness, realistically reflected by the new-born tabloid newspapers. Sensationalism scored the sacred. Keyhole tactics won circulation. It was an era of personal "grab."

But, with the Depression, the nation sobered and matured. New values developed and the present war found people changed.

This gradual transformation of the public outlook was not lost upon the men who make the Mirror.

And they did something about it.

The Mirror believed that people would welcome a tabloid newspaper which gave the facts and left it to them to decide. To its own staff were added all three of the world-wide news services. New features appeared in keeping the reader demand. Editorially, the Mirror changed, too—influencing those things which seemed best for the common good. The result is a substantial seven-day NEWSpaper of unique personality which concisely presents each day's news clearly, comprehendingly and completely.

Recent years have proved the soundness of this concept. High circulation and phenomenal advertiser-acceptance make the Mirror one of the standouts of publishing. Today the Mirror is the nation's second largest Sunday newspaper (almost 1,700,000 copies) and the third largest daily (more than 770,000 copies).

And, because it is editorially "balanced," it is a family newspaper—with all that implies in the way of plus readership.

Perpetual's Assets Show Sharp Climb

By S. Oliver Goodman

Edward C. Baltz, secretary of the Perpetual Building Association, yesterday reported that assets of the Washington firm now exceed 60 million dollars. Perpetual for some years has been ranked as the largest home loan financing association in the Nation.

As of October 30, assets were in excess of $60,300,000 and last year at approximately the same time, assets were reported at $56,734,000.

Perpetual shareholders at a meeting Monday night reelected Thornton W. Owen, Samuel Scrivener and Dr. William G. Schafhirt as directors. All other directors continue their posts.

Arthur G. Bishop, chairman of the board, reported that current holdings of United States Government securities are the largest in the association's history.

Following the shareholders' meeting, all officers were reelected as follows: Marvin A. Custis, president; Vernon G. Owen, vice president; Mr. Baltz, secretary; Franklin W. Harper, treasurer; William H. Dyer assistant secretary; W. S. Martindill, assistant treasurer, and William H. Rippard, auditor.

Insurance Club to Elect

The Insurance Club of Washington will elect officers tonight before the annual dinner at the Mayflower Hotel, according to President Albert J. Phillips. More than 175 members and guests are expected.

Toastmaster will be Strickland Gilliland, the well known humorist and writer.

Members of the club deal in all types of insurance with the exception of life. In addition to Mr. Phillips, officers are J. A. Pumphrey, vice president; T. R. Baker, secretary, and Ralph W. Lee, treasurer.

New Gas Sales Records

The Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday reported that October sales totaled 1,261,821 M cubic feet, a new high for that month and a 12.6 per cent gain over the same month last year.

Sales for the first 10 months this year aggregated 14,538,933 M cubic feet, against 13,414,438 in the same 1942 period. This was also a new all-time high for the period.

Thrifty Generosity Explained

A booklet, "In Part Payment," has just been released by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane as a service to colleges, universities and charitable institutions. It tells how much Americans owe their colleges and charities and how they can repay this debt in part at small cost.

Although the need for taxes is greater than at any time in the country's history, says the firm, the tax policy laid down by Congress has "wisely continued to give full recognition to the importance of supporting educational and charitable institutions."

The booklet cites specific examples of how to be generous but thrifty, listing in tabular form the net cost of gifts for incomes of varying size. The booklet then points out that giving can be thrifty or expensive depending on whether cash or securities are given or the proceeds from securities sold at a profit or a loss.

Air Mail Loads Set Record

Air mail loads of United Air Lines soared to an all-time high in October, according to estimated figures released yesterday. United flew 1,017,518 mail ton-miles in October as against 857,712 mail ton-miles in September of this year and 743,301 ton-miles in October, 1942.

Cooper Urges Modernizing Of Home Taxes

Cleveland, Nov. 16 (AP).—Predicting a home-building program of "around 600,000 housing units a year for 10 postwar years," former Ohio Gov. Myers Y. Cooper of Cincinnati today advocated modernization of property taxation systems as "essential if America is to continue as a home-owning nation."

In an address prepared for the National Council of Real Estate Taxpayers, of which he is president, Cooper also urged support of legislation eliminating overlapping taxes, providing an overall property tax limitation in all States, and placing of Government-owned property.

Edward K. Hardy of Chicago, in another address prepared for the council, advocated abandonment of the "ad valorem system" of property taxation, in which taxes are levied against ownership, and favored occupancy taxes, "based on the use or rental value to the occupier."

Fire Losses Decline Slightly This Year

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Fire losses of $300,872,000 for the first 10 months of this year were only slightly below the entire 1942 total of $314,849,000, the National Board of Fire Underwriters said today. Losses for the first 10 months increased $46,636,000 over the corresponding period last year.

Estimated losses for October were $29,661,000, an increase of $7,040,000 over the same month of 1942. October losses were $3,173,000 higher than $26,488,000 reported in September, 1943.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP).—Scattered buying, induced by reports of continued dry weather in the Southwest, by progress of the subsidy program in Congress and favorable reports of wheat disappearance, imparted a firm tone to the wheat market today, with rye and barley prices advancing fractionally in sympathy.

Feature of the market was the December wheat contract which at 1.59⅝ reached a new 14-year high and crossed the 1.59 mark for the first time since 1928.

Wheat closed ⅛ to ¾ higher than yesterday's finish, December 1.59⅛; May 1.57¾@1.57⅞, and rye ¼ to ⅞ up. December 1.12¾@1.12⅞. Oats finished unchanged to ⅛ higher and barley ended the day with gains of 1 to 1⅛.

Range follows:

Wheat—	Open	High	Low	Close
December	1.59	1.59¾	1.58⅛	1.59⅛

District Men Cited in Wilcox Case

Walter G. Lohr and Enoch L. Harlan, operators of the Telephone Answering Service, with offices in the Albee Building, have been notified to answer a Federal Trade Commission complaint in which Sidney H. Wilcox is charged with misrepresenting the nature of his business, the commission announced yesterday.

Lohr and Harlan mailed out business reply postcards which Wilcox, during the past year has had addresses in Washington and several other principal cities, was engaged in selling, the complaint charges.

The postcards are used by creditors and collection agencies in obtaining information about debtors, the complaint averred, and Wilcox's business is conducted under the names of Board of Employment Research; Division of Employment Research; the Toledo Foundation, Division of Employment Research, and Bureau of Statistics, Division of Employment.

The trade name under which the cards are sold, the complaint alleges, falsely infers that the business is connected with the Government, or in the case of "Toledo Foundation," that it is an endowed organization, "devoted to the advancement of general welfare."

Lohr and Harlan were granted 20 days to answer the complaint.

Library of Congress Exhibiting Song Art

A group of original drawings by prominent artists, caricaturists and illustrators that interpret songs popular with servicemen went on display yesterday at the Library of Congress.

Made for the USO, the drawings are to be used on slides for group singing in service clubs and military and naval stations here and abroad. Artists represented included Walt Disney, Milton Caniff, Hendrick Willem Van Loon, and many others familiar to comic strip and magazine readers.

Why Thousands of Doctors Have Prescribed
Pertussin FOR Bad Coughs
(DUE TO COLDS)
Pertussin must be good when thousands upon thousands of Doctors have prescribed it for so many years. Pertussin acts at once to relieve your coughing. It loosens and makes phlegm easier to raise. Safe and effective for both old and young. Inexpensive!

WHEN YOU FEEL "BLAH"
Has your appetite gone back on you? Is it showing itself in the way you look and feel? Are you pale and underweight? Do you tire easily, and lack the strength and pep to really enjoy life? . . . Then you ought to do something about it!
Often these conditions are due to nutritional anemia—a shortage of iron in the blood. In such cases, good old Gude's Pepto-Mangan can be very beneficial. Pepto-Mangan helps make the blood redder and richer in iron. Many doctors prescribe Pepto-Mangan for pale, weak, rundown men, women and children who need more iron to build them up and to help them get back their strength, appetite and pep.
Has proved its benefits for more than 50 years. Pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists with a money-back guarantee of satisfaction. Ask for the original and only Gude's Pepto-Mangan!

Senate Votes Up to 15 Millions For Bond Ads in Small Papers

The Senate passed yesterday and sent to the House a bill authorizing the Treasury to spend from $12,500,000 to 15 million dollars a year for war bond advertising in small newspapers.

Prior to passage, the Senate cut the proposed expenditure in half.

Under an amendment by Senator Reed (Republican) of Kansas, adopted without a record vote, the Treasury would be authorized to spend the $12,500,000 to 15 million dollars instead of 25 million dollars to 30 million dollars annually for advertising. . . . .

Also adopted, as the Senate neared a final vote on the measure, was another amendment by Reed restricting the advertising to newspapers in cities under 10,000 population. Weekly, semi-weekly or tri-weekly papers published in larger communities would be eligible, however.

The Senate rejected by a vote of 54 to 21 an amendment which would have made five million dollars a year available for Government-paid radio advertisement.

The amendment was proposed by Senator Langer (Republican) of North Dakota, who told his colleagues "if we're going to take care of the small newspapers we ought to take care of the small radio stations likewise."

Langer proposed use of five million dollars from the remaining funds to buy radio advertising time—at least half this allocation to be expended with radio stations of 250 watts or less.

Tuition Ruling To Be Fought In Test Case

The legality of Washington's non-resident student law, as interpreted by the corporation counsel's office, was scheduled to be tested in the courts as Attorney Warren Magee prepared yesterday to file suit in District Court challenging the right of the school board to charge tuition for the stepson of a District employe, attending McKinley High School.

Magee said the broad language of the law did not specify that a student must be the "natural" child of a parent working in the District in order to be exempt from tuition.

The suit will be filed at the instigation of Mrs. Paul Schneller of College Park, Md., mother of a 13-year-old student at McKinley High, who recently was assessed $37 for eight weekss' tuition. The charges were made under a ruling of the corporation counsel's office that none but the natural children of District employes may attend District schools free.

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech said yesterday that the interpretation had been made in 1921 and had withstood the challenges of several budget hearings before District House and Senate committees. Keech said it was not his intention to make a new interpretation.

Germans Protest Weak Sofia Defense

Istanbul, Nov. 16 (AP).—As a result of the attack on Sofia Sunday by American bombers, the Germans have protested vigorously to the Bulgarian government concerning the alleged inefficiency of the city's antiaircraft defenses, according to information reaching here from the Balkans.

These reports said it was believed that the Germans might follow up their protest by demanding complete military control over all strategic points in Bulgaria. (An Allied communique issued yesterday in Cairo said 24 German fighter planes attempted unsuccessfully to break up the attack.)

126 Are Graduated By Navy Music School

The Navy School of Music, under the direction of Lieut. (j. g.) James M. Thurmond, graduated 120 students and 6 bandmasters at exercises yesterday at the School of Music auditorium at the Navy Yard.

Many of the graduates are members of the band and chorus which recently was featured in concert at Constitution Hall and featured on national broadcasts in a weekly show.

If You Get Up Nights You Can't Feel Right
If you have to get up 3 or more times a night your rest is broken and it's no wonder if you feel old and run down before your time. Functional rather than organic or systemic Kidney and Bladder trouble often may be the cause of many pains and symptoms simply because the Kidneys may be tired and not working fast enough in filtering and removing irritating excess acids, poisons and wastes from your blood. So if you get up nights or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, leg pains, backache, or swollen ankles, due to non-organic or non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Because it has given such joyous, happy relief in so high a percentage of such cases, Cystex is sold under a guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory. Cystex costs only 35c at druggists.

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"
Without Painful Backache
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

Morton Downey, great singer with a huge following, will open in the Statler's Embassy Room next Monday, sing in conjunction with Carmen Cavallaro's Orchestra. Downey and Cavallaro—it's the kind of hookup impresarios dream about!

TEARS AND PAPER DOLLS. A bunch of young Engineer officers were giving a goodby sendoff to one of their number in the Neptune Room. The guest of honor wandered from table to table making paper dolls out of napkins for one and all. Then the boys sang "Auld Lang Syne" with clasped hands and everyone choked up. Harris and Allen got the poignant idea of playing "My Buddy" and all the customers in the place cried, we're rellably informed. Came the climax when a young lieutenant (named Flanagan) kissed Eddy Harris for doing "My Buddy." And Eddy kissed him back! It was heart-rending!

Both Mrs. Roosevelt and Gypsy Rose Lee are expected to grace the Newspaper Guild dance at the Washington Hotel on December 2. Music by Washie Bratcher.

JOSEPHINE HOUSTON, who starred in Romberg's "New Moon" and "Life Begins at 8:40," will open at the Troika tomorrow. She'll also sing on a national hookup via WJZ on Sunday at 4 p. m. Dancers Galente and Leonardo will join the show and Talia, the beauteous creature, is held over.

P. S. After seeing Dwight Fiske at the Versailles, Helen Hamilton has decided to bring him to the Troika—if he'll clean up his act a bit. Says La Hamilton reflectively, "Perhaps it's only that horrid Fiske wink that makes his songs seem so—well, you know!"

MUSICIAN INTO MACHINE GUNNER. Remember Laczi, the smoothie cymbalon player of the Plymouth? He's now a machine gunner training in Kansas, sends his best to all his friends and more particularly to Betty Ferro of the FCC and Jane Marlow and the Heintze boys of Restaurant "823."

New Englanders will like to know that Nora Williams, ebullient star of the Windsor Room, is married to Lieut. George O'Brien, USN, assigned to the Bureau of Navigation, and former secretary of Representative Thomas A. Flaherty of Boston.

WHAT'S BURNING? At a quick query we'd say Jackie Miles' "Honeysuckle Rose" at Paul Young's. It's psychopathic, speaking conservatively . . . Nan Blackstone's remarks about 4-F limitations at Olmsted's Club . . . The hectic flirtation a la Russe in the current Balalaika floor show with teasing Lola Lolik upsetting a platoon of Cossacks . . .

GEORGE STEIN, popular River Bend Band leader

LATIN THROBS. "Los Ojos Verdes" as done by Carlos and Melisa, attractive Latin youngsters, now at Restaurant "400." . . . "Tras Una Illusion," new Pan Am number being done by Marita Navedo at the Madrillon . . . The romance-drenched tangos being played by Harold Nagel's band at the Carlton.

NEAT TRICKS. Ray Marshall, singing guitarist at Burt's Trans-Lux, has a card index of melodies. It's made him almost unstumpable. . . . Those elegant blond curls of Ida Clark, Mayfair's organist, are no beauty shop creation. Ida's own deft fingers roll 'em up every night . . . The rare Italian sauces compounded by Armando, majordomo of the Copocabana. Superb is the right word for them . . . The fantastic stories of bird and animal conversation told by Treasure Island's Randy Ryan.

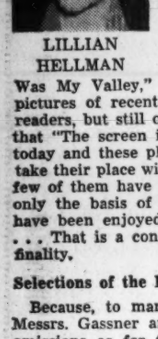
Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

The Film Script Assumes Dignity of Library Work

THE MOTION PICTURE SCENARIO, at long last, is becoming a recognized literary form, worthy of a place of permanence in the library . . . When we read the master-script of "How Green Was My Valley," we remarked here that it possessed most of the merits of a well-written novel, stripped of everything but the essentials of the story . . . We feel largely the same toward Lillian Hellman's published script for "The North Star," opening Thursday on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater . . . The list of film scripts well worth reading, even if their picturizations never are seen, could go on almost indefinitely . . . But it all boils down to the latter-day fact that the literary quality of modern screen writing finally has attracted the attention of the country's foremost publishers . . . So Dudley Nichols, one of the ablest of the screen writers, and John Gassner have completed a volume of "The 20 Best Film Plays," which will be published November 24 by Crown . . . It contains the complete scripts of "Mrs. Miniver," "Rebecca," "How Green Was My Valley," "It Happened One Night" and other outstanding pictures of recent years . . . Not one of the old, confirmed script-readers, but still one who has seen a few, I agree with the publishers that "The screen is probably the most important form of the drama today and these plays, by some of the world's best writers, rightfully take their place with the fine literature of our time" . . . Unfortunately, few of them have been seen in print . . . Deemed by the mass public only the basis of an ephemeral sort of momentary relaxation, they have been enjoyed on the screen and for the greater part forgotten . . . That is a condition that now bids fair to be mended with some finality.



LILLIAN HELLMAN

Selections of the Experts

Because, to many, the "Twenty Best Film Plays" chosen by the Messrs. Gassner and Nichols will prove surprising—as much for the omissions as for the inclusions—it seems a good idea to list their titles: "It Happened One Night," "The Women," "My Man Godfrey," "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," "Rebecca," "Wuthering Heights," "The Grapes of Wrath," "How Green Was My Valley," "Make Way for Tomorrow," "Little Caesar," "Fury," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," "The Life of Emile Zola," "Juarez," "Mrs. Miniver," "This Land Is Mine," "The Good Earth," "All That Money Can Buy," "Stagecoach," "Yellow Jack" and "The Fight for Life" . . . Yes, I know, that makes 21 . . . The publishers admit a strong enthusiasm for the "baker's dozen" . . . An examination, in your mind, of the pictures you think should have been included among the 20 best, and aren't, will probably reveal them as "action dramas," dependent more upon exciting situations and swift movement than dialogue and character development . . . At any rate, here is an important new development in the progress of the cinema which, no doubt, may be relied upon to set a pattern that will be continued down the years following 1943 . . . And there was a time within the memories of those still living when a couple of typewritten pages of "synopsis," that might sell for as high as $25, was good enough to pass as "a motion picture script!"

Another Cinematic Innovation

The film industry also is stepping out in other directions . . . Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has departed from usual practice by sponsoring a radio hour called "The People's Reporter," with Fulton Oursler, editor and commentator, presiding Monday through Friday evenings of each week, beginning at 8:15 p. m. . . . The idea is to answer questions sent in by listeners, clarifying and expanding news they have received from other sources . . . Program will be heard in 46 cities . . . First time, so far as I know, that a picture concern has gone in for news instead of the personalities under contract on its own lot . . . They are saying that the most beautiful blonde under contract to Warner Brothers is Dolores Moran . . . Miss Moran is a 17-year-old youngster, making her debut on the screen in "Old Acquaintance," a film version of the stage hit, with Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins in the Jane Cowl-Peggy Wood roles . . . Opens Friday at the Earle, if I have my memory on straight . . . Dolores is so lovely, so they tell me, that a magazine once had to run off 1200 extra copies of its cover of her to supply the "pin-up" demands of the armed forces . . . Apparently they do come back . . . Last time Abdullah, the two-humped camel in the Griffith Park Zoo, Los Angeles, had an acting job was 12 years ago in the original filming of "The Desert Song" . . . Plays the same role in the new Warner Brothers production, with Irene Manning and Dennis Morgan—provided, of course, that new production is actual and not merely conversational . . . They've been talking about it for years now, but so far nobody's seen it!

Shortage-of-Last-Lines Note

Just dig up the recent one about "Papoose Summer!"

HEDDA HOPPER

Fussed Over and Fed!

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 16.—John P. Marquand, author of "So Little Time," arrives soon to do the script on his story for the picture. Already many parties have been planned for him — which isn't always our way with authors. I remember when Warners first did a George Kaufman story. George arrived here unexpectedly, called the studio, and asked if he could be of service. The answer was, "No, we don't need you. We're doing okay." Which is why he asked plenty when they did want him . . George Marshall personally signed 4-year-old Roland Trexell (who's called Slugger) in Tucson, gave him a role in "Incendiary Blonde." He's son of an aircraft worker . . . Charlie Brackett is putting that gleam in his eye onto paper. It's an original—"To Each His Own." 'Twill be his next . . . Wonder when some one will do the life of Orson Welles, starring Joe Cotten . . . Barbara Britton replaces Maureen O'Hara in "Tomorrow's Harvest."

GEORGE S. KAUFMAN

A Bit Late

David Hempstead is back East talking with Charles Dana Gibson about coming out and playing himself in "The Gibson Girl," Ginger Rogers' next. He's 76. . . . Plans were made for colored shots of Rita Hayworth and her rusty red hair when she arrived in New York, but the day before she left she had it changed to brunette. . . . Joe Schenck was sicker than his friends knew. He missed having pneumonia. Kay Francis' illness is kidney trouble. . . . Alan Marshall will do two more films at Metro. . . . Anita Colby and sister sent Charles Vidor a mighty handsome silver cocktail set. . . . Jess Barker, Bunny Waters' boy friend, gets the lead in "Jam Session" with nine name bands. Sure, Ann Miller's in it, too.

The Joy Route

Leatrice Joy Hook will try to have her daughter Leatrice's Mexican marriage to a marine (before she had secured her California divorce) annulled. It appears mother Leatrice paid their honeymoon hotel bills. Now mother and daughter are living in an apartment, which leaves Bill Hook home alone. Wonder if Leatrice Sr. is planning a divorce, too . . . Our first big opening since lights went on was "Guadalcanal Diary." Difference between the bright lights outside and misery on the screen was really something, but I could shout about performances of Bill Bendix and young Dick Jaeckel . . . George Irving and his wife went East to see his sister through a very serious operation, and while there Mrs. Irving passed away from a heart attack.

Good Work

Lunched with Alice T. McLean, who organized the American Women's Voluntary services in this country, and some of her coworkers. She just returned from England and told of some of her experiences — their gratitude for everything we send them. She saw children playing with toys carefully—they must be preserved, they came from America. She talked about a service Thelma Cazelet, MP, and a mutual friend of ours, was doing—teaching poor young girls who'd had little schooling the meaning of government. Thelma would take a group to Parliament, give them tea, then show them through the building, pointing out where various members sat, where Winston Churchill sat. She'd explain that even though the people had a King, it was a democracy and they ruled.

Singer Becoming Ace Song Plugger

Hollywood.—If Johnnie Johnston introduces a song, it's likely to end up on the Hit Parade!

Song writers today are looking on the young singer, now appearing for Paramount in the Technicolor musical short, "Mardi Gras," as the newest actor who can skyrocket a song into popular success.

Look what happened to "Black Magic," which Johnnie introduced in "Star-Spangled Rhythm," and to "I Don't Want to Walk Without You," which he sang in his first picture, "Sweater Girl."

Now, in "Mardi Gras," Johnnie bursts into song with "All the Way," a number written for the picture by Jules Stein and Kim Gannon, which will, without doubt, add another to his list of record-breaking hits.

Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts was interviewed by a newspaperman in Washington last Thursday. "By the way, Mr. Justice," the reporter asked him, "have you read about the De Marigny case in Nassau?" . . . "Yes," said Roberts. . . . "Have you thought of what your decision would be?" the reporter asked. Roberts nodded. . . . "Could you tell me what your decision is?" the reporter asked. . . . "I don't mind telling you," said Supreme Court Justice Roberts. "My decision is that Sir Harry Oakes is very dead."

MOSS HART

The Warner Brothers offered Moss Hart $1,000,000, as against all profits, for the movie rights to "Winged Victory." All the money, of course, would go to Army Emergency Relief. . . . The Nippon Club, the Japanese clubhouse on West 93d st., will be purchased by the Elks, furnishings and all. . . . Lawrence Langner, of the Theater Guild, was asked how he obtained Ferenc Molnar's new play for the Guild. "It was easy," said Langner. "I was able to give him great inducement—two tickets to 'Oklahoma'."

A few days ago a party was given at the Waldorf for the visiting royal visitor from Arabia, the Emir Feisal of Saudi. The party was sponsored by the State Department and Standard Oil. Among the guests was Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, sr., at whose famous Fifth Avenue home Winston Churchill and other visiting heads of government have been entertained . . . Mrs. Vanderbilt invited the Emir to come right over to her home. Mrs. Vanderbilt left the party alone when the Emir said that not only he wouldn't go, but also that he didn't have the slightest idea who Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt was.

The Screen Writers Guild will drafe Mary McCall jr. for a second term as president. . . . Sam Bronston, the producer, brought a print of his newest film, "Jack London," to Mrs. London, who approved it. . . . The Duke of Windsor had a tooth extracted last week. The Duke, incidentally, visits the Racquet and Tennis Club every morning for the Turkish bath. . . . Lieut. George Oppenheimer, who just became Lord Mountbatten's aide, is the filmwriter who once wrote a mystery thriller. At the preview the producer complained: "It won't scare anyone." Oppenheimer assured him: "You're wrong. It'll scare my agent."

One of Helen Keller's old girlhood friends visited the great lady and they discussed the woes of the world. "Helen, I've reached the stage in life where all I want is peace and quiet," the visitor sighed. "All I want is the peace which passeth all understanding. How about you, Helen?" . . . "I do not the peace which passeth understanding," replied Miss Keller. "I want the understanding which bringeth peace."

Raymond Schinndler, the private detective hired by Mrs. de Marigny, had his 61st birthday on the day of the defendant's acquittal . . . Schindler brought to Nassau, his Connecticut neighbor, Judge Max Spelke, who is an expert on fingerprint law. It was Spelke who, sitting beside Schindler, heard Captain Barker testify that de Marigny had no hair on his forearms. A shaft of sunlight, just then, fell on the defendant, and Spelke noticed his hairy forearms. Spelke whispered it to Schindler, who relayed it to defense council—and thus came the first break which helped set de Marigny free.

Max Reinhardt, who was laid to rest recently, never would read the manuscripts submitted to him. He employed professional play readers for this job. Reinhardt, however, did read many manuscripts written by unknowns. Every night, from midnight until dawn, he would sit in his favorite cafe in Berlin, discussing the theater. The hopeful writers would wait there, then ask the cloakroom attendant: "Which is Reinhardt's coat?" . Then they'd slip their manuscripts into the pockets of his coat. . . . Each night, whe nhe'd leave, he found all his pockets stuffed with scripts. "These," he confessed, "are the only plays I read."

Reinhardt numbered among his many great pupils Rudolph Schildkraut, father of Joseph Schildkraph. When the elder Schildkraut first came under Reinhardt's direction, he always appeared late for rehearsals. . . . Each time he was fined the customary 2 marks for lateness. It became a ritual . . . One day the exasperated director confronted the actor and asked for an explanation of this chronic lateness. "I make a living out of it," Schildkraut explained. "My role is small, and you pay me little. So I pay 2 marks for your receipt of the fine, and I sell the receipt which has your autograph on it for 5 marks."

Robert Warwick In 'Kismet' Role

Hollywood—Robert Warwick was signed recently for the role of Alifie in "Kismet," Technicolor spectacle which William Dieterle is directing. The role will mark Warwick's twentieth appearance under M-G-M banner since he returned to Hollywood from the New York stage in 1930.

Warwick appeared in Dieterle's last film, "Tennessee Johnson."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

REPUBLICAN SENATOR William Langer of North Dakota and Democratic Representative John H. Tolan of California are still plugging for their proposal to convert the spacious underground Senate garage into sleeping quarters for servicemen arriving at nearby Union Station.

However, it looks as though many of the servicemen will continue bunking on benches in the crowded railroad station. So far, Langer and Tolan have received negligible support for their idea, especially from Senators, who do not relish giving up their steam-heated parking places in the garage. The legislators are smart enough not to air their views publicly, but there has been a lot of undercover sniping at the Langer-Tolan scheme by the powers-that-be on Capitol Hill.

Recently, Senator Francis Maloney of Connecticut requested the views of Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, chairman of the potent Rules Committee. The multi-millionaire Virginia appple grower replied that the Rules Committee "has nothing whatever to do" with the garage.

"My own personal judgment," continues Senator Byrd, "is that it would be costly to make this garage suitable for living quarters and that it should only be done as a last resort. I should think there are other buildings available which could be utilized at less expense."

NOTE: Actually, it would cost very little to convert the garage into sleeping quarters, chiefly the matter of providing cots, of which the Army has thousands. The hundreds of servicemen streaming through Union Station every day now must depend on the limited accommodations of the nearby United Nations' Service Center—formerly the Capitol Park Hotel—at rates ranging from $1 (dormitory) to $3 a night.

Marshall's Memory

FOR A LONG TIME, Jim Farley and Mrs. Henry Wallace were supposed to have the best memories around Washington. But they have a real rival in the Chief of Staff, General Marshall.

Returning from a warfront town, Marshall held a press conference. Twenty-one newsmen were present. Marshall said he would answer one question from each newsman.

He turned to the man nearest him on the right and said, "All right, what's yours?"

The question proved to be rather elaborate. "I will answer that in a minute," said Marshall. "But let's go ahead. What's yours?"

And before answering any questions, he went the rounds of 21 men and got their 21 questions. Then he proceeded to answer the questions one by one.

Not only did he remember the question which each of the 21 had asked, but he remembered who asked it. Pointing to each man, he said, "Now your question was ——." And then he named it and proceeded to answer it.

This was more than a feat of memory. It gave order and body to the answers, and eliminated the confusion of most press conferences.

Note: Other competitors for the "Memory Club" are Nat Howard of the Cleveland News, formerly United Statess press censor; and Erwin A. Holt of Burlington, N. C., who can tell you the day of the week you were born on if you give him the date.

Must Block Willkie

ROBERT LUND, manufacturer of Listerine and the sugar daddy of St. Louis Republicans, had a confidential and highly illuminating pow-wow with high-up Republicans the other day in Washington.

Among those who attended the private dinner conference were Harrison Spangler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, bitter-end Congressman Harold Knutson of Minnesota, and old-timer Dan Reed, Republican Congressman from up-State New York.

Chief topic of conversation was how to block Willkie. Exactly how to block him was not decided. But at all costs it was felt he must be blocked.

The Republican chances now look brighter and brighter, so the last thing GOP conservatives want is anyone with a progressive Republican outlook in the White House.

"Chicken Dinner" Morrison

THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE, weighed down with war printing orders by the War and Navy Departments, the Treasury Department and other Government agencies, also has its hands full with one of the largest political jobs in recent history.

The beneficiary is loquacious Freshman Representative James H. Morrison of Louisiana. Much to the regret of the Government Printing Office, Jimmy is running for Governor of Louisiana. Though 34-year-old Morrison has been in Congress less than a year, he has learned some tricks about getting Federal help for his political ambitions that would make congressional old-timers green with envy.

Already, 237,000 copies of speeches boosting his Gubernatorial chances have been run off at cost rates by the Government Printing Office. The campaign literature is being distributed among Louisiana voters, and more of it is reportedly on order.

Whether any of this political material is being mailed at Government cost, under Morrison's frank, has been kept a mystery. Franked material is usually inserted in envelopes by Capitol folding rooms and sent directly to the Washington Post Office for mailing. However, after preparing Morrison's campaign literature for mailing, House folding room employes are instructed to return it to the Louisianan's office, whence it is sent out in bags.

When a member of Congress elects to assume the mailing costs of personal or political letters, he usually instructs the folding room to leave off his frank. Morrison did not do this. Envelopes containing his speeches were stamped with his (free) frank before being returned to his office.

Retains His Youth

De Marigny's Wife at Point Of Collapse

Nassau, Nov. 16 (AP).—In tears from disappointment over inability to board a plane for Miami so she could see her mother, Lady Eunice Oakes in Palm Beach, pretty Nancy Oakes De Marigny was put to bed in care of a physician tonight and friends said she was near collapse.

The 19-year-old girl, who thought her troubles would end when her husband was acquitted of the murder of her father but found her perplexities increased instead, tried to get a belated reservation on this aftrnoon's clipper to Miami.

But every seat was taken and she must wait until Thursday at least.

Friends said the strain of the long trial in which she testified for her husband, Alfred de Marigny, and her mother took the stand against him, plus postponement of a jaw operation had aggravated her ill health and left her highly nervous.

While in Mexico with her husband last year a severe attack of typhoid aggravated a jaw infection. She had an operation to correct one side of her mouth but an operation scheduled on the other side had to be postponed because of the arrest and trial of her husband on a charge of slaying her wealthy father, Sir Harry Oakes.

The Bahamas Supreme Court jury that tried De Marigny acquitted him last week by a vote of 9 to 3 but recommended that he be deported.

The governing council of this colony "invited" de Marigny to leave, and extended the same invitation to his friend, Marquis Georges de Visdelou.

While Nancy still was upset by this development, de Marigny unexpectedly announced that they would be married again, this time in a Catholic church.

He set the time as 2 p. m. yesterday, and Father Bonaventure waited at the St. Francis Xavier Church to perform the ceremony. Finally, after 3 o'clock, De Marigny telephoned and told the priest he was ill and canceled the plans for a wedding for the day.

Friends of Nancy reported, however, that she was surprised by the announcement and wanted time to consider the proposal.

Nurses' Aides Need 'Second Hand' Watches

Red Cross nurses' aides, now serving in 14 hospitals and 13 clinics, need watches with second hands.

Such watches are needed in making accurate counts of a patient's pulse. The Red Cross has requested that anyone with a watch to spare leave it at the manager's office in the District Chapter headquarters, 1730 E st. nw. Watches with second hands are no longer being manufactured or available, the Red Cross says.

Salvage Drive for Old Clothes Begins Nov. 22, WPB Says

The salvage division of the War Production Board yesterday announced a Nation-wide drive would be conducted Monday through December 4 to collect discarded clothing to aid in the rehabilitation of people in the liberated countries abroad.

Rags, said to be desperately needed by the armed forces and war industries, will also be gathered.

The campaign in Washington will be sponsored by the city's churches and the District Salvage Committee, it was announced after an organization meeting last night.

Herbert M. Faust, director of WPB's salvage division, announced the drive was being undertaken because "many textile mills that would normally produce new clothing materials are now engaged in weaving cloth for war."

No Shortage Here

"While there is no shortage here at home," Faust said, "our manufacturing facilities are not great enough to make all the new clothing needed this winter in the occupied and liberated countries. Therefore, we are attempting in this two-week period to get enough discarded clothing to do the job.

The collection, said Faust, is an intensified effort to get more old clothes and rags than would normally be collected by the American associations for domestic and foreign relief, charities, churches and other groups. It is not an attempt to ignore the permanent business of the associations or the dealers already engaged in collecting the material.

Only discarded clothing is wanted—not suits or dresses that the owner knows will be used in the future, it was said.

All types are needed for men and boys, women, girls and infants. Any unwearable clothing that can be reduced to rags is also desired.

Donors are requested to see that woolen garments are brushed and cotton garments and rags are clean. Mending, it was said, is not required.

Some Items Not Wanted

Cast-off clothing that is still wearable will be cleaned by the campaign operators, sorted for size and stored away in warehouses completely inventoried so that national charitable organizations and Government agencies can draw on them for distribution.

Not wanted, it was explained are the following:

Shoes, rubber overshoes, rubber boots, slippers, leather leggings and gloves, hats, caps, neckties, collars, garters, garter belts, suspenders, belts, girdles, corsets, brassieres, veils, spats, rubber coats, diapers and masquerade costumes.

Leaders of all faiths and business and professional men have pledged their aid to the two-week campaign in the District. Named last night to a committee were:

Committee Members

James E. Colliflower, chairman; Charles Appleby, vice chairman; Canon W. Curtis Draper of the Washington Cathedral; the Very Rev. Msgr. Lawrence J. Shehan, director of Washington Catholic Charities and pastor of St. Patrick's Church; the Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches; Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, spiritual leader of the Washington Hebrew Congregation; Otto S. Lund, chairman of the District Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Maj. Arne Lekson of the Salvation Army, Maj. Walter O. Ulrey of the Volunteers of America, Charles L. Priest of the Goodwill Industries, Harry How of the Goodwill Industries, Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith of the women's division of the District Salvage Committee.

J. M. Matson and Sam Rubenstein, both of the National Association of Dry Cleaners; Ben Viener of the Waste Material Dealers, and Horace Walker of the District Salvage Committee, executive secretary.

Fortas Quits Interior Post for Navy

By the Associated Press

Abe Fortas, impatient at the delay in departure of a petroleum mission which he was to have headed to the Middle East, abruptly resigned yesterday as Undersecretary of the Interior and went into active service as an apprentice seaman in the Navy.

Saying he was "eager" to get into active military service, the 33-year-old Fortas reported for duty and left Washington for his training.

Fortas, after being inducted into the Navy a few weeks ago, was given a leave at the request of Interior Secretary Ickes to undertake a Middle Eastern survey of petroleum facilities for the Petroleum Reserve Corp. Transportation problems held up departure of the mission.

(On May 11 of this year President Roosevelt declined to accept Fortas' resignation, saying the latter could best serve the country "by continuing to do your job as Undersecretary of Interior."

(Secretary Ickes had delivered the resignation to the President with an accompanying letter saying he knew it had been submitted "only because he did not want me or the Administration to suffer as a result of possible attacks upon him for remaining in a civilian post."

Fortas, who was 33 on June 19, is married but has no children.)

Woolley Pledges Black Market War

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Daniel P. Woolley, newly designated regional OPA director, whose district includes Maryland and the District of Columbia, pledged himself today to "an unflinching campaign against black markets, deliberate violators and wartime profiteers."

"It will be my objective," he said in a statement, "to show manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers and merchants of all commodities under OPA regulation, the wisdom of cooperation with the law. The regional officers always will be willing to hear grievances and complaints."

Wilkin and Farman May Not Play Sunday

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

On the face of it, that was a shabby trick Duke University played on the Naval Training Station lads at Bainbridge, Md., this week. Bainbridge and its unbeaten football team was looking to the "big" game with Duke on November 27. Now it's off. Duke says the game won't be played.

POVICH

These sailors at Bainbridge, about 25,000 of 'em, are in love with their football team. They're still wondering how good it is. In eight games, the sailor team, led by Bill De Correvant, the Northwestern boy, hadn't been licked. The Duke game was to be the test. Duke lost only to Navy. Duke has been beating other teams by box-car figures.

But now there's sadness at Bainbridge. The contest Bainbridge had pointed for is out. Duke is closing its season with the North Carolina game on Saturday. The game Bainbridge thought was on Duke's schedule isn't. Bainbridge doesn't know why. It's officers are hopping mad.

Now Duke says that it had never scheduled a game with Bainbridge. "We only talked about it last summer, just as we talked to many other colleges and service schools," says Eddie Cameron, Duke athletic director. "The game never advanced far enough to even be put before our athletic council or the Navy and naturally it did not appear on our schedule when it was released."

All of which sounds very funny to the Bainbridge people who campaigned all season with the Duke game in view. Lieut. Ralph H. Plumb, Bainbridge athletic officer, admits that no contract had been signed, "But Duke said they would send us one. The game had been agreed on when we talked."

Duke did try to pull out of the game, says Lieutenant Plumb. "I don't understand," he said, "how Duke can say the game wasn't scheduled. Cameron wrote me in early September saying Duke would go through with it if we insisted and that he would send me a contract. Does that sound as if Duke didn't know about the game? I repeated to Cameron that we wanted to play the game, and assumed it would be played even if they sent us no contract. The schedule we announced for publication early in September included the Duke game on November 27."

For some reason or other, says Bainbridge, Duke said it would prefer to close its season on November 20. That would seem to be rather early to be closing a football season, especially for Duke. Certainly Duke can't claim precedent. How about those two years in 1940 and 1942 when Duke kept its team in training beyond Christmas to play in the Rose Bowl? And now, all of a sudden, Duke decides that a November 20 closing would be very nice.

We wouldn't like to suggest that Duke is scared of Bainbridge and DeCorrevant, but what do you make of it? The first thing we make of it is that it's pretty tough on those sailors who have been waiting for the Duke game to roll around.

Bainbridge says the game was scheduled for Durham, N. C., and that Duke tried to run out of it on the additional grounds that it would compete with the North Carolina-Virginia game that day. How long since Duke has been fearing competition from either Virginia or North Carolina, or ever troubled itself to avoid a schedule clash with those two schools? It looks mighty like a powder.

The Bainbridge people want to play the game and they don't care where or when. They'll keep their team in training 'til Christmas if necessary, if it suits Duke, and they'll play the game in Durham or anywhere else in the Bainbridge Naval District, including Washington. That last might not be a bad idea.

There's still a chance that the game might be saved. The commanding officer at Bainbridge, in possession of the letter from Duke saying the game would be played if the sailors insisted, has dispatched a letter to President Robert L. Flowers of Duke University. It would be nice if the Duke president deduced that the sailors were being givn the run-around and ordered the game to be played. He could be a very nice college president.

Dutch Bergman was talking about the stirring pregame orations of Knute Rockne. He was telling the Touchdown Club yesterday of the time that Rockne brought his team to Minneapolis for the Minnesota game. Berman was backfield coach for Head Coach Doc Spears of Minnesota.

"Spears had our squad in the dressing room ready for his pregame speech. The Doc was no slouch himself at whipping a team up before the game," related Bergman. "But just as he took a deep breath to start his speech to the team, he heard Rockne addressing the Notre Dame squad on the other side of the partition.

"We just sat there until Rockne got through. We heard every word of his speech to the Notre Dame players and it was a beaut. We couldn't help eavesdropping through that thin partition and Rockne had us pretty well spellbound, anyway. Finally Rock was through. Then Spears spoke. 'Okay, fellows, you just heard a great speech by Rockne,' Spears told his squad. 'That's good enough for me. Let's go.'"

'Old Oaken Bucket' Kicked Over as Purdue Faces Indiana

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 16 (AP).—"The old oaken bucket, the iron-bound bucket," will be just a side issue when the football teams of Purdue and Indiana clash here Saturday—and for various reasons.

Foremost, of course, is the fact Purdue has considerably more at stake than the bucket—symbol of gridiron rivalry between the two Hoosier schools. The Boilermakers will be shooting for their first perfect season since 1929, at least a share of the Big Ten championship and a talking point when national championships are mentioned.

Naturally, if the Boilermakers achieve all those aims they'll also get the bucket. They are depending upon a flock of players who are playing for Purdue because of the war and not necessarily by choice.

That may not mean so much because the boys sent to Purdue by the Navy and the Marines seem to have entered into the spirit of the thing. Tony Butkovich, Alex Agase and John Genis—three transplants from Illinois—who sparked Purdue to its first seven triumphs, served notice on the rest of the squad before leaving for active Marine duty that they'd better win the last two games—or else.

At any rate, Guard Dick Barwegen is likely to be the only member of last year's Purdue team in the line-up when the opening whistle blows Saturday.

Back in 1929, when Purdue had its last perfect season, Indiana had won only two of seven games when it tackled the Boilermakers.

Robert T. Barnett Elected PGA Vice President

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP).—Ed Dudley, Colorado Springs, Colo., was re-elected president of the Professional Golfers Association for the third consecutive time at the annual meeting today.

Dudley defeated his opponent, George Jacobus, Ridgewood, N. J., a former president, 50 to 16.

Frank Sprogell, Grand Rapids, Mich., was reelected secretary and Willie McGuire, Houston, Tex., was chosen treasurer.

Robert T. Barnett of Washington, D. C.'s Chevy Chase Club and Indian Creek Club in Miami, Fla., was elected vice president along with C. V. Anderson, Waterloo, Iowa, and William Wotherspoon, Tulsa, Okla. Barnett is the first Middle Atlantic PGA delegate to hold office in the national body.

Cowgirls Meet In Wrestling Match Tonight

Rose Evans, the Texas cowgirl who last week scored an impressive victory over Elvira Snodgrass, will go against Mae Young, a Nevada cowgirl, in a cofeature wrestling match tonight at Turner's Arena.

As if the girls weren't enough to lure the customers, Promoter Turner is offering another headliner in a battle between Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former world's champion and one of the game's immortals, and Chief Thunderbird, the British Columbia Indian.

Both bouts are of the finish variety.

Strangler Lewis will be facing a rugged foe in Thunderbird, a long-time favorite with the fans. The Strangler, who conquered Jim Londos no less than nine times, again is on the way to a comeback.

In supporting bouts, of 30 minutes each, the first at 8:45 p. m., Cliff Olson, of Minnesota, will meet the Blue Streak, hooded grappler; Dick Lever, of Salt Lake City, will take on George Macricostas, and Don Evans, Coast ace, will bow in against Dapper Dizz, of Chicago.

Prisoner of Japs

St. Paul, Minn. (AP).—Lieut. Wells Hodgson, jr., former Minnesota track athlete, is a prisoner of the Japs in the Philippines. He saw action on Bataan and Corregidor.

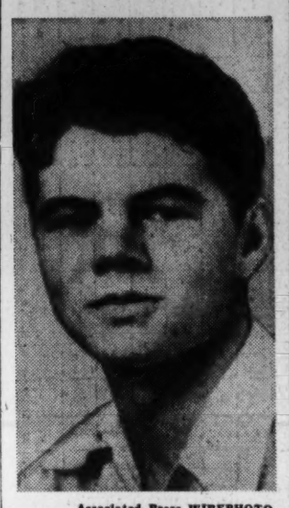
That's Football

Emory, Va. (AP).—You can never tell about football these days; just ask Coach T. L. Porterfield of Emory and Henry College. Emory and Henry beat Milligan College 14 to 13. The next week Milligan battered E. & H. 46 to 6.

Soldier Bowls 256

Fort Sheridan, Ill. (AP).—Pvt. Ted Noesges of Chicago turned in the best bowling score of the season here when he rolled a 256 game, topping the previous high of 249 made by Sergt. Mike Nimeth. Noesges accounted for nine strikes.

Head Coach—At 19



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Jules Davis, a graduate of Luverne, Ala., High School, took over coaching at his alma mater despite his tender age when the regular coach entered the Marines. Davis, 4F in the draft, has led the club to five victories in seven games and 270 points to the opponents' 31.

Major Players Fined for Play In Winter Loop

Los Angeles, Nov. 16 (INS).—A dozen major league baseball stars tonight prepared to pay fines for playing winter league baseball in southern California 10 days after the close of the big league season.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's high commissioner, has cracked the whip over all major leaguers who violated the sport's long established rule.

Latest to be fined was Andy Pafko, Los Angeles slugger who joined the Chicago Cubs shortly after the Pacific Coast Loop closed. Pafko was assessed every dollar he earned in postseason ball, believed to be $400.

Other major league stars asked to account for their winter league earnings include "Peanuts" Lowrey and Lou Novikoff of the Cubs, Gerry Priddy of the Washington Nats, Steve Mesner of the Cincinnati Reds, Jess Flores of the Philadelphia Athletics, George Metkovich, Roy Partee and "Skeeter" Newsom of the Boston Red Sox, Babe Dahlgren of the Philadelphia Phillies, and George Caster and Al Zarilla of the St. Louis Browns.

Army Trainees Box at Hilltop; Public Invited

Fists wil fly tomorrow and Friday nights as Army trainees of Georgetown University clash in a program arranged by Marty Gallagher, former heavyweight and now boxing coach. Tomorrow's card will offer from 12 to 14 battles with semifinals and finals scheduled for the following night. The bouts will range from light to heavyweights and Ryan gym at the Hilltop will be the scene. The two cards start at 6:30 p. m. and admission is free to the public.

Table Tennis Group to Meet

The District Table Tennis Association will hold its Thanksgiving tournament at Columbia Table Tennis Center, 3330 14th st. nw., Saturday at 7:30 p. m. Final matches will be played Sunday at 8 p. m.

The tournament will consist of men's singles, women's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles. Players are asked to register between 7 and 7:30 at Columbia. All entries must be received at Columbia by 7 p. m. Friday night, November 19. For further information telephone Chestnut 3855.

Mt. Vernon to Play Friends at Hockey

Mount Vernon Seminary's white hockey team, captained by Dorothy Legge, will play the Friends School eleven on the home field this afternoon at 3:15. Mrs. Robert Wilson, national official of the United States Field Hockey Association, and Lieut. Mary Sproul of the WAVES will referee the game.

The yellow team will journey over to Friends School to play at the same time. Jane McCauley, captain, expects keen competition in this second game of the season which Mrs. Constance Thurrell will referee.

Here's a Challenge

The Grady Boys 135-pound team have challenged the Sligo Atheltic Club to a game at Turkey Thicket Field Sunday. If Sligo A. C. is interested, members may call Michigan 5749. How about it, Sligo?

Irish Lose Prestige, But Not Much

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Notre Dame eleven defeated a stalwart Northwestern team last Saturday, 25 to 6, but apparently lost a little prestige in doing it. Three of the 90 sports writers taking part in the weekly Associated Press poll to determine the ranking football teams picked the Irish for second place this week.

The other 87 placed Frank Leahy's team first, but a week ago every voter put it in the No. 1 slot, the first time a unanimous vote has been polled by any eleven.

Duke received one of the three votes that went for other teams, and the other two went to Colorado College, which oddly enough polled only two tenth-place votes otherwise.

As if to build up another climax game matching the two top teams, the scribes moved the Iowa Preflight eleven from fifth to second place. The Irish and the Iowans meet Saturday.

Standings Get Shakeup

The standings, as a whole, were given a rousing shakeup, with two teams dropping out of the first 10 entirely, and several other squads advancing or retreating.

Purdue, idle last week, dropped a notch to third place. Michigan held fourth, and Navy, although swamping Columbia 61-0, dropped from third to fifth. Army and Duke, sixth and seventh last week, swapped places. Northwestern dropped from eighth to ninth, being replaced in eighth by Marc Field, a newcomer to the select circle.

Penn Out of Top Ten

Penn, eighth a week ago, dropped out of the top 10 entirely, as did Southern California, ninth last week. Texas edged into the No. 10 spot.

Notre Dame gathered a point total of 897, based on 10 points for a first-place vote, nine for second, etc.

The selections, with total points:

First ten:

1—Notre Dame, 897.
2—Iowa Preflight, 631.
3—Purdue, 585.
4—Michigan, 542.
5—Navy, 508.
6—Duke, 372.
7—Army, 321.
8—March Field, 143.
9—Northwestern, 121.
10—Texas, 112.

SECOND TEN—Washington, 97; Texas Aggies, 74; College of Pacific, 71; Del Monte Preflight, 65; Georgia Tech, 54; Tulsa, 44; San Diego Naval Training Station, 33; Bainbridge (Md.) Naval Training Station, 33; Penn, 31; Dartmouth, 29.

Also rans: Southwest Louisiana Institute, 24; Colorado College, 22; North Carolina, 19; Arkansas Aggies, 16; Randolph Field, 16; Great Lakes, 13; Southern California, 10; Southwestern of Texas, 3; Colorado University, 2.

Red Cross Match Scheduled Sunday

Pros Cliff Spencer and Bill Carson will meet Earl Marcey, holdover public links champion, and Roy Smith, former East Potomac champion, now of Manor Club, in the final Red Cross exhibition match Sunday at Anacostia at 2 p. m.

Spencer will be competing in his seventh match of the season for the Red Cross. He has been on the winning side in all but one.

Marcey will add $65 to the fund from a 1942 tournament fund at East Potomac. No tournaments were held at East Potomac this year as the club was open only two weeks.

Central Rifle Team Defeats Westerners

The U. S. Marines are now calling the signals for Private Angelo Bertelli, ace Notre Dame quarterback and forward passer, who is pictured at his first "chow" at the Parris Island (S. C.) Marine base. He is studying to be an officer.

Call for Two-Ton

Galento Gets 'Screen Test' For Service

Orange, N. J., Nov. 16 (AP).—Two-ton Tony Galento, the barrel-shaped Orange heavyweight, underwent his physical "screen test" at the call of his local draft board today. Galento, who is 33, married and a father, was in Sioux Falls, S. Dak., on an exhibition tour last week when the draft board summoned him for today's appearance.

Young Mack Called

Philadelphia, Nov. 15 (AP).—Connie Mack, jr., son of the owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, has been notified by his draft board to appear December 15 for his Army physical examination and induction if he is accepted. Connie, jr., father of four children, is concessions manager at Shibe Park.

Caparell Goes to Sea

Boston, Nov. 16 (AP).—Jackie Caparell, Boston middleweight, has been named to take the place of George (Sonny) Horne, of Niles, Ohio, who has been ordered to sea, in a 10-round bout with Henry Chmielewski of Portland, Me., at Mechanics Building November 26, the Boston Boxing Association announced today.

Horne, who is a member of the Merchant Marine, will meet the winner of the Caparell-Chmielewski match as soon as he returns to Boston, the association said.

Ewald Pyle Now 1-A

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—The New York Giants announced today they had received word that left-handed pitcher Ewald Pyle, obtained by the Giants from Minneapolis in the draft, has been reclassified 1-A and reports for his physical November 22, Pyle, whose home is at Du Quoin, Ill., is married and has three children.

Metheny Rejected

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 16 (AP).—Arthur (Bud) Metheny, 26-year-old second string right fielder for the New York Yankees, was rejected for military service when he underwent an examination here yesterday. A "trick knee" acquired several years ago in playing high school football caused the rejection.

Metheny, sent here by the Fauquier (Va.) County local board played with the Yankees for the first time this year, coming to them from Newark.

Cox Is Deferred

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—William D. Cox, 33-year-old president of the National Baseball League Philadelphia Phillies, has been reclassified 2-B and deferred for six months, Henry G. Bartol, president of local draft board 42, said tonight.

"We called him in when we were reclassifying our 3-A's," Bartol said. "Since he is president of a lumber company (Piling Associates, Inc.), we decided his work was necessary to the war effort. No mention was made of baseball in our talk."

Cox is married and has one child. The 2-B classification is given those engaged in an essential war industry.

Bobby Got a Zero

St. Paul, Minn. (AP).—Lieut. Bob Hansen, ex-Hamline U. football, track and tennis star, is piloting a fighter plane in the Pacific. He recently bagged his first Zero.

Duke No. 1 Choice for Cotton Bowl Game

Dallas, Nov. 16 (AP).—All unofficial, of course—and Cotton Bowl Headman Dan Rogers probably won't like such speculation—but it appears you can count Duke as No. 1 choice to be the visiting team in the Dallas grid classic January 1.

There are several reasons but largely it's by process of elimination.

Texas or Texas A. & M. will be the host eleven. They play Thanksgiving Day at College Station for the Southwest conference championship. The winner is invited automatically to the Cotton Bowl.

Both schools are known to look with favor on Duke as an opponent.

The Blue Devils have a good record and a bowl background. They have won seven games while losing one—by a single point to Navy. They have beaten Georgia Tech and North Carolina, two teams ranking high in Cotton Bowl consideration.

The Rose Bowl is closed with Washington and Southern California already selected.

The Sugar Bowl appears sold on Georgia Tech and Southwestern Louisiana Institute.

That leaves only the Orange Bowl to compete with the Cotton Bowl for Duke's affections.

Randolph Field, another top choice for the Cotton Bowl, might not be able to accept due to travel restrictions on airfield teams. The Ramblers are unbeaten and untied.

Uncle Sam's Draft Surpasses Major League Player Summons

By Sid Feder

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—The major league draft meeting, which annually takes a collection of "ivory" from the minors, never had a thing on the one-man "draft meeting" Uncle Sam has been putting on in the big leagues since the season ended.

Adding to the 250 performers previously gone to war, a total of 33 players from the 16 American and National League outfits either have been inducted into the armed forces already, are awaiting induction or have been reclassified into 1-A since the campaign wound up. And with more getting the call almost daily, Silent Sam Breadon, boss of the St. Louis Cardinals, summed it up neatly when he said a couple of days ago, "We don't know where we stand for 1944."

She wasn't kidding, because his National League champions already have lost Center Fielder Harry Walker and Southpaw Harry Brazle from their World Series line-up. With Mort Cooper getting his bag packed now to leave and Walker Cooper completing his physical, there are going to be a lot of wide-open spaces out there in Sportsman's Park.

Hockett to Go

And consider the case of the Cleveland outfield, which can hardly be described as either in a standing or sitting position. The Tribe's fly-catching brigade was bad enough last season, but since the campaign ended, two of the gardeners have heard from "Uncle"—including Oris Hockett, 30-year-old father of three, who has been put in 1-A. This leaves only two able-bodied regular outfielders still on the squad.

The world champion New York Yankees probably will lose Spud Chandler, their ace righthander, in the next couple of months, and the Detroit Tigers, already minus slugger Dick Wakefield and a couple of better pitchers, say they "haven't the vaguest notion how many will be called by next spring." Some of the clubs, like the Boston Red Sox and the Braves and the St. Louis Browns, have sent out questionnaires to their hired hands to get some faint idea of what can happen.

Here's the Schedule

Here is a fast run-down on just a few of the other players already inducted or reclassified:

New York Giants—Infielder-outfielder Sid Gordon, enlisted in Coast Guard; Second Sacker Mickey Witek, into Coast Guard; Shortstop Bill Jurges, 1-A.

Brooklyn Dodgers—Pitchers Kirby Higbe, pivate at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Chicago White Sox—Pitcher Edgar Smith, a father, in the Army.

Cleveland—Pitchers Chubby Dean and Pete Center, both inducted.

Phillies—Jimmy Wasdell, infielder-outfielder, inducted; Outfielder Ron Northey, summoned for physical.

Pittsburgh—Pitchers Hank Gornicki, Wally Hebert, reclassified 1-A.

Cincinnati—Second Baseman Lonnie Frey, reclassified 1-A.

Washington—First Sacker Mickey Vernon, Infielder Sherrard Robertson, inducted in Navy.

Franklin and Marshall Seeks Bowl Game Bid

Philadelphia, Nov. 16 (AP).—Franklin and Marshall, the only Pennsylvania college undefeated on the gridiron so far in 1943, put out a bid today for an invitation to play in a postseason Bowl game.

Dr. Charles W. Mayser, athletics director, said E. J. (Buck) Jones of Buffalo and William Iancilli of Altoona, Pa., Navy trainees mentioned for All-America berths, will be available to play if a Bowl game can be arranged.

Commodores Await Final Duke Answer

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 16 (AP).—Bainbridge Naval Training Station officials said today they were awaiting receipt of a letter from the Duke University Athletic Council concerning a disputed game November 27, between the Bainbridge Commodores and the Blue Devils, but left little doubt that they considered the tilt definitely out.

Lieut. Ralph H. Plumb of the Bainbridge Athletic Office said he had talked today by telephone with Eddie Cameron, Duke coach, and Cameron said the game was "completely out of my hands."

Plumb said Cameron told him the letter from the athletic council would "explain the position" of Duke authorities.

"Cameron would make no statement one way or another about possibility of the game," Plumb added.

Bainbridge said that although no contract had been signed, it had understood there was a definite agreement to play the game, but Cameron was quoted yesterday as declaring that the meeting had never been finally arranged.

"I told Cameron that we didn't like the way he had given the impression that the game never was scheduled," Plumb said.

"As for our insisting upon the game, that is out. We naturally would like to play it, but we're not trying to force anybody to play us and won't hold Duke to it."

6 Redskins Are Excused From Drill

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Six of the Redskins' regulars were excused from all or part of the week's first practice session last night at Griffith Stadium and Coach Dutch Bergman was faced with the loss of Willie Wilkin and Dick Farman for the Chicago Bear game here Sunday afternoon.

Leg and knee injuries are bothering most of the injured men and Farman was excused from practice yesterday and today. Unquestionably on his way to another season as all-league guard, Farman will report Thursday and Friday for treatments but will not be asked to take part in a practice session all week. He will be in uniform Sunday but unless his injured leg takes an unexpected turn for the better he will sit the Bear game out.

Wilkin, kicked on his bad knee early in the Detroit game, reported yesterday afternoon to Trainer "Doc" Bohm for heat treatments. He dressed for practice, but merely hobbled around the field and Bergman is not counting on his services.

Masterson Limps, Too

Capt. Bob Masterson added a pulled leg muscle to his ankle sprain and spent all his time with Bohm. Like Wilkin, Masterson was walking with a decided limp.

Bob Seymour and Ray Hare were excused from practice after a few minutes of fresh air with leg injuries of a technical nature. Sammy Baugh also turned in early, but Sam's trouble was luckily confined to a bruised rib. He kicked and passed without a semblance of an injury but as a precautionary measure did not participate in the entire workout.

Steve Slivinski, who missed the Detroit game, benefited from the day off and was his usual self yesterday.

The hardest runner on the field was Andy Farkas, who showed no trace of his knee hurts of the previous week, while George Smith has apparently shaken off his foot injury.

The workout was confined to calisthentics, a passing and kicking drill and the usual Tuesday touch football game with the linemen against the backs. The hard work will start today with defense against the T-formation and Sid Luckman a keynote of the drills.

On the bright side of yesterday's workout was the kicking of George Cafego, who was booming punts consistently over 60 yards, Cafego idled most of the time with the Dodgers, however, and he does not appear ready for a tough ball game just yet. Cafego's task this week will be impersonating Sid Luckman in working against the Redskin regulars.

Spears Lectures

Dr. Clarence Spears lectured after the workout and he called Sid Luckman's passing show Sunday against the New York Giants the greatest he has ever seen, and the good doctor has seen the best. Spears cautioned the Redskins against the great work of the Bear ends, particularly Jim Benton.

The Bears returned to Chicago and started workouts yesterday with Sid Luckman, who remained in New York for speaking appointments and a visit with his family, the only absentee. In their last 36 league and exhibition games the Bears have won 34, tied 1 (Packers) and lost 1, to the Redskins last year in the championship playoff.

Host 'by Proxy' At Annual Dinner

Memphis, Tenn. (AP).—Bob Porter, coach of Memphis Central High, made it a custom to entertain his football squad every year with a banquet.

Time for the fete rolled around this year and Bob was far away in the Pacific—an ensign in the Navy. But the banquet went on as scheduled. The coach made all arrangements by mail and was host "by proxy."

All Pimlico Betting Records Exceeded in Combined Meet

Baltimore, Nov. 16 (AP).—All Pimlico wagering records were broken during the 30-day meeting which the four major Maryland tracks jointly conducted there, as the average daily mutuel handle reached $870,421, which was 42 per cent higher than the handle during the spring meeting, official figures disclosed today.

Prior to the five-week meeting which closed Saturday, Pimlico had seen relatively few days on which the betting passed one million dollars, the largest being the 1921—or Man O' War—Preakness year. But in the season which just closed, the handle surpassed one million dollars on six days—five Saturdays and a Thursday.

Because of transportation problems, mile track racing in Maryland was cut from 100 to 50 days during the current year.

Total wagering for the 50 days of racing at the Maryland Jockey Club oval in spring and fall meetings was $38,373,055, compared with $43,092,421 in 100 days at four tracks in 1942.

Since the State collects 2 per cent of the total wagering at the major tracks, this tax in 1943 amounted to $767,461.10, compared with $861,848.42 for twice as long a season in 1942.

The Pimlico handle for the last three meetings was:

Meeting.	Total wagering.	Average handle.
Fall 1942 (13 days)	$6,897,160	$530,546
Spring '43 (30 days)	12,200,400	613,020
Fall 1943 (30 days)	26,112,655	870,421

Pimlico normally has only 25 days of racing each year, but the Legislature permitted 50 days this year since the three other tracks could not operate at their own plants.

Saturday, the closing day, was the biggest betting day with 18,800 persons pouring $1,414,956 through the mutuel windows. That day and the previous Saturday surpassed the 1921 Preaknes handle, which had stood as a Maryland record for 22 years.

Attendance at the fall meeting averaged 12,221, a slight decline from the 12,424 average of the spring meeting, which included a Preakness day on which 29,381 persons crowded the track.

Duke and N. C. Plugging Holes For Encore

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—Football teams of Duke and North Carolina, impressed by recent performances of each other, are losing no time in plugging any weak spots in their tactics.

An encore contest between the two elevens headlines the Southern Conference bill this weekend.

North Carolina scouts told their team they believed Duke's first string was stronger than Pennsylvania, 9-6 victim of the Tarheels Saturday, and was much deeper in reserves.

Over in Durham, it was a serious-minded crew that gathered around Coach Eddie Cameron as preparations for the game began. With many tried performers gone to naval duty elsewhere, Duke coaches say many of their players are as yet unproved in a major test.

North Carolina's Coach Tom Young, scanning such Duke scores as 49-0 over Virginia Saturday, 75-0 over North Carolina State the week before, and others to make a total of 308 points this season, sent the Tarheels through an exhaustive defense drill.

Cameron, commenting that there were plenty of rough spots in Duke's game, indicated intention to concentrate on every department for the rest of the week.

In their first game this season, Duke defeated North Carolina, 14 to 7. It isn't the first time in the history of competition between the two schools that two games were played in a single season.

Other conference teams go afield Saturday, Clemson, 32-6 loser to Georgia Navy Preflight Saturday, invades Georgia Tech in Atlanta; Maryland goes to Lakehurst Navy, Wake Forest plays at Camp Lejeune and South Carolina plays host to Milligan of Tennessee.

North Carolina State, unscheduled until November 25, took a holiday yesterday, as did Wake Forest. Clemson's squad worked lightly, with Tailbacks Arthur Trumpore and Leonard Riddle and End Harry Chappel on the sidelines.

Purdue Cagers To Play 21 Games

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 16 (AP).—A 21-game schedule for Purdue's basketball team was announced today by Athletic Director Guy Mackey.

Eleven home games are included. Among these are single games with Indiana and Northwestern and two-game stands against Minnesota and Michigan.

The complete schedule:

December 11, Greencastle Naval preflight, here; 15, De Pauw; 18, Great Lakes, at Great Lakes; 23, Notre Dame, at South Bend; 28, Greencastle Naval Preflight, at Greencastle.

January 3, Notre Dame; 8, Indiana; 14 and 15, Minnesota; 21 and 22, Michigan; 29, DePaul, at Chicago Stadium.

February 4 and 5, Ohio State, at Columbus; 11, Wabash; 14, Great Lakes; 18, Iowa, at Iowa City; 19, Wisconsin at Madison; 25, Chicago, at Chicago; 26, Northwestern, at Evanston.

March 4, Indiana, at Bloomington.

National Horse Show Canceled

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—There will be no National Horse Show this year, Amory L. Haskell, president of the show, announced today. He cited the inability of many exhibitors to arrange entries, due to curtailed stables, manpower shortages and other difficulties brought about by war conditions.

Roosevelt's Drazin Given Weekly Award

Sidney Drazin, Roosevelt High School's versatile end and back, yesterday experienced the thrill of a lifetime.

While an audience which included Dr. C. W. Spears, head football coach and athletic director of the University of Maryland, and Arthur J. (Dutch) Bergman, coach of the Washington Redskins, applauded vigorously, Drazin was awarded the $25 war bond donated the outstanding schoolboy athlete of the week by the Touchdown Club.

Drazin played one of the finest games seen on a District gridiron in years last Thursday as his Roosevelt Rough Riders lost to Calvin Coolidge High School in a third period rush, 26-0.

Dr. Spears predicted that Bronko Nagurski, the great All-America fullback which he and Bergman developed at the University of Minnesota some years ago will prove a potent power in the Bears' backfield Sunday.

Rough Time Competes in $1000 Test

Offering the best line-up of horses every to set hoofs on a half-mile track hereabouts, Marlboro opens its delayed 10-day meeting this afternoon with a 1:30 p. m. post time. Generally offering but a sprinkling of horses who have been performing on major tracks, the Prince Georges County course has an entry list composed of 85 per cent horses who moved over from Pimlico.

Among the eagerly-sought purses is the Upper Marlboro, the afternoon feature and a test of a mile and a sixteenth for 3-year-olds and up. The nine horses listed performed at the Baltimore meeting and should provide real action. The line-up includes, among others, Mrs. Elmer Trueman's Indian Sun, Alan Clarke's Nellie Mowlee and J. Y. Christmas' entry of Rough Time and Connachta.

Four Sprint Races

The program is equally divided between sprinters and distance horses and the four dashes, opening the card, included a good 2-year-old field with Bart O'War, Ecolita, Leave, Mercy Angel, Gambling Andy and other Pimlico performers ready to go into the starting stalls.

With a minimum of $600 purses and a generous sprinkling of $700 and $1000 pots, Marlboro can be expected to present other equally as promising programs. Limit fields of eight seem to be assured in every race today. Just what jockeys Marlboro will draw will not be known until the program is out today, but several sizeabel stables have horses on the grounds and the better-known riders are likely to be around.

Tote Is Ready

Marlboro lacks crowd conveniences but offers up-to-the-minute methods for conducting racing. It has the American Tote, electric starting gate, photo finishes and practically the same official line-up as at Pimlico.

Marlboro is the third of the Maryland half-milers to have racing this year. Hagerstown and Cumberland had their meetings, but Bel Air passed up an opportunity for dates and Timonium was taken over by the Army. At the conclusion of the 10-day Marlboro session, the horses will move to Charles Town for their last stand of 1943 in this section.

Mixer Captures Ted Atkinson Purse at Salem

Salem, N. H., Nov. 16 (AP).—It was Teddy Atkinson Day at Rockingham Park and the well known jockey served as an honorary steward as Mrs. W. Renaud's Mixer won the featured Ted Atkinson Purse on a track mantled with snow.

H. M. Boshamer's Flange finished second and P. Palladino's Penobscot Bay was third in the mile and one-sixteenth, which the winner covered in 1:50 flat.

The winner, an odds-on favorite, returned $3.60, $3 and $2.20. Flaught paid $6.80 and $3.20 and the show price on Penobscot Bay was $2.60.

Bainbridge to Watch Exhibition Net Matches

Bainbridge, Md., Nov. 16 (AP).—The sailors at the Bainbridge Naval Training Station will see exhibition tennis matches Thursday night between two of the world's ranking women aces and two tennists from Bainbridge's ranks, who are also ranking professionals.

Mary Hardwick and Pauline Betz will team with Bobby Riggs and Wayne Sabin in presenting the series of singles and doubles matches. Approximately 5000 sailors are expected to see the exhibitions.

D. C.'s Dellastatious Near Top In Big Six Conference Scoring

Kansas City, Nov. 16 (AP).—Oklahoma and Missouri players continue to monopolize top spots in the Big Six Conference individual scoring races.

Shifty Bob Brumley of the Sooners added 6 points to his total on spectacular 47-yard touchdown run against Missouri and place-kicked two extra points. He has 65 points for the Sooners' eight games this year, 29 more than his nearest rivals, Don Reece and Bill Dellastatious, Missouri's star back from Washington, D. C., and Derald Lebow of Oklahoma.

Dellastatious, forced from Saturday's game in the first quarter after suffering a dislocated elbow, still holds the lead in Conference play with 36 points. Brumley cut the Tiger halfback's lead, however, and now holds second place with 34 points, followed by Reece and Lebow with 30 each.

In the team department Missouri leads in point getting with 139 for four games, while Oklahoma, the unbeaten leader, boasts the top defensive mark, permitting only 33 points in four games.

The scoring leaders:

Conference Games	G.	Td.	Pat.	Fg.	Pts.
Bill Dellastatious (Mo.)	4	6	0	0	36
Bob Brumley (Oklahoma)	4	4	10	0	34
Don Reece (Missouri)	4	5	0	0	30
Derald Lebow (Oklahoma)	4	5	0	0	30
Hal Crisler (Iowa State)	2	3	0	0	18
Howard Tippee (Iowa St.)	4	2	0	0	12
Leland Bussell (Missouri)	4	2	0	0	12

Navy Likely To Face Army Slight Choice

Annapolis, Nov. 16 (AP).—Based on a comparison of the opposition throughout the season, Navy should enter the Army-Navy football tussle on November 27 a slight favorite.

Middie coaches who are in position to know said recently that they considered teams like Georgia Tech and Duke to be equal to any elevens in the country with the exception of the Notre Dame tornado.

And in those frays, Navy came out the victor over both the Blue Devils from Duke and the Yellow Jackets from Tech.

Army, on the other hand, has run roughshod over teams such as Villanova, Temple and Yale, gridiron opponents who have a great pigskin tradition to uphold in peacetime but who are not up to par in this war-tear season.

Total offensive scores for the fall of 1943 show the Army Cadets leading the Midshipmen by a slim margin. The West Point squad has chalked up 240 points against a total score for their opponents of 53 while the men from the Naval Academy have scored 224 markers and granted 80.

Navy sports a better record against Notre Dame and Penn than Army—the two opponents which both service elevens have tested in common this year. The Cadets were tied by Pennsylvania, 13 to 13, and shut out by Notre Dame, 26 to 0.

The Middies swamped Penn, 24 to 7, and were able to score against the South Bend eleven, though losing, 33 to 6.

On the assumption that Army will be able to overcome a stubborn Brown University squad this coming Saturday, the two service teams will probably enter West Point Stadium with the following records:

Army—Wins over Villanova, Colgate, Temple, Columbia, Yale, Sampson Naval Station and Brown; a tie with Penn and a loss to Notre Dame. Navy—Wins over North Carolina Preflight, Cornell, Duke, Penn State, Georgia Tech, Penn, Columbia; a loss to Notre Dame.

However, Navy coaches do not place much faith in pregame statistics, since they consider the Army game a gridiron struggle apart from the regular schedule, neither team will rate the favorite on November 27, the coaches declare.

Steinbeck Sees 'Plywood Navy' On Secret Moonlit Sea Mission

By John Steinbeck

The triple lines of torpedo boats drummed on in the moonlight on a smooth sea and each boat ran over the wake of the boat ahead of it. They were spaced several hundred yards apart and they kept their distance one from the other. On the little bridge of the 412 the signalman leaned forward over the rail and kept his eyes on the lead boat, the command boat of the "plywood" squadron. Twice more there were alerts for aircraft but no plane came close enough to shoot at. But the gunners sat alert in their turrets and now and then they waggled their guns just to see that they swung free.

The big moon moved down in the western sky and the night became more milky than ever and the light of the moon streak on the water was almost blinding. The signalman leaned forward over the rail and peered at the command boat and from it came the little winking light. The signalman answered with his blinker and the winking went on from the command boat. The signalman turned to the captain. (Eleven lines deleted by censor.)

The captain went down into the little chart room. When he came back he called to the signalman. "Tell Arthur we're going to break loose," he said.

Oredered to "Go Ahead"

The signalman aimed his blinker and fired his message at the command boat, and in a moment the blinking came back. "He says go ahead," the signalman said.

The 412 swung off to the left sharply and the boat behind pulled up and restored the formation. The "plywood" squadron moved on and in a very short time it had disappeared into the uneasy light from the moon.

The captain set the course number and the 412 set out at a 45-degree angle to the course of the squadron. Very far off to the right a brilliant white light popped in the sky and then fireworks went up at it, lines of fire like skyrockets and bursts of red light. The captain said, "Our boys are bombing the hell out of Italy tonight. That gives us an idea how close the coast is anyway."

Ten minutes later the captain gave an order and the 412 slowed down and her mufflers went on so that the roar went out of her and only a whispering came from her engines. She did not throw a white wake any more, but only drew curved lines behind her. The captain and his first were talking. "I guess I ought to wait until moonset, but I'd like to get it over and get back to the others," the captain said.

"This light is tricky," the man at the wheel said. "It's almost better than darkness unless you get the moon right behind you."

"Should we take a chance?" the captain asked.

"Sure. There isn't much on this coast, anyway."

The 412 slid silently along and now you could see the suggestion of mountains ahead, just insecure cloudlike things that were the Italian coast. The captain said: "If anything opens on us, don't make any crash run until you're pretty sure they see us. Sometimes they just fire without really seeing you. But if they get our position, run like hell." The first nodded from the wheel. The gunners stretched themselves and stirred in their little turrets. The port gunner lifted the belts of cartridges of his twin guns and let them fall back to make sure they were free. Then suddenly the coast loomed up out of the sea. The moonlight is like that. Things appear without warning. (Fourteen lines deleted by censor.)

The Roosters Crow

It was very quiet, no sound of surf only a ringing in the ears. The 412 rolled slightly. Then from the shore to the south there came the sound of a rooster crowing and another rooster answered him in a higher pitch and then an adolescent rooster with a cracking voice tried to get into the thing but his voice broke in the middle. (One line deleted by censor.)

The captain watched the shore uneasily. Then suddenly a boat seemed to materialize out of the tricky light. (Six lines deleted by censor.)

The captain spoke to his first. The propellers turned faster and the 412 moved quietly away from the coast, and turned its course southward. "We ought to pick up the others pretty soon," the captain said, and to the signalman, "Keep your eyes peeled and be ready with that recognition signal or they'll blow us out of the water."

Fort Monroe Ready For Norfolk Marines

Fort Monroe, Va., Nov. 16 (AP).—In their best physical shape of the season after Saturday's break in a tough nine-game schedule, Fort Monroe's gridders have begun scrimmaging in preparation for their tilt with the Norfolk Fleet Marines at Foreman Field in Norfolk Sunday.

Winners over the Marines by an 18-0 score in the second game of the season, the Monroe soldiers probably will be winding up their season when they go against the Norfolk squad a second time.

Nelson Won't Quit If WPB Stays on Top

Donald Nelson, War Production Board Czar, told his staff the other day that he would stick it out with WPB as long as it's a top agency and as long as he's wanted on the job. He would quit, he said, if WPB is delegated to a second rate position some observers believe it's headed for. Nelson made his statement to scotch rumors that (1) he would resign, and (2) that he was to be given another big job as chief of construction for United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation. Friends say he's confident and determined that WPB will land back on top in the present undercover fight for control.

KLUTTZ

The scrap for power is over who'll have authority to convert business back to a peacetime basis. WPB guided the building of our war industry machine and its people believe they should have the job of unwinding it . . . they have all the facilities and machinery. But the President has given the postwar conversion job to Bernard Baruch, and there are reports that Baruch plans to set up an operating agency. On the other hand it's reported on excellent authority that WPB will be given some responsibility for postwar conversion and an executive order on it can be expected within a few weeks. Meantime, the big job facing Nelson is holding his organization together until the decision is made. WPB employes have the 'peace jitters" and many of them are threatening to follow Charles Wilson and several other big shots back to private industry.

INFLATION NOTE: An official at War Manpower had tried repeatedly to hire a $1260 messenger through Civil Service. He wanted to hire the neighbor boys and girls but had no luck. The other day he noticed a boy on the sidewalk handing out samples of peanuts to passersby. The manpower official accepted the handout and proceeded to offer the boy what he thought would be a good job and big salary for him. The peanut dispenser gave him a disgusted look and told him that he was not only making more money than the Government offered but that he turned down better jobs every day.

Timothy Mooney, the able career man at Internal Revenue, has refused an offer to become assistant commissioner of the bureau. The truth is that Mooney is seriously thinking of quitting to enter private law practice here. He has turned down many attractive offers to stick with the Government in times past but he has recently confided to friends that the tax laws are getting so complicated that they are becoming extremely difficult to understand and administer . . . In a move to cut down on long-winded phone conversations — especially long-distance calls—WPB officials have hour glasses on their desks which take about three minutes for the sand to flow from one glass to another and it's hoped, end the conversation.

Despite all the talk, the Senate Appropriations Committee is reported to have agreed tentatively to give the Office of War Information a five million dollar appropriation. The committee heard OWI officials for only an hour . . . Mary Anselmo won the $5 prize for the best name for the Arlington Farms newspaper. Her suggestion was Arlingazette . . . Residents of the Chastleton Hotel have lined up two powerful Senators in their worthwhile fight to keep the Navy from taking over the hotel for its WAVES. The Navy is playing with dynamite if it grabs off the hotel in military fashion and shoves out the residents. First, many Federal workers in the apartment will go back where they came from and tell everyone what a screwball place Washington is, and second, a move is being made to restrict the Navy's appropriation so it can't pull tricks of this sort, thinking only of itself. Legal minds believe the Chastleton deal would have to be approved by the Naval Affairs Committees of Congress and that's why residents are working on committee members.

New York City has one of the toughest draft boards in the country on Federal workers. It wants to put all Federal workers in the military. . . . The Society for the Advancement of Management will meet tonight in the YWCA to discuss manpower utilization. Eugene Bewkes of War Manpower will be the speaker. . . . Tomorrow will be "mission day" in the Federal service, and it's hoped $350,000 can be raised to meet the Government quota for the Community War fund. Employes receiving $3000 and more who have pledged less than $10 will be asked to give $5 each, and employes who have pledged less than $5 will be asked to give $1 each. . . . War's Quartermaster Corps raised a nice purse for the fund on Saturday by giving a bingo party. Employes who joined the game were let off work an hour early.

Pupils--and Teachers--Have Fun at Eastern High

EASTERN HIGH SCHOOL PRESENTS ITS FALL SHOW—Faculty members and more than a score of students yesterday held class in the school auditorium—and no complaint about the change of scenery was heard. Charles (Chief) Guyon, dean of the athletic staff, and W. Barrett (Joe Kupperman) Fuchs, biology instructor, portray the "Quiz Kids." "If you subtract 293,458,365,241 from 623,597,429,640," the chief asked, "what is the difference?" Said Fuchs: "That's right. What IS the difference?" A more serious note was struck by the sigh of Phyllis Justice, who, looking at Richard Greenfield and David Nacht, breaks out in the popular song: "They're Either Too Young or Too Old"

6 Ploesti Raid Heroes From D. C. Honored

Six Washington area men have been decorated for their part in the bombardment of the Ploesti oil refineries in Rumania August 1, the War Department announced yesterday.

DODD

Receiving decorations were Capt. Carl C. Barthel, 4810 Erskine rd., College Park, Md., awarded the Silver Star; Lieut. Lloyd E. Holloway, jr., 3624 Connecticut ave. nw. the bronze oak leaf cluster to the Distinguished Flying Cross, and Lieut. Theodore N. Gill, 3d, 3022 P st. nw., Staff Sergt. Herschel W. Dodd, 2825 Monroe st. nw., Staff Sergt. Charles F. White, whose address was given as 1404 Meridian st. nw., and Sergt. Lowell C. Vick, of Falls Church, Va., who were decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross.

United States Liberators flew a round trip of more than 2000 miles on the mission, which according to the War Department, destroyed 42 per cent of the total Rumanian refining capacity. Fifty-three of the 177 attackers fell victim to machine-gun fire, flak, 88 - millimeter antiaircraft, barrage balloons, "and practically every type of aircraft the Axis had in the area."

HOLLOWAY

Captain Barthel, navigator in the deputy leader's Liberator, was given the Silver Star because he "so successfully manned his guns that he personnally silenced the guns of an anti-aircraft battery that was attacking the formation at point-blank range.

"The lead plane was shot down over the target and Captain Barthel, with unerring skill, led the aircraft on the long journey home," the official statement said.

Before entering the Army in July, 1941, Captain Barthel attended the University of Maryland and was employed as an instructor in physical education by the John Carroll Boys School in Silver Spring. He received his commission in May, 1942 and was sent overseas the following August. The 26-year-old navigator has two brothers in the service, Lieut. Robert A. Barthel with then Navy Medical Corps and Pvt. John P. Barthel with the Medical Corps of the Army.

GILL

Lieutenant Holloway, 23, also a navigator, recently completed nine months of combat flying overseas and is now stationed in Atlantic City, N. J. A resident of the District for nine years, he was a clerk in the postoffice before entering the Air Corps in January, 1942. He was graduated from the navigators' school at Monroe, La., and wen overseas last January.

Lieutenant Gill, 27, a bombardier, received his wings at the Army Flying School, Midland, Tex., in July, 1942. A graduate of Harvard, he worked for the City Bank while a civilian. He is now at home on furlough awaiting a new assignment. A brother, Pvt. John W. Gill, a gunner in the Air Corps, is stationed in England.

Sergeant Dodd, 23, gunner on a Liberator, enlisted in the Army immediately after Pearl Harbor and trained at fields in Washington, Arizona, Nevada, and New Mexico. Overseas since May he previously had been decorated with the Air Medal and the Oak Leaf Cluster. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Herschel H. Dodd, he has two brothers, Larry and Richard, who plan to enter the Air Corps when they complete their schooling. His wife, Mrs. Zoe Dodd makes her home at 4911 Calver trd., College Park, Md.

4 Servicemen Donate $100 To War Fund as Memorial

A letter and $100 contribution from four Washington men in the armed forces, given in memory of six friends, former members of the Boys Club, reported killed or missing in action, was received yesterday at Community War Fund headquarters as the campaign lagged in its final week.

Coleman Jennings, campaign chairman, explained that the men had sent the letter "in the hope that it will stimulate the people on the home front to accept their responsibilities and put Community War Fund over the top."

The letter was signed by Capt. Barnwell Smith, of the United States Army Air Forces; Seaman First Class William Scraggs, of the United States Navy; Pvt. Peter Cokas, of the US Army Glider Corps, and Pvt. George Cokas, of the US Army, all former members of the Boys Club of Washington. Their contribution was in memory of their pals whom they had known in the club, now reported lost.

The latter include George Woods and Everett Meeks, US Navy; Joseph Gooding and Jake Lewis, US Army Air Forces; Melvin Shewbridge, US Coast Guard; Hugh Armstrong, US Army.

"We were home on furlough not long ago and met at our old club, Central Branch, to talk things over," the four Washington men wrote. "We were surprised and disappointed to hear the Community War Fund had not reached its goal."

They explained that the lag concerned them because they remembered how many years of pleasure they had received in the Boys Club and that it was responsible for their background needed in the armed forces.

"So, for that reason and in memory of six former members of the Boys Club of Washington who have given their lives to the service of their country, we wish to offer a contribution of $100 from the present and alumni members of the club to the Community War Fund, in the hope that this will stimulate the people on the home front to put Community War Fund over the top."

War Fund workers throughout Government offices, whose gifts to the Community War Fund average $7.79 per person, are hopeful of raising that average on a "Mission Accomplished Day" tomorrow. To date, 262,732 employes have pledged $2,047,000, or 85.29 per cent of the Government's division's quota of $2,400,000. The total amount collected by all divisions will be announced at the concluding luncheon Friday at the Chamber of Commerce Hall of Flags.

Sedition Jury Hears Hurja And O'Connor

Former Representative John O'Connor of New York and Emil Hurja, one-time vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, were in Distrcit Court yesterday to testify before the grand jury investigating seditious activity in this country before and after Pearl Harbor.

O'Connor, purged by the New Deal in 1938, was attorney for George Hill, 45, who in 1941 was convicted of perjury. Hill, secretary to Representative Hamilton Fish of New York, was charged with falsely telling a grand jury that he had refused to accept 20 mail bags of franked envelopes from the headquarters of Prescott Dennett, now under indictment on a charge of conspiring to undermine military morale.

Hill admitted receiving sums of money from George Sylvester Viereck, now serving a jail sentence for failing to register a Nazi agent.

'Mr. Smith' Due to Return This Week to Face Charges

By Adele Bernstein

Unless the United States marshal in Chicago is too busy with some such matter as hauling a load of prisoners to Leavenworth, according to FBI headquarters, the ubiquitous "Mr. Smith" should be in our midst once more this week—probably on Friday.

Tommorw he will be arrainged before a United States commissioner in that city on a charge of violating the National Stolen Property Act, preparatory to his removal to Washington.

No delay is expected in extradition since, Assistant United States Attorney John Fihelly said yesterday, "Smith" has indicated that he will "voluntarily" return here with, will be limited to two of the ten reportedly bogus checks he cashed here under a variety of names during a week of talent-scouting and "Capital capering." But, if these should fail to produce a substantial indictment, U. S. Attorney Edward M. Curran may call the grand jury's attention to other possible violations of local statutes —false pretenses and forgery.

The District grand jury is awaiting him almost as eagerly as the Statler Hotel and two local department stores he expertly included in his money-making scheme less than two weeks ago.

Meanwhile, the rapidly expanding dossier on "Foster Smith," Arnold Lester as he is known to the FBI, produced another 15-year-old item on his background. Back in 1928, while Cleveland police were looking for him on some local problem, he was spending a week in a Hampton, Va., jail, trying to educate his lawyer in how to raise $600 with which to pay off a few people who complained about bouncing checks and unfulfilled promises of movie careers.

His operations at that time had taken him from Old Point Comfort clear through Hampton to Newport News. Four books on high finance were his cellmates, and his lawyer was given a lesson in fund raising each time he visited his client.

After about a week, however, the lawyer succumbed and with deep misgivings negotiated the sale of "Mr. Smith's" motion picture camera—which he guessed was "hot"—and his client was freed, just ahead of the Cleveland police.

Lame Puppy Faces Demise for Lack of a Home

A month-old Dalmatian puppy is in danger of being destroyed because he was born with a lame foot and, although he has a score of admirers, not one of them is able to give a little dog a home.

The pup is known as "Limpy" around North End Stable near Silver Spring, Md., where he lives with five other brothers and sisters, all children of two fine Dalmatians named Trotter and True Call.

Coach dog fanciers may recall the grownup dogs as parents of an all-black Dalmatian that made headlines when he arrived at North End last spring, in a litter of six other perfectly normal spotted puppies.

Their owners, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Hallman, would like to keep little Limpy as a mascot because they regard him as the best-marked puppy of the current batch. But they already are operating a small-scale Dalmatian farm that somewhat prohibits acquiring any more dogs, what with meat shortages.

The puppies' veterinary, asked for an opinion about Limpy's future, declared that he would never have full use of the right front leg because it has no bone, and advised that he be destroyed unless a good home could be found for him.

And a dozen animal lovers, who keep their show horses at North End and have observed the puppies from their birth, protested against putting Limpy out of the way because otherwise he is in perfect health. But all of them either own a full quota of dogs or live in too small quarters to harbor an exuberant Dalmatian—so they cannot provide him with a home.

Meanwhile, Limpy, oblivious to the excitement he is creating at the stable, tussles with his brothers and sisters and chews engagingly on the fingers of his guests.

The furore reminds the Hallmans of the days when the all-black Dalmatian was the object of attention, and was supposed to remain at North End as a mascot until a stable boy unknowingly sold him. Everyone at the stable still is anxious to know who bought the little fellow and how he is progressing.

BARNABY

By Crockett Johnson

Now that that dog has quieted down, I'd like to get in a little practice on my Little Marvel Voice Thrower . . . Somehow word got around that I had written away for this amazing device and I was prevailed upon to give a ventriloquistic performance.
You're going to give a show?
Yes. Just for my colleagues at the Elves, Leprechauns, Gnomes and Little Men's Chowder & Marching Society. And I feel I need a bit more practice to achieve the degree of perfection they have grown to expect from any of my varied endeavors.
But it hasn't worked at all yet, has it, Mr. O'Malley?
Well, no, not YET . . . But what I'm most worried about, Barnaby, is what sort of dummy to get for my act . . . McSnoyd, the Leprechaun, ventured the opinion that I didn't need a dummy, but inasmuch as ventriloquists always use them, I feel—
Say! I have it!

Gallinger Absolved in Nurse Death

Commissioner Guy Mason yesterday issued with his sanction the report of a local pathologist absolving Gallinger Hospital of blame in the death of Addie Mae Carroll, nurse, whose death eight days after she was discharged from Gallinger Hospital as "cured," was brought to public attention by a Washington Post reporter.

Miss Carroll had been confined in Gallinger tubercular and psychiatric wards for nine months, but the autopsy report showed she died of diabetes mellitus.

The report issued by the Commissioner questioned, as did earlier reports by doctors at Gallinger, whether Miss Carroll had in fact died of diabetes but gave no credence to implications she may have died a suicide from an overdose of drugs.

Prepared by Choisser

The report was prepared by Dr. Roger M. Choisser, retired Navy doctor and professor of pathology at George Washington University, to whom Commissioner Mason submitted 11 items of record and report for analysis.

He asked Dr. Choisser's judgment as "a disinterested party and a nonpracticing physician," and also as an "expert pathologist."

Dr. Choisser said he believes Miss Carroll "received proper attention while at Gallinger and also upon her admission to Casualty Hospital (the day before her death) and that everything humanly possible was done to prevent the ultimate outcome."

He said he did not believe, however, that drugs may have caused her death as opined by two of Gallinger's physicians—Dr. Michael Puzak and Dr. L. C. Cake, chief of the tuberculosis ward at Gallgher. They had made reports on the case earlier.

Reasons for Suspicion

Dr. Puzak said that a nurse friend had told him about "a bottle," and that "there was a question in my mind whether Miss Carroll had actual diabetes mellitus or just an elevated blood sugar from drug intoxication. Dr. Cake had reported that urinalysis of May 26, 1941, had shown no sugar and indicated there was some reason to suspect that death had been caused by drugs.

Dr. Choisser said there was no evidence supporting suicide because drugs never produced "massive hyperglycoma with acidosis." He said it was his opinion Miss Carroll died of natural causes.

Records by the Gallinger staff and other public agencies concerned were "clearly presented, thoroughly scientific, and in accordance with the accepted methods of medical practice," according to Dr. Choisser.

Demoted Cop Sues Officials for $150,000

A damage suit for $150,000 against Commissioner John Russell Young, Police Chief Edward J. Kelly and Inspector Robert J. Barrett, chief of detectives, was filed at District Court yesterday by Policeman Robert J. Maghan, jr.

Maghan, who recently was demoted from detective sergeant to uniformed private, contended his reduction in rank came about because he notified "the proper judicial authorities" about a party Barrett gave for friends and associates following his promotion to detective chief.

The suit charged the three city officials with slander, libel, maladministration, acceptance of gratuities and liquor from underworld characters, banqueting 500 persons on beef without regard to rationing regulations and on turkeys when they were denied to civilians.

John Laskey, chief attorney of the District OPA, revealed that he has ordered an investigation of the charges on the basis of information he had received about the party.

The party was held at the Elks Club September 12 and was attended by about 400 policemen, their wives, sons and daughters, and friends of Barrett.

Through his attorney, James J. Laughlin, Maghan charged also that about 8 kegs of beer and about 10 cases of liquor were served which were "not obtained in the ordinary course of business and in accordance with the prevailing alcoholic control regulations.

Beer and liquor consumed, the suit charged "was furnished as a gratuity by certain underworld characters in violation of the District Code, which prohibits a police officer from receiving a gift without the approval of the District Commissioners."

The suit is another move in Maghan's efforts to regain his Detective Bureau rank. Laughlin insists his client was unjustly demoted because he threatened to expose details of the party and other happenings within the Police Department.

Previous efforts of Maghan, which included an injunction suit, have been unsuccessful.

Young, Kelly and Barrett all denied the accusations yesterday and withheld comment. Young said he had turned the matter over to the corporation counsel.

Kelly and Barrett so far have been silent on why Maghan was demoted other than that it was for "the good of the service." They say they will take care of Maghan's allegations at the proper time.

Two WAAF Traffic Victims Honored by U. S. Servicewomen

DAVENTRY WATSON RODWELL

Flowers, Messages Of Sympathy Sent By WACS, WAVES

The two members of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force of the British Legation who were killed early yesterday in an automobile collision were honored yesterday by all the women's branches of the American armed forces. The two English girls who died while they were serving in a foreign land were Section Officer Monica Madelene Daventry, 31, of Worcestershire, England, and Section Officer Ruth Patricia Watson, 26, of London. They were engaged here on communication duties at the RAF delegation and were returning home from their jobs when the accident occurred at 1:55 a. m. at Albemarle st. and Nebraska ave. nw.

A coworker, Section Officer Dorothy Agnes Rodwell, 30, was seriously injured.

Throughout yesterday messages of sympathy and flowers in memory of the British girls poured into the RAF delegation from the WACS, WAVES, SPARS and Women Marines.

Section Officer Daventry had been in Washington since February 2. Formerly a telephone operator, she enlisted in the WAAF in September, 1939, and was rapidly promoted to flight sergeant instructor. Stationed for a time with the RAF Coastal Command, she was cited in 1941 for outstanding services. An amateur actress, she played in the RAF play "Flarepath" in Washington last May.

Section Officer Watson, a former receptionist in a doctor's office, enlisted in the WAAF six months before the war. She won her commission in six months and came to Washington in September of this year. Her father is an officer in the Royal Navy.

Section Officer Rodwell came to Washington in May. She was a close friend and roommate of Section Officer Daventry at 3847 Chesapeake st. nw. Section Officer Watson lived at 2337 Ashmead pl. nw.

Members of British Contingent Perish In Auto Crash

D. C. traffic deaths this year . 79
Deaths this date last year ... 92
District total last year 108

Two members of the British Women's Auxiliary Air Force were killed and a third WAAF and three other persons were injured early yesterday when an automobile and a station wagon collided at Albemarle st. and Nebraska ave. nw.

The dead are: Monica N. Daventry, 31, of 3847 Chesapeake st. nw., who died at Georgetown Hospital, and Ruth P. Watson, 26, of 2337 Ashmead pl. nw., who died at Emergency Hospital.

A third WAAF, Dorothy A. Rodwell, 30, who lived with Miss Daventry, was taken to Emergency Hospital where she was treated for a lacerated scalp. She was later transferred to Walter Reed Hospital.

Car Driver Also Hurt

The three WAAFs were passengers in a station wagon operated by John William Franklin, 27, of 4602 14th st. nw., who is in Emergency Hospital suffering from lacerations of the scalp and concussion.

The operator of the other car, police said, was Robert H. Hite, 22, of 4541 River rd. nw., who received treatment at Emergency Hospital and was later taken to Gallinger Hospital where he is being held for the coroner. Hits is a seaman stationed at the Great Lakes Training Station.

Robert W. Ricketts, 20, of 4116 Garrison st. nw., a passenger in the car driven by Hite, was admitted to Emergency Hospital with lacerations, but was later released.

Two Are Exonerated

Later in the day a coroner's jury exonerated John L. Sprague, 34, of 5802 Livingston rd., Oxon Hill, Md., attached to the eleventh precinct, in the death of Mrs. Nellie Ports, 71, of 2233 Mount View pl. se. Mrs. Ports died November 8 at Casualty Hospital of injuries received when she was struck at Nichols ave. and W sts. se. by a car operated by Sprague. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

At a second coroner's inquest Lawrence G. Miller, 39, of 4338 Rainier ave., Mt. Rainier, Md., was exonerated in the death of Betty Gordon, 36, of 5013 3rd st. nw. Miss Gordon died at Garfield Hospital November 10 after she was struck in the 5000 block of Kansas ave. nw. by a Capital Transit Co. bus operated by Miller.

G. Washington U. To Award 200 Diplomas Tonight

The fall convocation of George Washington University will be held at 8:30 o'clock tonight, with approximately 200 diplomas and certificates to be awarded, following a charge to the graduating body by President Cloyd H. Marvin.

An honorary degree will be awarded to Dr. Frank W. Ballou, recently retired superintendent of District Public Schools, who formerly was on the faculty of GWU.

Music is to be furnished by an ensemble of the National Symphony Orchestra. Owing to the accelerated war program, three convocations instead of the usual two are to be held this year at the university.

Mother Hears From Captive Son 1st Time Since '42

Mrs. Esther Tinker, Library of Congress employe, of 502 A st. se., received the first correspondence yesterday from her son, Radioman 3d Class Charles Richard Tinker, since he became a Jap prisoner in the fall of the Philippines.

It was a postcard that bore an Easter greeting.

Tinker, 23, was married in July of 1941 before he joined the Navy, and he's the father of a year-old daughter who he doesn't even know about because the Japs have returned all letters written to him by his wife and his mother.

The wife and daughter are living in Tucson, Ariz., where the wife was a college student before her marriage.

Chastleton Is Not Sold, Tenants Hear

Tenants of the Chastleton apartment house were assured last night that while the Navy had been interested in purchasing the residence for the WAVES, no definite transactions had been completed with naval authorities.

Charles Paul, a member of the Chastleton tenant committee, told 300 tenants of the apartment that he had been told by Thomas D. Carson, president of Washington Properties, Inc., that the Navy was interested in purchasing the Chastleton, but it was also interested in several other sites as a residence for WAVES.

Announcement was made that 78 per cent of the present tenants are Government employes or are directly employed in war work. Eleven per cent are dependents of men in the armed forces and the remainder are housewives, children and elderly tenants who have lived for many years at the Chastleton.

Earlier in the day, Chairman Byrd of the Senate Joint Economy Committee, said yesterday that he would request the Navy Department to give a thorough accounting of its reasons for taking over the the Chastleton as a dormitory for WAVES.

The Virginia Senator said that his committee would make an investigation of numerous complaints from Chastleton tenants.

Ignorance Blamed For Slow Arrival Of Ambulance

Ignorance of ambulance control center rules seemed yesterday to be a chief reason for delay in arrival of an ambulance with a doctor at Juvenile Court a week ago Friday.

The center will not dispatch a second vehicle until the first has arrived and someone attached to it makes a request. In this case a police scout car ambulance was sent first. Leo Lietz, at the control center, said the call indicated the case was one for police. The men who responded are said to have waisted some time before making another call.

The boy for whom the ambulance was called was not in serious condition, according to Dr. Stanley Geshell, psychiatrist loaned to Juvenile Court by Public Health Service.

Charles Stofberg, assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young, is awaiting a further report on the case from Superintendent of Police Kelly.

City News In Brief

Walter Gorham, 44, Negro of 1205 6½ st. nw., was found guilty by a District Court jury yesterday of violating the Harrison Narcotic Act in the sale of one-fifteenth ounce of heroin. Justice Matthew F. McGuire imposed 20 months to five years imprisonment and fined him $500.

Winston, Gorham's brother, is scheduled to go on trial on the same charge today. The prosecutor is Bernard Margolius, Assistant United States Attorney.

Mrs. Wallace USO Guest

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, will be guest of honor at the 4 o'clock Sunday tea in the lounge of the Service Women's USO Club, 1911 H st. nw.

All service women of the American and British Empire forces and enlisted men of the Allied Nations are invited to attend.

Mrs. Libby to Speak

The education committee of the Park View Women's Club will meet at the home of Mrs. D. E. Clark, 1314 Farragut st. nw., on Thursday, November 18. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Ella Libby, who will discuss her personal experiences during the Pearl Harbor attack.

Polish Social Club

The Polish Club of Washington and Group 848 of the Polish National Alliance will hold its monthly social at Stansbury Hall, 5832 Georgia ave. nw., beginning at 8:30 p. m. Saturday. There will be refreshments and dancing.

Anacostia Meeting Nov. 19

The Anacostia Citizens Association has advanced its meeting date from November 26 to November 19, it was announced yesterday. The meeting will be held at Anacostia Junior High School at 8 p. m.

Ration Board Hours

For the benefit of workers who have Saturday afternoons off, District War Price and Rationing Boards will be open from 12:30 to 4:30 p. m. on Saturdays and closed during the morning hours, effective November 20, OPA officials announced last night.

D. C. Student Honored

Richard G. Williams, son of Ernest W. Williams, 1921 Kalorama rd. nw., has been awarded a Montaigne Prize "for proficiency in speaking and writing French," it was announced yesterday by Yale University, where he is a member of the class of 1945.

Volunteers Interviewed

Applicants for appointment as volunteer USO hostesses in the Girls' Service Organization are being interviewed by Mrs. Sarah Winsborough, program director in charge of women's activities at the USO Club in the Central YMCA, 1736 G st. nw. War workers between 18 and 30 are eligible.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Prostrated by Cultured Daughter's Flippant Admission That She Violated the Moral Code, Mother Wants to Know: Where Have I Failed?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In reading your column, I find you never hesitate to call a spade a spade; so now I want you to tell me wherein I have failed as a mother. My 23-year-old daughter, a cultured, widely traveled college graduate, who has been working in another city since her graduation, has renounced the standards of decent society and,—to be blunt,—recently spent a weekend with an admirer, who was on leave from a military camp. Prior to induction, this man had monopolized her time for many months; but she never seemed to care very much for him. However, he played on her sympathies and, I have heard, went so far as to threaten self-destruction if she refused his attentions.

When her father and I learned of this affair, we could not and would not believe that a daughter of ours,—reared in the highest moral code,—would permit such an affront. When I asked her about this misconduct, she admitted it. She assumed a flippant, nonchalant manner, and showed not the slightest remorse or shame. I tried to disclose to her the enormity of the offense she had committed against herself; and to explain the pitfalls she would encounter if she continued to follow her present line of thinking. But it fell on deaf ears. Her degraded ideas seem to have been acquired at college.

The shock of her behavior has prostrated me, as I trusted her completely. I cannot reconcile myself to her refusal to see the gravity of her offense. I have written her and urged her to turn her footsteps "into the paths of righteousness." But I was answered as follows: "Your Biblical references leave me cold. For me the past is past, and it shall have no bearing on my actions now or in future." Her father and I are deeply grieved and completely at a loss to know the proper procedure now, because of our two younger daughters, who are 15 and 17 years of age. They are lovely, virtuous girls and we do not want their minds polluted by her philosophy of life.

The only course that seems open to us is to ask her to remain away until such time as she has repented her disgraceful conduct; and wishes to embrace again the principles of respectability. Our daughters have always been our greatest joy and until this tragic happening they had never given us the slightest reason for worry or sorrow. What do you advise us to do under these circumstances? Is there some way to make her see the light? T. Y. C.

Parents Not Always Due Blame or Praise

DEAR T. Y. C.: Wayward conduct on the part of youth is not necessarily, in every case, proof of "failure" on the part of parents; any more than exceptionally fine performance on the part of children is proof, in every case, of superior parental achievement. Human offspring are mysteriously more than the product of parental begetting and rearing. From the instant of conception, each new life is invested with inalienable, highly individualistic potentials of character which, as often as not, are coined in blood-likeness to some remote ancestor, rather than in the likeness of the immediate authors of their being.

THUS, IN families of several children, it is not uncommon to find a youngster who seems a changeling to the brood,—showing traits of character remarkably dissimilar to others in the family group. Likewise, it is not uncommon to observe instances where children are set apart from their parents, figuratively speaking, by a baffling reciprocal sense of involuntary hostility, which indicates fundamental antipathy of temperaments,—a condition that the parent seems no better able to deal with, and dissolve, than does the helpless child, who gropes intuitively for sympathetic insight and morale-support from his authority-invested elders. Such basic conflict, we may suppose, is of elusive hereditary origin; and we may infer that the respective archetype ancestors of the incompatible parent and child would have been, had they met in life, avowed enemies practically at sight, each warily distrusting the other, as primitive nature tends to distrust that which is alien and incomprehensible to the self.

Likely She Failed In Understanding

PRIMITIVE nature is dominant at birth in everyone, and inheres to some degree throughout life,—with the individual attaining emancipation from, or victory over, it only through conscious cultivation of spiritual grace or power. And here let me say: Individual spiritual advancement and rigid adherence to any given code of social propriety are by no means synonymous. Spiritual growth is invariably marked by unmistakable expansion in sympathy, understanding, love and humility, in relation to one's fellow beings; and as one grows spiritually, one's concern about righteous behavior comes to focus in scrutinizing one's own conduct, not in the exercise of "passing judgment" on another's blind or willful transgressions.

ALL OF WHICH is preliminary to saying that if you have "failed" as a mother,—to an extent that contributed to your daughter's defiant breach of the moral code,—that failure must have been failure to understand her true nature, with its particular needs and frailties; and concomitant failure to provide her mind, heart and spirit with the special protective nurture needed to give her normal emotional poise and moral immunity to "degraded ideas." Events have proved how wrong you were, in assuming that because she was your daughter, she had completely accepted and was fully sustained by the identical standards you espouse. Yet there is no point in going to the opposite extreme, just now, of hysterically anticipating (because she has dealt you a shocking disappointment) that her young sisters will eventually follow in her footsteps, unless zealously quarantined against her society.

Note the 'Conditional' In the Lord's Prayer!

AS FOR WHAT policy to adopt toward her,—since she is a self-supporting adult, making her home apart from you, legally and economically emancipated from parental rule; who is, moreover, candidly in revolt against your creed and control, there is nothing you can do, directly, to constructively influence or restrain, her. The best thing you can do for all concerned is (1) to regain your own self-control; (2) to rise up from your "prostration"; (3) to solemnly resolve that if perchance you somehow failed her in understanding, you shall not fail equally, in the time left to you, with the younger girls; and (4) to ask God, in the words of the Lord's Prayer, to forgive you your trespasses, as you forgive hers,—a profoundly significant conditional request!—and grant you the measure of love and wisdom you sorely need in order to behave henceforth like a true mother to her. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

SUBJECT:

Men and the Light Fantastic

Does the evidence of men in uniform, apparently unattached, make you wonder what they do on weekends while you're reading a good book?

The men are often interested in dancing and you might be just the partner one of them is looking for.

First step—to gain entrance to USO and other dances—is to register with OCD. From then on you're on your own.

The USO Club at the central YWCA is making registrations for hostesses. Register Monday or Wednesday from 6 p. m. to 11 p. m. or Friday from 6 p. m. until 9 p. m. If you're between 18 and 30 you're eligible. Take a picture along when you apply.

The YWCA dances on Fridays at the 17th and K "Y" and the Random Club, 6th and E sts. n.w. are open to the public. The new Random Club boasts a ratio of two men to every girl!

The Women's Battalion is composed of Government girls who go to nearby camps for dances. If you're between 18 and 25, you may register. You needn't register with OCD in advance, just get an application at 1317 G st. any day between 10 a. m. and 5 p. m.

The Masonic Service Center at 13th and New York ave nw. holds dances on Wednesday and Saturday. A new hostess course will begin after Christmas and applications are being accepted now. Call Miss Roslyn Lynn, EXecutive 1271.

Registration is open at the Salvation Army USO (call Miss Hansen, REpublic 5482 for an appointment. The NCCS USO Club is taking applications, too, so take two small pictures of yourself to the club at 1814 N st. nw. This club has supper dance on Sundays in addition to the Saturday night dance.

The NCCS Club at 1912 North Captol st. is open only to girls living in Northeast or Southeast Washington. Call Miss Conlon at DEcatur 7421. Hostesses go to Camp Meade on Wednesdays to help with that well-known morale.

Most of Washington's churches hold dances in cooperation with the USO. Call Mr. Bautz at DEcatur 3132 for information.

Time-Tested Advice About Chest Colds!

Grandma Was Right
Time Has Proved It

Today, the first choice and family standby for relieving miseries of colds in millions of homes is the same home-remedy grandma used . . . Vicks VapoRub! What better recommendation could a product have!

When you rub time-tested VapoRub on the throat, chest and back at bedtime it starts to work 2 ways at once—and keeps on working for hours to relieve coughing spasms and congestion in the cold-clogged upper breathing passages, to ease muscular soreness or tightness, as it invites restful sleep . . . that's why VapoRub is so good to use when colds strike.

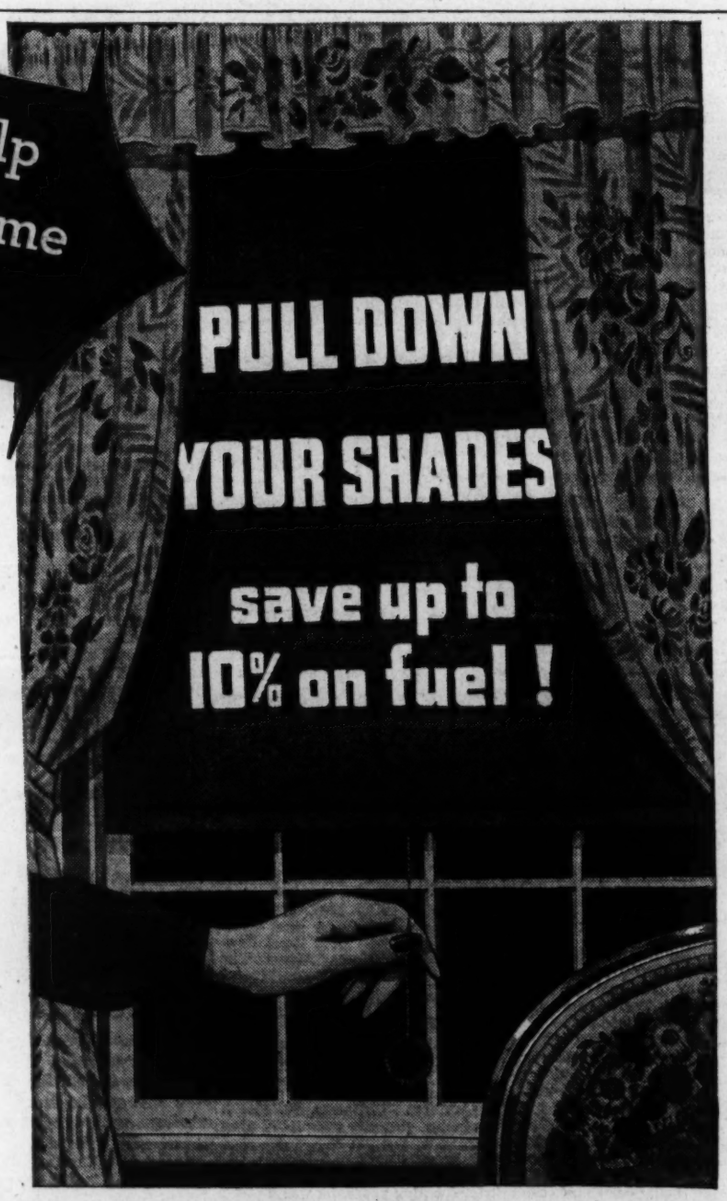
This simple act will help you have a warmer home this winter!



30% of all heat loss is through window panes..! By pulling down your cloth window shades you create an insulating dead air space between the shade and the pane. Tests made by the Armour Research Foundation show that proper use of your shades can reduce heat loss through windows by as much as one-third. As a result, you can save up to 10% on fuel and have a much warmer home. The shades are at your windows. Begin now to put them to this thrifty and patriotic use.

OTHER HELPFUL HEAT-SAVING IDEAS

Keep heating plant clean and in good repair. See that insulation is complete on steam and hot water lines. Put up storm sash and storm doors. Use weather stripping and caulking around windows and doors. Insulate roof and attic. Close doors quickly when entering or leaving the house. Put rug against bedroom doors during night. When ventilating rooms, turn off heat and close doors to keep cold air out of other parts of the house. Reduce temperature at night and when you're away from home.

How to use your cloth window shades for heat conservation

DURING THE DAY
Draw shades to sills in all rooms not being used
DURING THE DAY

Exercise When Standing Still To Cultivate Good Posture

By Ida Jean Kain

The colonel was so trim and had such an erect bearing that he stood out even among his fellow officers. The lady had a middle-aged spread and her posture was one of the reasons. Almost her first envious question after the introductions was: "Do you take exercises, colonel?" "Madame, I am exercising right this minute," was his retort as he drew himself up another inch.

What the colonel meant was that correct posture amounts to constant exercise and there's not much use in taking violent corrective exercises for 15 minutes a day if you are going to slump the rest of the time. The more you use the muscles involved in holding yourself erect, the stronger they become, and the more natural it is for you to hold yourself erect.

If you want to see a quick change in your figure, just snap up your posture. When you stand up to your full height, you immediately cut down on that middle-aged spread becaue you take up the slack there.

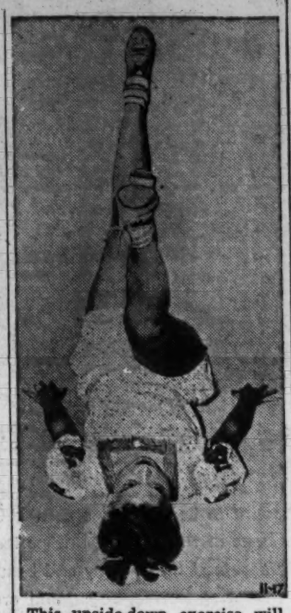
The whole idea is to stand tall without tension. Your hips should be well under you. That means pulling down with the muscle on the back of the hips and up with the muscles in front forming the abdominal girdle. You get a nice long stretch between the hips and ribs and lift the chest, but keep the shoulders down and relaxed. Don't stick your chin out. Keep it level.

Your leg action is important. Never stand with knees thrust back and stiff. The can throw you entire body out of joint. It makes your hips stick out and the small of your back cave in.

In walking, keep the knees loose but swing the legs from the hips and point your toes straight ahead. When you climb stairs, your back should be straight. The hip and thigh muscles should do the climbing.

The best sitting posture is well back in the chair with the small of the back pressed against the back of the chair. To do that, you have to pull up and in with the muscles of the lower abdominal wall and if you keep these muscles on their job long enough you will have a nice flat front line. Do your forward bending from the hips and keep your back straight. Slumping strains muscles and ligaments and makes you tire more quickly. Then you slump more.

Good posture is the most efficient. It lets you do your work more easily. But if you have slumped for years, you will have to back up this chance in the way you stand, walk and sit with a few simple exercises. One of the best is merely to sit on the floor, legs straight out in front, back pressed flat against the wall for 2 to 3 minutes a day.



This upside-down exercise will improve your posture. Have hips against wall, legs straight up it, and flex alternate knees to chest. Joan Edwards, radio star, does the illustrating here —and her posture is superb

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

'Dear Friends . . .'

(An open letter from a war-time housewife)

To all of you who are getting engaged or married; whose daughters and sons are getting engaged or married; who are going to have babies or have had them; who are returning here to live or going away to live; who are having birthdays or anniversaries; who are giving buffet suppers, or luncheons or large or small teas; who have sent me an invitation to anything; who have written me letters begging for "just a line:"

Please understand that day after day, month after month I have been intending to see you, write you, or send you "some little thing"—tomorrow. I have been constantly planning on "tomorrow" or at least the day after, running downtown to get you something for the kitchen shower, or the baby shower, or the wedding, or the anniversary. But when tomorrow came I didn't "run" downtown. I stood on a crowded, creeping streetcar. In the stores I was pushed and mauled by my fellow shoppers. I stood for hours at counters waiting to be told they didn't have what I wanted and didn't know—or care—when they would. I spent the day fighting my way through sidewalk crowds from store to store in search of the socks, shorts, flannelette nightgowns, thread, shoe strings, dish mops and other necessities of the moment. Finally a defeated, bedraggled woman, I rushed home ahead of the office mobs with only two or three of the dozen or more items on my shopping list. The "little things" I was going to get for each of you were NOT among them. I would get them the next time I "ran" downtown—probably "next week."

Also on "tomorrow" I was going to sit down and write you each a friendly little note telling you how happy I was that you were getting engaged or married, or having a birthday, an anniversary, a baby or a promotion, or how sorry I was that you were going away. But again on "tomorrow" I had to stand in line at the meat counter, squash my cans for the salvage, call up a dozen places trying to get somebody to do something about the plumbing, press a suit for John because the cleaners didn't come with his old one, and clean the upstairs because one of John's friends who couldn't get in a hotel was coming out for the night and—well suddenly, it was night and I ached so badly I wanted to scream like a tired child and the bed seemed a rosy dream of postwar Elysium. So I put off writing you until the day after tomorrow.

And again on "tomorrow" I was going to call you on the telephone and ask how you were, and congratulate you or condole you, or invite you to luncheon or tea, and at least assure you I had not forgotten you. But "tomorrow" was my day to sew for the Red Cross and on the day after I helped at a canteen for servicemen and on the day after that another flood of household tasks engulfed me, and so put off telephoning you until "next week."

Now I know at last that "tomorrow" or "next week" will never come—not for a long, long time. I also know there are so many hours in the day and so much strength in my body. I know a choice has to be made—and that there is only one choice for me, the call of my family and my country. I know that this is war at home as well as in Italy and the South Pacific and that there is no use pretending that any but leisured women (among whom I most certainly do not want to be classed) can carry on what are called the "arts of gracious living."

So, I want you to know that though I do not call you, write you, entertain you or send you "some little thing," I carry you in my thoughts as I go about my ceaseless chores in the house, at the grocery, or battling shopping crowds. I see you clearly before me, I feel your presence at my side, I hear your voices, I share with you my thoughts, I smile with you at all the little things at which we would smile were we together.

I am warm and elated over your happiness and good fortunes, sad with you in disappointment or in sorrow. You always come to me when I see something to smile at, or something of beauty to stir my heart. And because there are no possible misunderstandings now, you are closer to me than you have ever been before.

YOUR SILENT FRIEND.

P. S.—Will give you a ring in the postwar world.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

"When I am a grandmother," one woman writes, "will I think the 'then' modern methods to be just a lot of eyewash? My children's grandmother does, sometimes. She thinks her own mother was infallible; I think mine is just human.

"Naturally, we think present methods right, but surely the pediatricians are bound to find some new wrinkles in the next 20 years. Will we accept them as a part of inevitable progress?

"Don't you think a proper selection of food may cut down the amount needed? My 2-year-old eats only three times a week. The rest of the time she picks at her food and drinks her milk. Yet she is chubby, sleeps well, has regular toilet habits.

"My 9-month-old baby eats less than anyone I ever heard of, yet her disposition is perfect. She is not constipated and has slept all night since the third month. Perhaps some day we may be feeding children twice a day, as we do animals."

As for your "grandmotherly" attitudes, the chances are your own successes may make you reluctant to accept new ideas. They ARE upsetting to minds already molded. But, if we expect grandparents to be somewhat inflexible, that trait need not influence the thought or the actions of the parents.

It would be dreadful to imagine we now know all there is to know. Until we have conquered all disease and are able to make each individual as perfect as nature probably intended, we have not discovered all of nature's secrets. Let's keep an open mind and make use of new ideas as soon as they're made available by scientific research.

Our leaflet, "Three-Meal Schedule," is an innovation to many mothers used to four-meal schedules. Send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Washington Post.

It was through the influence of Sarah Josepha Hale that our first National Thanksgiving Day Proclamation was issued and our first Seamen's Aid Society was established in a coastal city. Her memory will be honored by the Historical Research Committee, DAR, of which Mrs. Wilfred J. Clearman is State chairman, Thursday night, 7:30 o'clock, at the DAR Chapter House. Mrs. Roy C. Bowker, State vice regent, reviews Ruth Findley's biographical story of "The Lady of Godey"—Mrs. Hale's life. This great designer, feminist has been called facetiously the "Madonna of the Bustle." Naturally, it was her contemporary male writers who dubbed her thusly.

When the newly organized Chevy Chase Chapter, DAR, was asked to contribute 1000 books to the Merchant Marine Libraries, it seemed a stupendous task for its 21 members. But when Mrs. James Sement, librarian, made the appeal, the members responded generously. To date more than 1100 books have been collected and turned over to the Marines.

United War Relief to Sponsor Bazaar Early Next Month

Christmas greetings in a dozen languages will be exchanged at the United War Relief Christmas bazaar to be held on December 1, 2, and 3, at the Statler Hotel.

The dates for the bazaar, which will link Americans and the nationals of 12 countries in a holiday event unique in the annals of the community, were set at a meeting of the United War Relief Bazaar committee Monday.

Linking forces to make a success of the project are the Washington committees of 12 foreign war relief committees which have now brought close to completion their plans for housing all of their activities under the roof of a single United War Relief Center.

Cooperating on the committee, which met yesterday to discuss bazaar plans, are the wives of eight United Nations Ambassadors—Mme. Jan Ciechanowska of Poland, Mme. A. Loudon of the Netherlands, Mme. Vladimir Hurban of Czechoslovakia, Mme. Constantin Fotitch of Yugoslovia, Mme. Wei Tao-ming of China, Mme. Hugues Le Gallais of Luxembourg, Mme. C. Diamantopoulos of Greece and Mme. Munthe de Morgentierne.

Others on the committee include the Baroness Herve de Gruben and Mrs. F. Burrall Hoffman, representing Belgian War Relief; Mrs. James E. Schwab, British War Relief; Mme. Aage Bryn, Mrs. Arnold Nygaard and Mrs. Peter Moe, Norwgian Relief; Mrs. Frank Simonds, Polish War Relief; Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Russian War Relief; Mrs. Frederick Brooke, Mrs. Victor Kwogklee Kong, Mrs. Mason Gulick and Mrs. Paul Homan, United China Relief, and Mrs. Eugene Villaret, Yugoslav Relief.

MILK IS PRECIOUS

DON'T WASTE IT!

Today our Armed Forces are consuming tremendous quantities of milk . . . with the supply of milk available being definitely limited.

The need for better nutrition on the Home Front has also increased the demand for milk and milk products to an unprecedented extent.

That's why the time has now come when everyone must help to conserve milk. Order only what milk you need—and "squeeze" the bottle to use every last drop.

And now is the time, also, to remember that every quart of Chestnut Farms Sealtest Vitamin "D" Homogenized Milk contains 400 added units of the all-important Sunshine Vitamin "D". In addition, you get all the other benefits of milk—the vitamins, minerals and protein that help make milk one of the Basic Seven Foods which we need every day.

So, give your family Chestnut Farms Sealtest Vitamin "D" Homogenized Milk. And, don't forget: Milk is a precious food—don't waste it!

Forthcoming Memorial Exhibition of Famous American Sculptor Creates Wide Interest in Capital Circles

WASHINGTON has its share—and probably more than its share—of art exhibitions . . . but one scheduled to open Sunday afternoon definitely is not in the "just another" class. Featuring the sculpture of the late Paul Wayland Bartlett, the special memorial showing will be presented by the president and trustees of the Corcoran Gallery of Art. And it will be of wide interest on many counts—not the least of which is the fact that the artist once lived and worked in Washington . . . and his widow, who came back from her Paris home shortly before the war now makes her home here.

At a tea some time ago in Mrs. Gifford Pinchot's home Mrs. Bartlett talked to me about her husband's work, and she spoke with special pride of his statue of Sir William Blackstone, father of the English Law upon which the Constitution is based.

Now Mrs. Bartlett is one of those engaging women who can make anything they discuss seem unusually interesting. She has a rare sense of humor, and a charm characteristic of many women who have lived long in Europe. She twinkles as she talks, and she has a refreshing flair for seasoning her conversation with neat phrases tossed off in the most casual of fashions. She approaches most teatime subjects with an air of subtle irreverence . . . but that day, when we got around to art and artists, her talk took on a serious tone at once. Pretty soon she was telling me that over in a Randolph Street studio, where her husband once worked were several outstanding examples of his work.

"What about an exhibition sometime?" I asked her.

"Oh that," she said, "will come later; but first, we must get Blackstone settled in his new home."

"BLACKSTONE—who, what, and where?" she was asked. Blackstone, she said, was the heroic likeness Mr. Bartlett created at the request of the American Bar Association, following a visit of association members to English lawmakers in the early twenties. Approximately $50,000 was raised for the purpose among American men of law. Intended first to stand permanently in the Great Hall of Courts, where the real life Blackstone moved and had his being, the statue barely escaped being a victim of the blitz. It was moved shortly before the London building in which it stood was blasted by the German Luftwaffe . . . and now it is at the District Court of Appeals, patiently awaiting the day when its pedestal will be finished. Then it will be formally unveiled and placed in the small plaza north of the District Court Building.

So much for Blackstone. And now back to the forthcoming show of her husband's other work. Mrs. Bartlett calls it "a small exhibition of the documents in plaster which my husband left." Gleanings from a sculptor's notebook, if you please. Some were modeled in his New York studio; some were done in Washington back in the days when Mr. Bartlett came here to execute the magnificent pediment that now decorates the House side of the Capitol. Still other models were made in the sculptor's New York studio, or later in Dinard, France, where he and his wife lived for many years.

TO MRS. BARTLETT should go the credit for seeing that her husband's sculpture was cast in bronze. She has done much of it herself; and she is extremely, and justly, proud that his life-sized "Sun Dance," which will appear in the exhibition, was cast with a single pouring of metal.

Mrs. Bartlett, as well as her husband's statue of Blackstone and much of his other work, is a war "refugee." When the Germans marched into France, she was living in Dinard. That had been her home for several years, and it was there she planned an art museum as a memorial to her husband. Just before the war, the building was finished and in readiness for the placing of the sculptures. Then the Germans took over Dinard, and she left for Lisbon, where she was detained for several weeks before being allowed to come on to America.

The first months in Washington after her return Mrs Bartlett stayed with her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Peter 3d, who that season presented to society their daughter, Miss Anne Peter. Later, the house was occupied by Representative and Mrs. Richard B. Wigglesworth, but by that time Mrs. Bartlett had made up her mind to buy it . . . and she did. The owner was Mrs. Albert G. Simms, the former Ruth Hanna McCormick, who purchased the place when she was a member of Congress. The house now is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Burden, but Mrs. Bartlett lives just around the corner on N st.

The Bartlett exhibition, opening on Sunday at 2 p. m., is scheduled to continue daily through Sunday, December 19. Meanwhile, interested as she is in it, Mrs. Bartlett also has several other strings to her bow of activities. Just now one of her chief concerns is the provision of entertainment for men in uniform, and in recent months several supper parties have been given at her Georgetown home in that regard. But all that is another story. . .

Miss Harriet Whitehurst Is Bride of Dr. Arthur Lankford, Jr.

MRS. ARTHUR LANKFORD, Jr.

Ceremony Takes Place at Home Of Bride's Parents

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Clinton Whitehurst was the scene of the wedding of their daughter, Miss Harriet Campbell Whitehurst, and Dr. Arthur Lankford, jr., which took place yesterday at 5 o'clock. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Lankford of Baltimore.

The Rev. H. Hatch Dent Sterrett officiated at the service held before an improvised altar banked with palms and white chrysanthemums and roses and flanked with tall tapers. Mr. Whitehurst gave his daughter in marriage.

Bride's Gown Of Ivory Satin

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin made on princess lines with long sleeves shirred at the shoulders and ending in points over the wrists. The sweetheart neckline was caught with orange blossom clusters and her long tulle veil was held by a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried a mother-of-pearl prayer-book to which was fastened a single white orchid and streamers of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Hamilton O'Dunne who was matron of honor for her sister, wore a costume of blue crepe trimmed with matching sequins and a tiara of ostrich feathers from which fell a shoulder length blue veil. She carried a bouquet of gardenias. Miss Caroline Milnes Reid was the maid of honor, wearing a rose chiffon gown made on bouffant lines with a matching ostrich feather headdress and veil. She, too, carried gardenias. Dr. Lankford, father of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Whitehurst In Blue Velvet

A small reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Whitehurst, receiving with her son-in-law and daughter, wore a sapphire blue velvet gown with a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Lankford, mother of the bridegroom, also welcomed the guests.

After a short wedding trip Dr. Lankford and his bride will go to Rochester, N. Y., to make their home. The bride is a graduate of Holton Arms School and attended Sweet Briar College. Dr. Lankford was graduated from Johns Hopkins University and Johns Hopkins School of Medicine.

Connecticut Girl Is Fiancee of Ensign Hotchkiss

Of interest to Washington is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Hannah Eugenia Lawrence Whitney, daughter of Mrs. Milton C. Winternitz of New Haven, Conn., to Ensign Joseph Washington Hotchkiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Stuart Hotchkiss of Wyndham, East River, Conn., and grandson of Mrs. Joseph E. Washington of Washington.

Miss Whitney is the daughter of the late Stephen Whitney, and granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Whitney of New Haven. She was graduated from St. Timothy's School and is a senior at Vassar College. The prospective bridegroom attended Phillips Andover Academy and is a graduate of Trinity College. He is serving with the amphibious forces.

Lieut. and Mrs. Skinker To Visit Mrs. Rawlings

Lieut. and Mrs. Henry Cochran Skinker will arrive this week from Nashville, Tenn., with their young daughter, Priscilla, to spend two weeks' leave with his sister, Mrs. John Rawlings, at her home at The Plains, Va. From there they will go to Camp Barkley, Tex., where Lieutenant Skinker, USA, will be on duty.

Miss Betty Kernan of Stuart Hall School in Staunton will also spend the weekend with her mother, Mrs. Rawlings.

Purely Personal News And Notes

Mme. Diamantopoulos, wife of the Greek Ambassador, is expected to attend the reception in New York on November 23 to be given by Friends of Greece, Inc., at their headquarters on East Fifty-seventh st. Guest of honor will be Cecil Roberts, author, who will speak on "We Shall Stand in Hellas." Nicholas Lely, former Counselor of the Greek Embassy, now Consul General in New York, will introduce the speaker.

The Military Attache of the Swedish Legation, Col. Count Thord Bonde, and Countess Bonde and their children, who arrived a few weeks ago from Sweden, have taken a house at 2247 R st.

Former Consul General, John Ball Osborne, and Mrs. Osborne, have returned to the Westchester apartments after an absence of three years from Washington. Their daughter, Mrs. Cupples, and her son Bill, are with them.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin of Middleburg, Va., have had as guests for the weekend Col. Melvin Hall, U. S. Army Air Corps, and Mrs. Iselin's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dilworth of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Charles Morgan of New York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Iselin, and her small daughter, Ann, will be with her parents while Lieutenant Morgan is on sea duty.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Parsons of Hartford, Conn., wartime-residents of Washington, have returned from a weekend in Virginia, as guests of Col. and Mrs. John C. Butler at Kelvedon Farm. Mr. and Mrs. Parsons were dinner guests of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whitney at Llangollen on Sunday evening, and Saturday evening Colonel and Mrs. Butler entertained at dinner for their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand W. Coudert, formerly of New York, now living in Arlington, Va., have gone to New York for a visit and are at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Henry Jones and their daughter, Miss Emilie Jones, are at the Ambassador Hotel during their stay in New York.

TRAVEL WAS SLOW TOO

Attired in furs, 'neath a heavy robe with a hot brick at her feet to keep them warm, grandmother drove into town at the moderate pace of five miles an hour . . . She always planned well in advance for the Christmas shopping trip, so as not to forget a single friend, relative or retainer in a last-minute fluster . . . With what nostalgia we look back upon that era when everyone had the leisure for gracious living.

In today's hurly-burly, we make about the same mileage, what with gas rationing, tire shortages and crowded tram cars . . . Even so, it's still a lot easier to drop in for early Christmas gift selections than it was in that grand old lady's day.

Because of these same transportation difficulties, your cooperation in shopping early will help us with the problem . . . help you to make your choice happily, without feeling rushed. You will have leisure, too, to stop at our War Bond booth and purchase some of them for gifts. Wrap them in little white boxes decked with holiday ribbon, something to cheer about.

Notables See— And Enjoy— "Uncle Harry"

"It has to be new—to be naughty." Top-drawer Washington by the dozens chuckled at that quip and numerous others enlivening "Uncle Harry," the murder-without-a-mystery play that opened a two-weeks run at the National Theater Monday night.

In the audience, which by turns shivered and split its sides laughing, were many Capitalites who gathered in the foyer between-acts to discuss the fairly obvious shortcomings of "Uncle Harry" and his two smothering sisters. Everybody in the audience, incidentally, seemed to like the play, which is good—but sometimes gruesome—"escape" from wartime troubles.

Mrs. George Mesta, who entertained at dinner at the Sulgrave Club before the play, brought her guests along with her. They included the Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope, former Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Miss Carolyn Nash and Mrs. George Holmes. In the box on the opposite side of the house Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith.

The British Naval Attache, Rear Admiral H. Pott, Representative Jennings Randolph and the Countess de Marenches with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Houghteling were also among those enjoying the play that features Joseph Schildkraut and Eva Le Gallienne. Others seen in the audience were Robert Patchin, steamship line executive, who with Mrs. Patchin recently moved to Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Tallaferro, Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan, Miss Pauletta Guffey with her sister, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller; Mrs. Ernest Walker and her son, Mannix Walker, and Mrs. Irene Caldwell with Mrs. Robert Sherrod.

Still others there Capt. and Mrs. Theodore Cook, Lieut. Andrew Dudley, Mrs. Charles J. Brand, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Miss Dolly Corbin, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Grosner, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Whiteside, Mrs. James M. Holm with Miss Laura Harlan, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forbes of Philadelphia, and many, many more.

The retiring Ambassador of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Troncoso and their children will leave today for Miami and from there will go to the island republic. Dr. Troncoso has been appointed counselor of the foreign office with rank of Ambassador.

The newly appointed Dominican Ambassador, Anselmo Copello, with Senora de Copello and their four daughters, are now in New York and will come to Washington shortly.

Mrs. Witt Heads Group in Housewives' Service Center

Economist Was With NRA Here, Treasury in California, Before War

By Martha Rhyne

"Everybody's got a service center but the housewives," says Mrs. Frederick W. Witt, who has just taken over chairmanship of the Consumer Nutrition Committee of the War Service Division of the Government of the District of Columbia. "We're going to study the housewives' problems and try to find an answer to the riddle which is housekeeping today; the food problem will be more difficult as the war goes on, you know."

This Navy wife, whose husband is Commander Witt, Coordinator of Lumber for the Navy, lives on T st. which she finds a great deal smaller than the lovely California home overlooking the Pacific at Altadena, which she left in 1941 when Commander Witt was called to the service. She's well known in Washington, where as Mrs. Gretchen Dau Cunningham, economic adviser for the NRA, she had a working knowledge of the constitution, phenomena and development of society.

Has Reputation For Spending Money

As supervisor of a regional office of the Department of the Treasury in California after she left Washington, she made a reputation for herself as being a woman who had spent more money than any other. For through her hands went contractual documents, for construction, maintenance, and purchase for thirty agencies, including Civil Aeronautics Administration. It is only natural that a woman so active in the nation's affairs before the war should be interested in doing her bit during wartime. So she is now making an appeal for volunteers to staff the neatly outlaid center located in the Washington Gas Light Building at Eleventh and H Streets.

All Women's Groups Are Represented

"We need women of high intelligence and a real interest in the war problems of other women. We need women with an understanding of the value of community effort in the war, women who are willing to think constructively on such problems as food for consumers, food shortages and substitutes, clothing and textiles, their selection and preservation, care and preservation of household equipment, consumer and retailer cooperation and understanding.

The membership of Mrs. Witt's committee is made up of representatives of every women's group in the District. Mary I. Barber, special adviser to the Secretary of War on problems of nutrition in the Army, is vice chairman of the group.

"Rationing has put us all on an equal footing," Mrs. Witt explains, "and classes in fine weaving of wool, conservation of electrical equipment and other measures of preser[illegible] and stretching day-to-day ne[illegible]ities will be of interest to all women."

Mrs. Witt is a native of Galveston, Tex., and has traveled widely over the Americas and Europe. She has two children, a married daughter in California and a young son, Bradley, a student at Haverford College in Pennsylvania, whom she describes as "on his way to the Army."

Miss Downey Chooses Her Wedding Date

Miss Marjorie Adams Downey, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Fairfax Davis Downey of New York, has selected November 27 as the date of her marriage to Lieut. William Allen Knowlton, USA, son of the late Frank Knowlton of Weston, Mass., and the late Mrs. Richard Burleson. The ceremony will be held in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church and a reception will follow at the Hotel Pierre.

Miss Downey is the granddaughter of the late Dr. Samuel S. Adams and of Mrs. Adams of Washington and the late Brig. Gen. George F. Downey and Mrs. Downey, also of Washington. The prospective bridegroom is a brother of Robert A. Knowlton of Washington.

Senorita Michels Heads Committee

Senorita Cristina Michels, daughter of the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels, is chairman of the committee of members of the younger set of the Latin-American diplomatic corps for the Latin-American Thanksgiving War Bond and Stamp fiesta to be held at the Shoreham Wednesday evening, November 24.

Senorita Michels and her committee will be in the receiving line.

Miss Jablonowski, Cadet James Kurtz Are Recently Wed

Mr. and Mrs. John Jablonowski of Natrona Heights, Pa., announce the marriage of their daughter, Jeanne, of Bethesda, Md., to Aviation Cadet James A. Kurtz of Sheridan, Wyo. The wedding took place Sunday, November 14 at Our Lady of Lourdes rectory in Bethesda.

The bride wore a gold-colored costume with brown accessories and a corsage of orchids. She carried a silver rosary. Her only attendant was Miss Patricia Power of Bethesda, and Alan Roberts of Arlington, Va., was best man.

After a brief honeymoon Mrs. Kurtz will continue living in Bethesda, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hale Power. Cadet Kurtz will return to Maxwell Field, Ala., to continue his Air Corps training.

Grete Stueckgold Up to Usual Standard At Recital Here

By Ray C. B. Brown

Robert Fairfax Birch presents Grete Stueckgold in a song recital on Tuesday night in the Statler Hotel. Accompanist: Paul Meyer. Program of songs by Franz Schubert, Johannes Brahms, Hugo Wolf, Richard Strauss, Thomas Arne, Martin Shaw, Robert Fairfax Birch and Richard Hageman.

Grete Stueckgold, who was last heard here several years ago in one of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's morning musicales, gave a song recital last evening in the Statler Hotel. The intervening seasons have effected neither deterioration nor amelioration in her style or her voice. She is still the poised and certain interpreter of lieder, exercising discrimination in phrasing and accent, and treating the texts with care for their clarity. Her voice retains its curious imbalance between the lower and upper registers, as though one were hearing simultaneously a light lyric soprano and a vibrantly dramatic artist. Most of the medium tones in mezzo voce have a shadowy quality, while the powerful high tones are brilliant in timore.

Her program was disappointingly abundant in familiar lieder. From the riches of Hugo Wolf, for example, she took only "Mignon," "Mausfallen Spruchlein" and "Er ist's" and Richard Strauss, who has composed at least 128 lieder, was represented by "Befreit" and "Heimliche Aufforderung." Her Schubert group did contain two seldom-heard songs, "Der Schmetterling" and "Der Wegweiser," but they were in company with "Aufenthalt," "Auf dem Wasser zu singen" and "Rastlose Liebe." In the Brahms group, "Der Mainacht," "Vergebliches Staenchen" and "Von ewiger Liebe" were offset by only one unworn song, "In stiller Nacht" from the "Deutsches Volkslieder."

A group in English contained Arne's "Where the Bee Sucks," Martin Shaw's "Song of the Palanquin Bearers," Hageman's "Miranda" and Richard Fairfax Birch's manuscript song, "I Wondered When I Met You."

The recital was the first venture of Richard Fairfax Birch as an impresario, and the attendance must have given him encouragement.

Top Women of 2 Parties Stage Election Preview Word Battle

By the Associated Press

The women at the top of the two major political parties slugged it out yesterday in verbal bouts previewing 1944 election campaigns.

Sweet smiles scarcely softened the blows exchanged by each party's assistant national chairman, whose speeches were spliced into one program at the Women's National Press Club.

Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, Democrat, started proceedings with a challenge that the paramount election issue is postwar cooperation of the United States with foreign countries to achieve a successful peace.

"There is no discussion about the need for good relations of this country with other countries," asserted Miss Marion E. Martin, Republican. "But there is discussion about the administration of the relations with other countries."

The Republican woman leader, who estimated that 60 per cent of the 1944 Presidential election votes may be cast by women, charged that Democratic Administration agencies now operating abroad counteract each other's policies.

As first speaker Mrs. Tillett had emphasized the Administration's score in "winning friends so necessary to us all over the world."

The Democrats' domestic program, she aserted, was such tha "while achieving a miracle of production we have fed and clothed ourselves and maintained morale."

Miss Martin retorted that "no party can claim the credit for miracles of production which are the results of the tremendous patriotic effort" of every sort of person.

The Republican speaker asserted further that the Administration's "changing labor policy is not conducive to increased production" and recent pay increases to miners excited a fear of inflation.

In rebuttal, Mrs. Tillet argued that the wartime labor policy was accepted by both labor and industry and that "you have to pay for speed and speed is of first importance in war production."

Religious and Educational Leaders Pay Tribute to Haycock

Religious, educational and civic leaders last night honored Robert L. Haycock, native Washingtonian and new superintendent of District schools.

The testimonial to Mr. and Mrs. Haycock, for more than a half century active in local Baptist work, highlighted sessions of the sixty-sixth annual meeting of the District of Columbia Convention of Baptist Churches at Petworth Baptist Church, 7th and Randolph sts. nw.

Leading the tributes were the Rev. Charles B. Austin, pastor of West Washington Baptist Church, Georgetown, where Mr. Haycock has been Sunday School superintendent 27 years; Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the District School Board; Henry Draper, supervising principal of the Fifth district. Others were Mrs. P. C. Ellett, vice president of the District of Columbia Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations; George B. Fraser, president of the District of Columbia Convention of Baptist Churches; the Rev. James P. Rodgers, pastor of Petworth Baptist Church; E. H. DeGroot, jr., president of the board of directors of Central Union Mission.

Mrs. Doyle, praising Haycock's intellectual and spiritual qualities, expressed assurance that the moral, spiritual and academic welfare of the District's 85,000 school children is safe in the hands of such a man.

Mr. Austin extolled the superintendent's "spiritual consecration, patience and self-control," and his work as a Bible student and Sunday school superintendent. Haycock has been a member of his church 54 years, and his mother who died in 1925 was a member 55 years, being a charter member.

A feature of today's closing sessions will be the installation of Dr. M. Chandler Stith, former pastor of Brookland Baptist Church, as new executive secretary of the District of Columbia Convention of Baptist Churches.

More Fascist Officials Ousted

Naples, Nov. 14 (Delayed) (AP).—The Allied military government announced today that 537 Fascist government officials either have been removed from office or had fled before the arrival of Allied troops in the provinces of Naples, Salerno, Benevento, and Avellino.

Some officials were arrested on charges of violation of military security and have been either interned or imprisoned. A greater number have been removed from office in provinces father south, where AMG has been in operation longer.

Petain Gagged On Speech Calling French Parliament

At the Swiss-German Frontier, Nov. 16 (AP).—A proposed speech of Marshal Petain was not broadcast Saturday, a report from Vichy through private channels said today, because it contained an order for the assembly of the French Parliament elected in 1936 which would have given an opportunity for criticism of Premier Pierre Laval.

While Petain at 87 years of age is not in excellent health, this message said, his condition had nothing to do with the speech.

The chief of state hoped by a restitution of authority to the Parliament to demonsrate tha he majoriy of he legislators were still in France and not with Gen. Charles de Gaulle in North Africa, it was said.

An informant who came from Vichy quoted the marshal as saying, "Parliament shall be my successor."

Suffrage Bill Support Urged

To assure suffrage for the District without indefinite delay, support passage of the McCarran Bill as it stands and eliminate the objectionable features by amendments later, Wilbur S. Finch, president of the Local Suffrage Association, urged the Petworth Citizens' Association last night.

Speaking at the club's meeting in the Petworth Library, Finch said he was not in favor of all features of the bill, but felt that an opportunity, perhaps never to come again, would be missed if bickering caused a stalemate.

2 Win Promotions

The War Department announced yesterday the temporary promotion of Maj. D. Nathaniel Smith, AC, 2101 North 18th st., Arlington, to the rank of lieutenant colonel, and the promotion of Lieut. Rufus Bryant Baker, Inf., Norfolk, to captain.

D. C. Airman Participated in Norway Raid

Lieut. Col. Elliott Vandevanter, jr., 26, whose wife lives at 2129 Florida ave. nw., was copilot of the leading plane in a formation of U. S. Flying Fortresses that blasted a power plant and left other heavy destruction on the west coast of Norway after a frigid 700-mile flight from an English base yesterday, the Associated Press reported.

Van Devanter

Colonel Vandevanter has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and had a cluster added for his deeds against the Japs in the Philippines, at Java and off the coast of Australia.

His plane dropped the first bomb of the Norway raid which started a landslide and left a mountain rolling over buildings. To reach their objective the bomber crews fought their way across the North Sea and encountered one swarm of German fighters that quickly scattered when the Fortress guns let loose.

New Anesthetic More Potent Than Ether Developed

Penns Grove, N. J., Nov. 16 (AP).—The discovery of a new anesthetic reported to be three to five times more potent than ether and considerably safer was announced tonight at a meeting of the New Jersey section of the American Chemical Society.

Dr. John C. Krantz, jr., professor of pharmacology at the University of Maryland Medical School, said the new agent was the product of five years' research by him and three associates.

The anesthetic, dubbed "propethylene," will require only a fraction of the shipping space required by ether, Dr. Krantz said; is not highly volatile, and does not quickly "boil" away in tropical climates.

He said that the anesthetic would be available for civilian use under certain limitations.

Chemically its name is "isopropenyl vinyl oxide," Dr. Krantz said. The researcher said he was assisted in his work by Drs. Amos Horney, C. Jeleff Carr, and William E. Evans, jr.
